Premier Bennett has dedicated an open space in the new provincial museum complex to British Columbia's continuing interest in closer ties with nations on the Pacific Rim.

The premier, in his address officially opening the 20th Colombo Plan consultative committee meeting Monday, said a courtyard between the new archives building and museum curatorial block will be known as Colombo Place.

He told the delegates seated on the floor of the legislative chamber, "With this in mind I pledge to you as a conference British Columbia's commitment to your objectives in promoting economic development in South and Southeast Asia."

Mr. Bennett said his government heartily supported the Canadian government policy of reinforcing communications with countries on the Pacific to promote "a sustained and consistently growing connection, of benefit to all our peoples."

YOUNG SOCIETY

B.C. will do everything in its power to assist in the increase in trade between Canada and the countries of the Pacific region, the premier said. "We gain from our association with the countries of the Pacific," he added. "We have much to learn from you about adapting to new conditions abroad."

"We recognize that, in spiritual and cultural terms, Canada as a young society benefits greatly from contacts with older, and in many ways, richer cultures."

The delegates applauded as the premier sat down and there were replies from Mrs. Pura Santillan Castreñeda of the

Big Boost Urged For Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson said Monday Canada's foreign aid program should be increased substantially from last year's total of $175,000,000 to $267,000,000 by 1975.

Pearson, who recently headed a World Bank commission on international development, urged rich nations to liberalize their "discriminatory" trade agreements with the "third world" of 70 underdeveloped nations.

LAST YEAR

The gross national product of the 70 countries increased an average of 4.3 per cent last year while Canada's GNP increased 7 per cent.

"This means that the rich nations, such as Canada, are going ahead much faster than the poorer nations and that the gap is widening rather than closing."

Pearson said in a speech to a women's service club there is a "dangerous" feeling among some people, especially in the U.S., to reduce foreign aid.

But he stressed that foreign aid is not the only solution to the problem of underdeveloped nations.

Private enterprise must be allowed to invest freely in those

His Aim: Thinking Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday his searing attack on separatists in Quebec, delivered Sunday in Montreal, was meant to stimulate greater dialogue and action by various organizations involved in the development of the province.

Interviewed on the CBC French network, Trudeau denied that he was interfering without provocation in provincial affairs by hinting at collusion between Quebec cabinet ministers and separatists. "I was replying to precise accusations against the federal government," he said, not elaborating on the accusations.

The prime minister reiterated that Ottawa will not hesitate to take action against the CBC French network unless it carries more objective opinion and less separatism.

At a $50-a-plate Liberal fund-raising dinner Sunday night, Trudeau spoke of the "sickness of the spirit" in the network and said "we will put the lid on the place" unless changes were made.

Canada Not Bugging Out

'Must Find Our Own Way'

NEW YORK (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday that Canada, "bombarded by domestic and international forces we cannot control," must find her own place in the world "and stand there as best we can."

In a speech to an American audience he added: "We do not stand alone, we stand next to the United States, our closest friend and ally, but in our own place, in our own way."

He also said that Canada feels "profound uneasiness" about the present and future effectiveness of the United Nations. But he also said that Canada has faith in the UN's capacity to renew itself.

COMPLEMENTARY POLICIES

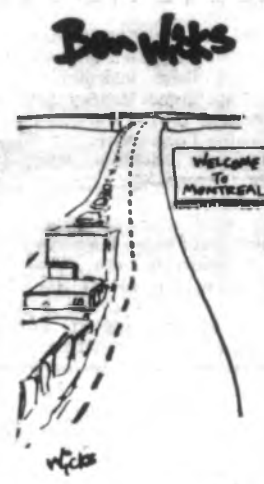

Sharp was speaking to the Council of Foreign Affairs, a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the interest of Americans in matters outside their own borders. Speakers at the council's closed meetings often answer questions from the audience.

Sharp said that he would not be surprised if, after the U.S. and Canada have completed reviews, their foreign policies complement one another as they have in the past, particularly in pursuit of world peace and development.

He also said that Canada is not "bugging out" of NATO and that her hope of recognizing Communist China is a sign of the "enlargement" of her outlook.

DIALOGUE WITH EAST

He said just as important as her steps in these two areas are new initiatives, approaches and contacts in French-speaking Africa, Japan and other Asian countries and Latin America and "our developing dialogue with Eastern European powers and the steady increase in our aid to developing countries."

Christmas Broadcast Dropped by Queen

LONDON (CP) — Breaking with tradition, the Queen has decided to drop her annual Christmas Day broadcast to Britain and the Commonwealth this year.

Buckingham Palace announced Monday that the Queen's message will be in written form for publication in newspapers and for broadcasting but there will be no formal television or radio appearance.

However, the Queen and the Royal Family will attend Christmas morning service in St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle and this service will be televised for the first time.

Later in the day the BBC will rebroadcast the TV film Royal Family in color. This film runs about 30 minutes and has been shown in the Commonwealth and many other parts of the world.

Labor Body Wins Nobel Prize

OSLO (Reuters) — The International Labor Organization, set up 50 years ago to improve conditions for workers around the world, has been awarded the 1969 Nobel Peace Prize.

The Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Parliament, announced its decision Monday after considering 45 candidates. It described the ILO as an organization working to improve stable social relations and thus helping to safeguard world peace.

"In recent years the ILO ... has also made considerable efforts in the field of technical aid to developing nations," the committee said. Mrs. Aase Lönner, chairman of the Nobel Committee, said the committee "wished to stress the close relations between work, social progress and peace."

Prize money this year amounts to about $78,400. The money, an insignia, a diploma and a gold medal will be presented to an ILO representative at a ceremony at Oslo University on Dec. 10, the day Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, died in 1896. The Nobel awards were set up at his bequest.

The ILO, established in 1919 under the Versailles Treaty ending the First World War, became an independent organ under the League of Nations, survived the league and became a special organ of the United Nations.

When it was founded, the ILO had 45 members. Fifty years and 280 conventions later, the Geneva-based organization has grown to 121 member countries with 2,700 officials of 100 nationalities and 30 field offices around the world.

Among its many recommendations have been resolutions demanding limited hours of work, equal pay, sick benefits, abolition of forced labor and trade union rights. In its technical assistance programs, the ILO in 1968 alone sent more than 1,200 expert missions to developing countries.

Made up of government, worker and employer representatives, the ILO includes representatives from Communist nations as well as Communist union representatives from Western nations.

Canada Urges Softer Aid

Loans 'Too Hard'

Canada will make a strong plea at Colombo Plan meetings for countries giving foreign aid to reduce the amount and side of loans to South and Southeast Asian countries, and what a spokesman called "hard" terms.

Maurice F. Strong, president of the Canadian International Development Agency and chairman of the officials' meetings which run until Friday, said the Canadian government is "very concerned and anxious" over the mounting debt resulting from loans with terms "harder than they should be."

He said in an interview Monday that one survey of foreign aid under the 24-nation plan indicated that if present trends continued within six or seven years the net amount of aid received by less developed countries would be only sufficient to meet their annual debt charges.

RESCHEDULING
As a result of discussions by the 290 delegates at this conference during the next two weeks, it is expected that debt rescheduling, and in some cases even the writing off of outstanding debts by donor countries, will become an integral part of the plan.

Mr. Strong agreed that the mounting debt load under the Colombo Plan was "a very severe problem," adding that it was one of the reasons why Canadian foreign loans were made on such "soft" terms. He said about 85 per cent of loans made by this country were all zero interest, with 10 years grace, and repayment over 50 years.

LIKE GRANT
The remaining 5 per cent of Canadian loans are made at 5 per cent interest, seven years grace and repayment over 30 years. This is calculated to be the equivalent of an outright grant of about half of the amount of the loan.

Foreign aid by Canada, said Mr. Strong, will increase by $40,000,000 to a total of $338,000,000. This includes, as do the figures for other donor countries under the plan, export credits usually granted at commercial rates of interest, which in Canada's case amount to some $50,000,000.

"We don't kid ourselves that this is foreign aid," he said, "but the collective effect of too many such loans, at too high interest rates, has been too great a burden on some of the recipient countries."

POPULAR FALLACY
Mr. Strong said of the operations of the Canadian International Development Agency: "We like to think our heart is in it, but we are also headed when we go out to assess potential projects."

He said "popular fallacies" included failure to understand that in all Colombo Plan projects the recipient nation provided at least 50 per cent of the total cost and sometimes as high as 85 per cent.

It was also mistakenly assumed, Mr. Strong said, that the Canadian government wrote a cheque for the full amount of the contribution. What actually happened, he added, was that an account was opened through which the recipient nation could purchase Canadian goods and services for the project.

Jack Struthers, assistant secretary-general for information for the Colombo conference, said following Mr. Davidson's speech the diffusion of information on this conference is the best in some time.

"But it is too bad that the attitude toward news diffusion shown by Secretary General John Hadwen is not an over-reflection of the commonplace in Canadian government information."

Bureaucrats Rapped On News Attitude

An end to the "traditional animosity" between governments and their information services was urged Monday by the president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Dr. George Davidson, who opened an information officer's conference being held in conjunction with Colombo Plan talks here, said in an interview many bureaucrats are "too concerned with hiding the truth."

In his opening speech to information officers from the plan's 24 members, he said elected representatives must mobilize their information services in the battle for increased foreign aid.

TWO OUTLETS
Governments had two outlets at their disposal, the public media and their own information branches.

He said both play a part in presenting the case for foreign aid, but, elaborating after his speech, he added that many information functions are ham-strung by the attitudes of their own elected leaders.

"It sometimes happens that information officers are instructed not to talk to newsmen until they have cleared the matter with their superiors... Information services cannot work that way."

BASIC FUNCTION
He outlined the basic function of information officers as being to present the case for the government and to point out stories which were "quietly relevant," but not hot news.

Jack Struthers, assistant secretary-general for information for the Colombo conference, said following Mr. Davidson's speech the diffusion of information on this conference is the best in some time.

"But it is too bad that the attitude toward news diffusion shown by Secretary General John Hadwen is not an over-reflection of the commonplace in Canadian government information."

If you are worried about the youngster developing a malignancy, no. Your abscesses, however, indicate a bacterial infection. The type of bacteria makes a difference. If it is the staphylococcus (staph) germ, infectiousness is greater than with other types of organisms.

I doubt that you have any serious problem here as long as you observe meticulous care by washing your hands and due caution in handling dressings when drainage occurs.

Cambodia Sheds Supervisory Cloak

OTTAWA (CP) — The future of international peace supervision is in doubt in Cambodia, a neighbor of warring Vietnam, but Canadian authorities are not sure why.

FOR MONEY
Cambodia has asked the International Control Commission to withdraw its peace-supervisory team of Canada, India and Poland on the ostensible ground that the commission is in debt and Cambodia has had to carry some extra costs.

Canadian authorities, however, are unsure whether Cambodia is requesting IOC withdrawal simply as a form of pressure to get the money or if the financial tangle is being used as an excuse to get the commission out of the country.

Comments by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp in New York Monday night reflected the doubts about Cambodian motives. He said Canada does not know what the Cambodian attitude is to the IOC.

The control commission was established in 1954 by agreement among Russia, Britain, China and France at Geneva to supervise a truce between Communist forces based in North Vietnam and anti-Communists which had been supported by France.

The IOC mandate was to cover the four components of the Indochinese area—North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia—which had been colonies of France.

Financing arrangements for IOC operations vary among the Indochinese countries, but the four major powers which signed the Geneva agreement were to share major expenses.

The Indochinese countries were to meet some local costs and members of the IOC's peace-supervision teams covered some of the expense of personnel on the supervisory contingents.

FOR DIPLOMATS
Canada, for example, pays the salaries and some overseas allowances for its diplomats and military men on the supervisory teams, but other costs such as transport were to be met by the IOC.

China and North Vietnam have not been meeting their share of the IOC budget.

Cambodia and Laos, small countries with puny resources, have been meeting some IOC costs locally in expectation of eventual reimbursement by the IOC.

A report from India last week said Canada would withdraw personnel from IOC peace supervision in Laos and Cambodia as part of cost-cutting policies in the external affairs department.

Canada has a staff of six with the IOC in Cambodia—four from external affairs and two military men—and about the same in Laos.

Firebomb 'Makings' Seized

Tokyo Leftists Rally To Mark Antiwar Day

TOKYO (UPI) — Leftists mobilized in the streets of Tokyo today on "national antiwar day" to mock massive demonstrations against the government. Police seized a truck and confiscated 125 bottles of gasoline apparently designed to be used as firebombs.

The American military ordered 40,000 servicemen and their dependents to stay away from Tokyo during the demonstrations and a spokesman for former vice-president Hubert Humphrey said Humphrey had canceled an appointment with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato because of the threat of street violence.

Later, an official for the Encyclopedia Britannica, of which Humphrey is a director, said Humphrey had suggested a cancellation of the meeting but Sato's office saw no reason to put it off. Student demonstrations buried firebombs into Sato's official residence Saturday.

Police said the seized truck contained home-made bombs, packed in four cardboard boxes, which apparently were brought into Tokyo from Osaka, a major industrial city in western Japan.

About 70,000 police were deployed through Tokyo and other major cities in anticipation of street riots throughout today by radical opponents of Sato's pro-American policies.

One group of about 1,500 demonstrators gathered at the Shinjuku railway station this morning, but there were no incidents reported.

Philippines and Philip Flood of Australia.

John Hadwen, Canadian secretary-general of the conference, later said he regarded Mr. Bennett's speech as "something special," because it touched with unusual candor on matters of trade and B.C.'s commitment to the broad Canadian aid program.

Mrs. Oastreine called on the conference to look into the problem of the "brain drain" in depth. She said ways must be found, without stopping the current program of study and training, to allow developing countries to gear the education of their people to local development.

She said there was danger of a country being dangerously drained of the very brains it needed to help itself.

Meanwhile, information officers from several countries within the Colombo Plan opened their meeting with an address by Dr. George Davidson, president of the CBC.

Dr. Davidson said the formidable challenge facing them was how to achieve among the governments and peoples of the 24 participating countries a greater understanding of the goals, accomplishments and difficulties of this "brave 20-year-old experiment in international co-operation."

He said he had no pat answers, but added that the first decision must be on where the information effort was to be directed—to the mass of the 1,000,000,000 people of south and Southeast Asia, to the educated elite, including governments, or to the world's population at large.

The conference winds up following next week's ministerial meetings which will be attended, for Canada, by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and former prime minister Lester Pearson. In addition, Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Public Works Minister Arthur Laing are expected to attend some sessions.

nations, trade barriers must be removed and underdeveloped nations must be given special treatment.

If these goals were met, most of the 70 underdeveloped nations would be self-sustaining by the end of this century.

In Toronto, Scott Reid, a former Canadian high commissioner to India, said Monday Canada should increase its foreign aid to the value of 2 per cent of the total production of its goods and services by the mid-1970s.

In an address to the Scarborough Women's Club, Reid said the increases would cost Canada $2.2 billion in 1976 and would be a far better investment in creating international security for Canada than the same amount spent on defence.

NATO Members Disturbed

'Bad Example' Cited In Canadian Cutback

BRUSSELS (CP) — Some barbed comments were made at the North Atlantic Assembly plenary session Monday about Ottawa's plans for reduction of Canadian commitments to NATO military strength in Europe.

But Republican Senator Jacob Javits wound up a seven-hour debate on the alliance's military situation by assuring delegates that "Canada and the United States will not fail Europe" in time of trial.

Javits called for "an attitude of accommodation" by Europeans in any shifts in military commitments by NATO's North American members.

And a resolution was passed by the assembly expressing concern at the present trend in reduction of NATO forces but confining itself to the recommendation that member states "maintain forces at levels adequate for effective implementation of the agreed strategy of flexible response."

Canadian delegates to the assembly, an organization comprising legislators from NATO member states, had considered

Pentagon Joins Inflation War

WASHINGTON — U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said Monday the Pentagon has enlisted in President Nixon's war against inflation with a program that will cut about 500,000 jobs and avoid letting contracts worth $8 billion in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

A top Laird aide said the cuts will be across the board of defence activities — with a large share to be absorbed by industries doing business with the defence department.

Laird previously said he had cut $4.1 billion in proposed spending for the current fiscal year. What the Pentagon did Monday was relate these cuts, plus others not yet pinpointed, to their general effect on the overheated economy.

Nixon has been engaged in a major battle to halt the steady rise in U.S. prices and general inflationary trends in the economy. Administration economists have sought to control the upward trend by virtually every method short of government-imposed wage and price controls. The White House has maintained an air of outward confidence that steps taken earlier in the Nixon administration are beginning to have an effect.

The main problem is to hold prices at a reasonably steady level while insuring that goods and services are available in desired quantities — and at the same time making sure large-scale unemployment and business recession do not occur.

South Vietnam Wins In 'Biggest Battle'

FROM AP, CP

SAIGON — South Vietnamese forces probing a forest deep in the Mekong Delta, killed 116 North Vietnamese troops in two battles, the military command reported Monday.

One of the battles, in which 96 North Vietnamese regulars were killed, was the biggest fight of the year for the South Vietnam army.

U.S. helicopter gunships swarmed in to blast the northern positions during the five-hour fight Sunday and one H-1 Cobra was shot down.

In other Vietnam developments:

- Cambodia has informed Britain it proposes to ask the International Control Commission, made up of Canada, India and Poland, to be withdrawn by the end of the year. A British spokesman announced the request at the United Nations.

However, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, asked in a New York interview about the announcement, replied, "You know more than I do."

● Meanwhile, after a week of Moscow talks, North Vietnam Premier Pham Van Dong and Premier Alexei Kosygin signed a joint communique which vowed the people of North and South Vietnam would fight on until all U.S. troops are removed from South Vietnam. Moscow restated its "readiness to continue the necessary assistance to the Vietnamese people in their struggle for the liberation of South Vietnam."

Soviets in Mideast Now Major Force

From Wire Reports

The Soviet Union has become a major power in the Middle East but has failed to win wholehearted allegiance from Arab governments, says a report published by the British Institute for Strategic Studies.

The report suggests the Soviet Union's involvement in the Arab-Israeli conflict has placed new responsibilities on the Russians without gaining them a corresponding ability to control events in the region.

In other Middle East developments Monday:

- Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban accused Egypt of trying to drag the world into the Middle East conflict by attacking the U.S. for allowing Americans to serve in Israel's armed forces without losing their citizenship.
- In the UN, two Israeli women, whose husbands were hijacked to Syria on a U.S. airliner eight weeks ago, appealed Monday to the UN and "everyone all over the world to help us have our husbands released as soon as possible."
- There have been reports Syria was holding the husbands of Mrs. Naomi Samuels and Mrs. Tilda Muallem, passenger on a Trans World Airlines plane returning to Israel, as hostages.
- Abba Eban accused Egypt of trying to drag the world into the Middle East conflict by attacking the U.S. for allowing Americans to serve in Israel's armed forces without losing their citizenship.

Border Talks Quiet

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The talks are expected to concentrate initially on the border issue but with progress could be extended to cover the whole range of the ideological dispute between Moscow and Peking.

The Sino-Soviet conflict has led to numerous border incidents since a series of clashes fought across the ice of the frozen Ussuri border river in March.

Both sides are resigned to the fact that ideological differences between them are beyond immediate solution but appear anxious to work out some arrangement, even if temporary, which would lessen border tension.

Radio Peking announced only that the talks had started and broadcast a list of delegates attending from both sides.

Heading the Soviet delegation is Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov, top trouble shooter for the Kremlin. He served as Soviet ambassador in Peking in the 1950s.

Leading the Chinese side is Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, veteran negotiator who has attended many international conferences.

Czechs Greeted

Kremlin Lauds Purges

DEFENCE MINISTER Denis Healey of Britain spoke of Western Europe's need for greater integration of its defences as a way of bearing an increased military load without increase in expenditures.

"Integration should strengthen links between Europe and North America," Healey said.

He spoke after U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy referred to increasing demands in his country for reduction of American military strength in Western Europe.

Such ideas, together with French withdrawal from the military side of NATO and Canada's reduction plans, "are not in accord with the strategy of flexible defence response," Cooper argued.

EROSION CITED

John Spinkman, a Democratic member of the U.S. Senate, cited Canadian plans as an example of "a slow erosion of the status quo" in NATO.

The assembly's two-day plenary session ends today.

Alastair Gillespie, Liberal MP for Toronto-Eglinton, who heads the Canadian delegation, said the alliance should pay more attention to the attitudes of younger citizens in its member states.

But Conservative A.D. Dods-Parker, a British MP, said this reminded him of optimism about military affairs expressed by some Britons in the 1930s.

NEED TO BE ALERT

From what he termed the evil effects of such ideas, only the English Channel saved Britain as Hitler's forces advanced westward in 1940, Dods-Parker added. He agreed with some other speakers that more NATO alertness than ever is needed following last year's Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Sir Fitzroy McLean of Britain, a Conservative MP and chairman of the Assembly's military committee, warned that once any NATO member reduced its commitments to the alliance "others are bound to follow its bad example."

The main worry to assembly members caused by reductions or planned reductions in that such might force NATO to depend more on nuclear weapons, since a decrease in commitments would cause a slashing of conventional forces.

FORCES ESSENTIAL

The availability of strong conventional forces is essential to the idea of being able to respond flexibly—through use of a wide assortment of weapons—to any Soviet attack on the West.

One West German delegate said any Canadian withdrawal of forces from Europe "would be received with joy only by the Warsaw Pact countries."

Paul Findley, a Republican member of the U.S. House of Representatives, said that although President Nixon had expressed determination to avoid reducing U.S. forces in Europe for the time being, "he cannot deliver indefinitely more than public opinion will sustain."

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Kremlin displayed its satisfaction Monday with the new anti-reform administration in Czechoslovakia, providing the full red-carpet treatment for visiting Czechoslovak leaders and openly praising the recent sweeping purges of progressive liberals.

Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny, speaking at an official dinner for Czechoslovak Communist party chief Gustav Husak, President Oldrich Kovik, also said "new horizons are now opening for co-operation" between the two countries.

MAJOR TALKS

The Czechoslovak leaders, heading a delegation of government officials, party executives and advisers, arrived here earlier Monday for major talks on political and economic issues.

East European sources said the nine-day official visit was likely to end with the signing of a document approving the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact action which ground out the flames of liberal reform.

In return for their seal of approval, the Czechoslovak leaders were expected to get big foreign-aid concessions designed to bolster the sickly economy of their country.

Disastrous Decisions in Defence

CANADIANS ARE BEGINNING to see the grave consequences of amateur experimentation with the armed services, initiated by Paul Hellyer when he was minister of defence, and being continued by the Trudeau administration. In spite of protests, and against the advice of professionals, the government at Ottawa continues on its blundering, wasteful way.

It is now disclosed that of the 115 CF-5 aircraft ordered, in spite of the objections of air force officers at the time that they were not the multi-purpose type required and that they lacked essential range for their predicted role, only one-third of them are to be operational. Their cost will be something in excess of $230 million.

The 30 or 40 of these CF-5s to go into service are expected to be used in Canada. For what no one seems able to explain. They are fighter support machines quite unsuited for Arctic patrol or for interception, and of course they have not the range to fly to any European hot spot in an emergency.

What is to be done with the remaining 75 or so of these expensive pieces of equipment is anybody's guess.

This sort of mad decision makes the $50,000,000 experiment with the hydrofoil Bras d'Or and the $14,000,000 for refit and painting of the carrier Bonaventure, soon to be scrapped, seem almost trivial.

The sad fact of unification, as the reorganization of the armed services has been optimistically described, was supposed to allow for designation of 25 per cent of the military budget for new equipment. That was Mr. Hellyer's prediction in 1964 for all the years ahead. It has never been achieved. And this year the very limit will be 17 per cent of the defence spending—and very likely less.

To the man in the street that 17 per cent of a

$1.8 billion budget may not have much significance, but to the military men it is a demoralizing situation. For it means, in simple terms, that they will be deprived of the new, sophisticated weapons they so badly need. Moreover, the budget is frozen for the next three years at least. And last week's 6.5 per cent pay increase will cut another $45 million from it.

The army has taken delivery of a reported 1,000 armored personnel carriers at a cost of $47 million in order to fulfill a NATO obligation that required high mobility.

But Leo Cadieux, the defence minister, now has decided that sort of mobility is inadequate and that $50 million worth of twin-engine Bell helicopters must be provided. To airlift 5,000 men in Canada's NATO contingent?

The extraordinary lack of foresight, if nothing worse, is indicated in so many directions it can be nothing less than scandalous.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has made the decision that Canada's defence planning should flow from foreign policy. Yet no firm policy has yet emerged. Possibly this is one reason for the confusion in the defence organization. But it is hardly an excuse that can be accepted by the overburdened taxpayer.

In the desperate search for ways of saving, all the government has been able to think up so far is a drastic reduction of manpower.

It is the belief of Canada's NATO partners that this country is "taking a cheap ride internationally," says the monthly report, Canadian Affairs.

This is a shameful situation, but hardly surprising.

It is urgently demanded that the whole sorry mess be critically examined by Parliament, not with the purpose of covering it up but of immediately correcting it.

How's that for openers!

The Muddle of Defence

Bad Planning Erodes Defence Effectiveness Stemming from Hellyer's Dictatorial Day

DURING the 10-year period 1952-62, the defence department had a grand time moving army, navy and air force bases and barracks about, closing this one down and building another one somewhere else.

While the cost of all this was "chicken feed" compared to similar costs during the past six years, it is sobering to consider that over one and a quarter billion dollars were spent on construction during this period. Much of this consisted of permanent housing, married quarters, schools and so forth, which are today being moved again or abandoned. Seemingly no one thought of using portable or mobile buildings.

The military equipment we purchased during the same period cost four or five times this amount, yet today, due to errors, misjudgment, faulty design and obsolescence, we have fewer operational ships, aircraft or tanks in service than we had even five years ago.

This is not to say that our armed services did not make some useful contributions towards world peace during these years. They played a useful role in the Middle East, in NATO, in Kashmir, the Congo, Vietnam and elsewhere, as well as in the Canadian North, where the RCAF maintained air strips, navigational posts, signal networks, weather stations and rescue detachments. Much of this important northern servicing was, for some unexplained reason, closed out, though it would have been invaluable now that our sovereignty in the North is questioned.

Despite this, the evidence is all too clear that there was a great lack of continuity or coordination in our defence policies and purposes after 1950 when we tried to operate with the old commander-in-chief principle.

Suddenly the militia units were advised that they would no longer have any proper military function or purpose. They were considered to have value in the future primarily in civil defence, and their training would concentrate on rescue, re-entry, first aid and so forth. Seemingly we would have no further need for reserves to expand and back up our regular units and we would not need them to support the local police in any civil disorders or to preserve law and order.

The next phase in our defence comedy was introduced with the arrival of Paul Hellyer on the scene as minister of the department. Here the roles were reversed. Instead of the defence councils being dominated by a "commander-in-chief" figure as the sole adviser to the minister and cabinet, they became dominated by the powerful and rigid personality of a single minister.

Mr. Hellyer did not sit and participate in the normal way as a member of the defence council himself. None of the professional members could make their voices heard. They did not carry an equal vote, they had no right of direct access to the cabinet, nor could the majority make decisions. They either accepted Mr. Hellyer's dictation or they resigned, if they were not fired first for refusing to be a "yes man."

The results were entirely predictable as Mr. Hellyer had a field-day for a while with his dream of "unification."

True, he restored a military role to the militia in place of its previous role with civil defence, but much damage had already resulted. He also created an integrated defence council, a step long overdue, but it was in name only, as it perpetuated the fault which destroyed our army council back in 1950, thereby compounding the damage.

Another spurge of moving the regular units and depots then broke out and the training establishments of all three services were mixed up in a grand muddle.

Nearly every senior officer of any stature or experience all across Canada, who was free to speak out, tried to warn Mr. Hellyer of the great dangers in his total "unification" program. Many officers in fact resigned from their service careers so they would be free to speak. With an ineffective defence council, however, Mr. Hellyer was able to have his own way and succeeded in the space of two years in reducing the morale of our forces to its lowest ebb in history, and from which it has still to recover.

It is interesting to note in retrospect some of the happy predictions contained in Mr. Hellyer's White Paper on defence issued in 1964. Touching on "a single unified defence force," it would "... produce a more effective and co-ordinated defence posture ... should also result in considerable savings ... will result in substantial savings in manpower strengths in headquarters, training and related establishments." As for any loss of competition, morale or esprit de corps "... neither of these objections will stand up to careful scrutiny ... there is no reason why morale should not be high."

So long as the present views of Mr. Trudeau's government prevail regarding NATO and collective security and further chopping and changing about of units by Mr. Cadieux, it will be some time before any sense of purpose, respect or morale can be restored to our armed forces. Certainly it will not be possible for the services to call on or demand the degree of public support which is essential. To give this support the public must first understand and endorse our government's defence policies and objectives. In a subsequent article an attempt will be made to review our real needs and responsibilities in defence today in relation to the defence policies and programs recently announced by Mr. Cadieux.

By RICHARD JACKSON

Once-Hostile Tory Element Now Accepts 'The Quiet Man'

It has taken all of two years, but now at last Robert Stanfield has established his Conservative leadership beyond reasonable challenge.

Best measure of his control is the grudging respect, if not affection, he now commands among the 20 or so Defence Ministers of the Conservative parliamentary caucus.

They comprised that tiny band of stubborn men—mostly MPs from the West and Ontario with a couple from the Maritimes, together with one or two senators—who, having given their hearts to John Diefenbaker when he won that stunning 208-seat landslide, the greatest election triumph ever, 11 years ago, regarded it as a bond of loyalty for political life.

There were even a few among them who said quite openly they'd rather fight than switch affection.

To them, "The Chief" would always be "The Chief," no matter what.

Robert Stanfield's leadership from the very outset was secure if for no other reason than the Conservatives could not again even wishfully think in their secret hearts of searching for another leader.

But while his leadership was secure, it was never comfortable, and still isn't.

Two or three of the Diefenbakers refused to attend caucus.

Seventeen broke with him on the languages bill.

The caucus again openly divided—for all to see in the vote on the floor of the Commons—on the Criminal Code bill legalizing abortion and homosexuality. He's trying to lead it leftward and some don't want to go.

But all through his many trials and few triumphs, Robert Stanfield, "The Quiet Man," quietly endured the ordeal of hostility and uncertain loyalties in dignified silence.

And this has won him acceptance, if not exactly devotion, by those who resented and rebelled against his leadership.

He has kept his calm even in the face of Maritime Conservative MP Robert Coates' book "Night of the Knives" that so humbly questions the quality of his leadership.

There has been no whining or whimpering about loyalty—or the lack of it—from Robert Stanfield.

Nor has there been any muttering of sinister plots by treacherous intriguers.

Robert Stanfield has stood by his principles, as he saw them, without downgrading or demeaning anyone.

He has been without rancor while watching the old "Chief" often usurp his public image as party leader.

Robert Stanfield has been altogether honorable.

And this integrity of character has served him well. He has taken honorable obligation to the point of publicly declaring that he has tried to stand for not so much what is best for his party, but best for his country. His judgment of what's best for whom isn't infallible, but he makes his assessments, stands by them, willing to put them to the test.

And that, in these days of increasing political cynicism, is really something.

It is a quality of leadership different enough as perhaps to counter growing public disenchantment with politics and its practitioners.

No, Robert Stanfield hasn't much style or flair. He can't be conveniently "packaged" under a hot and trendy label "sold" to the voters.

No, he isn't cute, nor is he handsome. He doesn't swing.

He's no Romeo. If he has any sex appeal, only his wife knows it.

In his plain, but good, conservatively cut business suits, white shirts, quiet ties, Robert Stanfield looks like a square. He talks like a square. He is a square.

He hasn't much "projection." He can't turn you on with a fetching smile and a cute quip on TV.

No, as so many of his detractors used to put, he's no gay and glamorous Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

And that could be his greatest strength, his credibility as the alternative to Trudeau ... except that today's cool Trudeau isn't the fevered political product of yesteryear, and Trudeauism has been cooling off as the new regime settles quietly down to business.

"We had sex education today but it can't compare to what I've already learned on the bus."

Prince Philip Speaks Out

FEW CANADIANS can fail to be delighted to find that Prince Philip has lost none of his pungent wit nor sharp-edged outspokenness which have so often marked his activities in public life both at home and abroad.

His outstanding ability to get down to the basics of matters which concern him with frank and easily understandable words has, of course, led to considerable criticism from certain quarters which feel that members of the Royal Family should be seen but not necessarily heard.

But his refusal to be brow-beaten into the submissive silence his critics so ardently desire has endeared him to millions of British subjects all over the world, including Canadians.

Certainly it is a refreshing change for the ordinary man in the street here and elsewhere to hear somebody of high rank boldly speak out on issues which normally—no matter how important—are avoided or hidden by political windbags in London or Ottawa.

His recent assessment of the future of the monarchy in Canada is a case in point. Questioned on the subject by a reporter, Prince Philip rejected the usual "no comment" dodge to maintain that the monarchy existed in Canada largely because the community wanted it and that it was up to the Canadian people themselves to decide whether or not Canada should end the royal role.

"I think the important thing about it," he said, "is that if, at any time, any stage, people feel it has no future part to play, then for goodness sake let's end the thing on amicable terms without having a row about it."

With these simple words Prince Philip not only placed that particular matter right on the line but at the same time disabused any Canadians—especially those in Quebec—of any idea that the Royal Family were all part of some dreadful White Anglo-Saxon Protestant plot to keep Canada in bondage to a foreign power.

OTHER PAPERS WRITE . . .

Government Annoyed By Council Warning

The Calgary Herald

THE Economic Council of Canada, in its sixth annual report gently rebuked the federal government for some of the methods it has chosen to combat inflation.

Naturally, the government displayed annoyance. After all, Prime Minister Trudeau had taken to a nationally-televised press conference to announce austerity steps being taken by the government to help ease monetary pressures. He urged other governments and the public to exercise comparable spending restraints.

Actually, the Economic Council of Canada could have been a little more severe than it was towards the government. It could have given more emphasis than it did to the point that the kind of inflation Canada is experiencing is not due to the usual pursuit of too few consumer goods by too many dollars but is due, rather, to an actual decrease in private spending due to excessive government spending.

It is the federal government, and the other two levels of government, which have been overspending, not the consuming public or investors of capital in new business and industry.

There is no shortage of consumer goods on store shelves or warehouses. Granted, consumer spending is large-scale. But there are many thousands of people in Canada who wish to buy things which they cannot afford. Too much of their income is taken away in

The Telegram, Toronto

The blanket accusation by Senator Richard Stanbury of Toronto, that the Nova Scotia government is "the most corrupt in Canada," won't help the Liberal cause.

If the president of the Liberal Federation of Canada has evidence of wrong-doing in the Department of Highways, as he suggests, he should specify what it is. The information should also be given to Gerald Regan, Nova Scotia's articulate Liberal leader, so the matter can be brought up in the legislature.

Undoubtedly there is political patronage in Nova Scotia, as there is in all provinces. But to charge an administration with corruption is something a lot more serious. Under former Premier Robert L. Stanfield, and now Premier G. I. Smith, the Nova Scotia government has been remarkably free of the kind of criticism that has now been levelled against it by Mr. Stanbury. The fact that the Conservatives have held office since 1956 speaks for itself.

If Mr. Stanbury hoped to make political capital out of his accusation, he will be disappointed.

As has already been pointed out by Nova Scotia's highways minister I. W. Akerley, tactics of degradation by innuendo "are not fitting tools for any politician of stature." Mr. Stanbury's remarks appear all the more unwarranted since he was appointed to Parliament, not elected.

Pearson's Realities

The Ottawa Journal

For understandable historical and political reasons, many foreign aid donors have made their own individual decisions as to what countries would receive help. Canada's Commonwealth connection led this country into the Colombo Plan which concentrated upon Commonwealth nations. The United States has used aid as an instrument of foreign policy towards countries on the edge of the Communist world and in Latin America.

No one, least of all the Pearson Commission on international development, wants to belittle these preferences and their motives. Without them there would certainly be even less aid. But the Pearson report has shown the inequitable results of dispensing aid by standards other than need. "It is difficult to explain on any economic grounds," the report says, "why Sierra Leone should receive $5.9 (per capita) as against India $2.5, or Costa Rica $13.9 as against the Philippines $1.7, or Ghana $7.6 as against Nigeria $2.0."

The commission makes this observation: "If aid had been distributed according to any consistent economic criteria, the distribution of aid would certainly have been very different over the last 15 years."

The commission, logically, recommends that donor nations put more of their aid into the hands of international agencies to distribute. That is sound advice. International bodies are in a better position to be tough-minded than countries giving for humanitarian or cultural reasons. They are better able to insist that aid is conditional upon acceptable performance—one of the recurring themes of the report.

Some people who believe in gimmickry have complained that the Pearson report reveals no fresh solutions! The solution is intelligent and generous giving and Pearson is right to rub it in.

Beaten Biafra Defiant

By STANLEY MEISLER, from Nairobi

On one side: obese Nigerian businessmen, smug soldiers, an aloofness from the terrors of war, the heady air of victory, and contempt. On the other: hungry Biafran children, desperate soldiers, a weary surfeit of the terrors of war, an ache for peace, and defiance. Until these moods and people blur their differences, the Nigerian civil war will go on.

At the moment, the chances for peace are poor, though an outsider—after returning to Nigeria for three weeks and Biafra for 10 days—can hardly come up with any logical reason for the war to go on. Only blindness and stupidity and stubbornness fire it now.

The war began 27 months ago. The Biafrans, incensed by the massacre of thousands of their people in northern Nigeria, seceded from Nigeria on May 30, 1966. Five weeks later, the federal government of Nigeria ordered its troops to crush the rebellion of the Biafrans and their leader, Odumegwu Ojukwu.

The Nigerians called it a "police action" and expected to finish the job quickly. "Our job is to get Ojukwu," a government spokesman said at a news conference the day after the war began. "If we get him today, that's it." In more than two years, the Nigerians have failed to get Ojukwu or crush the rebellion. But they have pushed the Biafrans deep inside a territory that is no more than a fifth of Biafra's original 30,000 square miles.

The Biafrans had been squeezed down ever more. But, earlier this year, they cut off the Nigerians from behind and forced them to retreat from Owerri more than 30 miles south. It was the first significant area recaptured by the Biafrans in the war.

Rains End Soon

But since that rare victory the Biafrans have failed to push the Nigerians much further back and they have not succeeded in recapturing the besieged towns of Omitsha and Umuahia.

The rainy season ends in several weeks, and most observers inside both Nigeria and Biafra believe this will signal the start of a new Nigerian offensive to end the war.

The Nigerians, who have an army of 130,000 to 150,000 men armed with British artillery and armored cars, evidently intend to cut Biafra in two between Umuahia and Owerri, and also capture the Uli and Uga airstrips from the north and west.

The Biafrans, who have an army of perhaps 40,000, are counting on a steady supply of arms from France and from the European black market to resist the next offensive. If they fail, they must either surrender or resort to guerrilla warfare.

Most Nigerians hardly know that a war is going on. The blackout in Lagos does make it unpleasant for people to find their way across the open sewers and through the filthy, broken streets by candlelight at night.

The government's campaign to conserve its foreign exchange for guns has stopped the importation of cars, Scotch whisky, and textiles. Prices are somewhat higher while wages are about the same. Overbearing soldiers demand bribes from civilians and push them around.

But, in general, the discomforts of war are minor. Nigerian businessmen are getting rich. Nigeria has a buoyant, confident air.

In contrast, the Biafrans are a hungry, tattered, besieged people, crowded into a tiny area that was the most densely populated part of Africa even before the war began and millions of refugees fled into it. They are weary with death, starvation, disease and flight. Their clothes and nerves and spirit are frayed.

Grand Dreams Lost

The Biafrans have lost their dreams of a grand Biafra that encompassed all the area of the old eastern region, including the lands of the non-Ibo tribes with their wealth of oil.

Actually, there is less talk in Biafra now of sovereignty than of security and survival. The official statements of the government and the private talk of Biafrans hint very strongly that Biafra would face reality now and compromise on some sort of union with Nigeria.

But it is very unlikely that the Biafrans would ever agree to lay down their arms. Fear and bitterness drove the Ibos into secession after the great massacre of Ibos in northern Nigeria. Fear and bitterness have hardened their resistance in the long months of war.

This same fear and bitterness will never allow them to trust a promise of security from outsiders. The Biafrans believe that their security and survival rest only in themselves, in keeping their own arms. It is hard to envision compromise on this.

Settlement Wanted

For more than a year the Biafrans have been calling for a cease-fire. The Nigerians have refused. At first, their refusal made sense. They rightly suspected that the Biafrans were hoping that a cease-fire would bolster their sovereignty.

But now with the Biafrans hemmed into a tiny enclave, a cease-fire gives them no advantage.

In fact, the continued Biafran call for a cease-fire is clear evidence that the Biafrans are ready for a negotiated, compromise settlement.

The time gained from a cease-fire and prolonged negotiations probably would calm the situation and soften some of the hatred and bitterness. A long period of calm would help the Biafrans realize how meaningless sovereignty is to their crowded, surrounded, impoverished enclave.

Time might also ease some of their fears and make them more willing to work out an accommodation with the people they now consider their tormentors.

The Nigerians still refuse a cease-fire because they believe it would cheat them of military victory. In their view, the war is almost won: Once their offensive destroys Biafra, they can sit down and negotiate a Biafran surrender. That is why the impending Nigerian offensive is so crucial.

The Nigerians believe that a successful offensive, cutting Biafra in two and destroying its airstrips, will end the war and bring the peace. It is more likely, however, to bring years of guerrilla warfare and chaos.

The chances for peace actually may hinge on a Nigerian offensive that fails. If that happens, the Nigerians and their British supporters might reassess their policies and start to think about a cease-fire and negotiations. At the moment, that is the only real hope.

Personalities Important in This Week's Election

Australia May Swing to Labor

By DAVID BUTLER
From Canberra

Australia may get a Labor Party government after Saturday's elections for the first time in 20 years. Unpublished opinion polls show that the race is now wide open, with an unprecedented swing away from the ruling Liberal party continuing.

Australia has a post-war custom of voting Liberal governments back into office, and the economic boom that has lately bolstered the party's image has not slackened.

But the political tide has apparently turned. Poll interviews completed two weeks ago show a 7 per cent swing towards Labor since April. While approval for Prime Minister John Gorton has dropped from 46 per cent to 44 per cent.

The betting odds still favor Gorton — but only narrowly.

One reason for the swing is that Labor has avoided its customary mistakes. It has not seemed disunited. It has not saddled itself with any specially unpopular policies.

Whitlam

Above all it has, in Gough Whitlam, a leader who is far more presentable than his Labor predecessors and who, according to the polls, is better regarded by the Australian public than Gorton.

In this issue-less election, personalities are exceptionally important.

The Vietnam issue, once an important factor in Liberal election victories, no longer works in favor of the government. The polls suggest that, for the bulk of the electorate, the war has gone sour.

Few Australians want to break with the American alliance — since 1941 they have known that their defence must ultimately turn on American planes and ships. But there is plenty of anti-Americanism and the Australian government has been caught in the downfall of American policy in Vietnam. The government has been unable to give any clear indication of how Australia will pull out its troops. Labor, on the other hand, says it will not replace the three Australian battalions in Vietnam as they come home on rotation between December and June, 1970.

On defence, too, Gorton is in a dilemma.

Britain's approaching withdrawal from the Far East meant Australia had to decide how far to take over in Malaysia. Gorton seemed to waver between a forward defence policy and on isolationist "fortress Australia."

Now, under pressure from the militant breakaway Democratic Labor Party, he seems to have returned to a hard-line: continued conscription, a sustained presence in Malaysia, a naval base in western Australia, an increased defence budget and even the possibility of developing a nuclear capacity.

Whitlam, while not repudiating the American alliance or any existing Australian commitment to Malaysia, says he will end conscription and sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

Russian Forces Massed in Murmansk Area

Norwegians See Red

By DON COOK, from Oslo

The biggest expansion of Soviet strategic military power against the North Atlantic Treaty forces in the last few years has taken place not in the Mediterranean but along Norway's frontier with Russia in the Far North.

The port of Murmansk has now been transformed into the major global operating base for Russia's growing nuclear submarine fleet. Unlike Leningrad or Odessa on the Black Sea, Murmansk is not land-locked by NATO territory. It is the only naval base from which the Russians can move directly into open ocean waters and head anywhere in the world with a minimum risk of detection.

Moreover, the northern wasteland around Murmansk has become a major deployment area for Russian hard-site intercontinental ballistic missiles, which are targeted over the polar cap from north to south against the United States and Canada.

Finally, there has been a considerable buildup of Russian ground forces in the Far North in the last few years. Two full Red Army mechanized divisions are stationed along the Paasvik River, which forms most of the 120-mile Norwegian-Russian border.

This buildup has been climaxed this year by Soviet military exercises. In a massive army manoeuvre in the spring, the Russian mechanized divisions advanced in full strength to the banks of the Paasvik in a mock assault exercise against Norway. After firing live ammunition on their own territory along the border, the Russians aimed their guns openly at the Norwegian army border posts on the other side.

Later, during the midnight sun season, a convoy of merchant ships under naval escort emerged from Murmansk, sailed along Norway's northern coast and then made an abrupt turn and headed for the Norwegian fishing port of Hammerfest at the North Cape — deploying as if for an assault landing. The point having been made, the Russians reformed into convoy and steamed back to Murmansk.

All these Russian military activities and a great deal more are watched intensively by the Norwegian military command. The effect, if any, on the Norwegian population is to make the country more NATO-minded than ever.

NATO has never attempted to operate on a gun-for-gun or ship-for-ship defence philosophy. But the Norwegians are confronting the Russians resolutely but calmly with the fact that Norway is alert, prepared, backed by allies, and will fight if attacked.

To this end, some small but significant changes are under way in the military picture on the Norwegian side. First, some of the new German-built Leopard tanks with which the Norwegian army is being re-equipped are to be assigned to the border command in the Far North, headquartered at the town of Kirkenes. Nobody pretends that the Norwegian army could stop an assault by two Russian divisions in the north, but the readiness and determination to resist any military action will certainly be emphasized by the deployment of tank support for the infantry patrols along the border.

Second, the Norwegian air force is increasing its long-range patrolling of the entire North Cape sea area from its coastal patrol base on the northernmost of the bleak, windswept Lofoten Islands. New Neptune naval patrol aircraft have gone into operation with the latest in electronic search and detection equipment.

In addition, Norwegian squadrons of new Northrop F-5 fighter-bombers will be operating increasingly this winter in and out of the most northerly of all NATO air bases at Banak, not far from the North Cape and only a half-hour flying time from Murmansk.

The Norwegian squadrons will be on constant operational move around three key air bases in the Far North — Bodø, Bardufoss near Narvik and Banak. Both Bodø and Bardufoss are equipped with underground hangars and maintenance

Ottawa Curbs Foreign Owners

Until now, the chartered banks have been the only commercial enterprises in Canada which have been restricted to a specified maximum amount of foreign ownership.

Now they are to be joined by investment companies in the loan and instalment sales business.

The order went into effect Oct. 17 when Finance Minister E. J. Benson froze the amount of non-resident ownership permitted these companies to not more than 25 per cent of the total capital stock and not more than 10 per cent to any one non-resident.

NOT PASSED

The minister said the government considers it important to preserve a significant Canadian-controlled element in enterprises that have at least 25 per cent of their total assets in the form of instalment sales contracts, loans to individuals and loans to corporations.

He said the new limitations were being introduced immediately, even though the enabling bill, the Investment Companies Act, had not been passed by the Commons. It has, however, been passed by the Senate.

The purpose of the legislation is to establish a system of government supervision of federally-incorporated companies that act as investment intermediaries through borrowing funds from the public and using a substantial portion for investment purposes.

POSSIBLE SALES

Companies which already have more than the maximum percentage of non-resident ownership will be permitted to function, but they will not be allowed to increase their present non-residential ownership.

The finance minister said the government's decision was being announced at his time to "avert possible sale of control of companies during consideration of the bill."

A NUMBER

A number of the financial companies operating in Canada are provincially incorporated and thus outside the range of the new federal act, but among those liable to be affected are Industrial Acceptance, Traders Group, General Motors Acceptance Corp., The T. Eaton Acceptance Corp., United Dominion Corp., Traders Homeplan Ltd., and Central Covenant Holdings Ltd., all of which operate under dominion certification.

RECENT SALE

The recent sale of Royal Securities to Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith does not come under the provisions of the new bill.

Finance Minister Benson said the question of sale of Canadian investment dealer and stock-broking firms to non-residents would be dealt with separately after a report by the Investment Dealers Association and the Toronto Stock Exchange had been submitted to him.

NEW USE FOR RINK

What was built some 20 years ago as a roller-skating rink and has since functioned as a food packer's plant and a stock warehouse, now is becoming the largest building supply warehouse and lumber yard in the district.

The old rink at 2955 Douglas Street is the initial home of Imperial Building Materials Ltd., of which Keith Sedgman is president and Norman Murphy sales and service manager.

"We are gradually taking over the whole building," said Mr. Sedgman, "but it will be another two months or so before the present occupants, Dowell's Cartage and Storage Ltd., finally move out to their new building in Esquimalt."

BY GROUP

Mr. Sedgman and Mr. Murphy were formerly with Moore Whittington Lumber Co. are experienced in building supply affairs and in their new venture they are backed by a group of active local contractors and other Victoria businessmen.

"This does not mean we are a co-op serving member companies. Imperial is independently staffed and operated and does business with the general public as well as for its associate firms," said Mr. Sedgman.

The building and yard are located near the Ingraham

Hotel between Douglas and Rose Streets.

ONE ASSOCIATE

One of its associates is Datatech and in conjunction with that firm's services, it is pioneering computerization of all its operations in the building supply business.

Most of the warehouse and yard now are vacated by the cartage firm, but it will not be until Dowell's move out that Imperial will be in a position to complete its office and frontage assembly.

NEONEX "WITH IT"

Preserving its image of "being with it," Neonex International has entered an agreement to get into the booming sports-utility business of the automobile on sleds.

The Vancouver conglomerate is preparing to acquire by share exchange the Quebec firm of Skiroule Ltd., which is the third largest Canadian manufacturer of the snowmobile-type vehicle. Bombardier, which makes the popular Skidoo, recently became a public company, and is the largest in the snowmobile business.

BUILDERS KEEP BUSY

Housing starts in the Victoria area were at a high level in September, according to Central Mortgage and Housing. An increase of 94.5 per cent over the corresponding month of 1968 is reported by the crown agency.

Of the 282 starts, 113 were in the city of Victoria and 94 in Oak Bay, most of them multi-dwelling units.

ASBESTOS TO COST MORE

Canadian Johns Manville, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Johns Manville, New York, has increased its price for all grades of asbestos fibre by 3 per cent as from Jan. 1. Increased costs of labor and materials is said to be the reason for the increase. Canadian Johns Manville operates the Jeffrey open pit mine at Asbestos, Quebec.

Compensation Change

Accident Numbers Will Decide Outlay

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board of British Columbia said Monday it is considering penalizing those employers who continually show poor industrial accident records.

Board Chairman Cyril White told the 13th annual provincial safety conference "the number of work injuries reported to the board is now running at a near-record high." He gave no figures.

COST TO RISE

Mr. White said the board is considering changes that could lead to higher assessments levied on such employers. Employers with good records can get assessment reductions.

"Admittedly, the economy of the province is buoyant, production is high, but this can not account entirely for the number of accidents and deaths being reported.

"Where are we failing? Either the safety message is not getting across or is not understood or is not being acted upon. . . . It may be that the board will have to utilize more fully the powers it has with respect to enforcement of safety measures if the lessening of injuries can not be brought about by education."

The chairman announced that effective Jan. 1, assessments on employers will be based on actual payroll, instead of on payroll estimates as at present. He said the current system poses difficulty to employers and tends to be unfair to seasonal operators, who could be asked for advance payment while no work was being done.

B.C. Will Enforce Trucking Safety

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney General Leslie Peterson said Monday the provincial government will crack down on the trucking industry to ensure greater highway safety.

Speaking to a conference of the British Columbia Safety Council here, Mr. Peterson said much needs to be done to increase the safety of commercial vehicles.

"I am unhappy when I hear from time to time of the inadequate equipment or possibly the way equipment is not properly maintained on commercial vehicles," he said.

Police roadside inspections have found "glaring examples" of unsafe or inadequate equipment.

"I think it is fair at this time to give warning to the trucking industry that we intend to take steps to make sure that there is a higher level of maintenance of safety equipment on commercial vehicles in the interest of highway safety."

"It seems ridiculous that air-equipped commercial vehicles, for example, should in many instances be without a positive method of applying a parking brake."

Mr. Peterson also asked the council to study bicycle equipment, such as elongated seats and high handle bars, to determine whether it is causing accidents among cyclists.

Final league matches: Friday—Victoria at Mount View; Mt. Douglas vs. Claremont at Lochside Park; Esquimalt vs. Oak Bay at Royal Athletic Park.

Victoria High Tyees made it Monday but their opponents in the Colonist Cup final won't be known until at least Friday, and the Tyees will have a big day in making the decision.

Pulling out a 2-2 draw with Mt. Douglas with two goals in the last 10 minutes of a game in which the unusual total of seven extra minutes was tacked on for injury time, Tyees clinched first place in the Inter-High School Soccer League.

ONE MATCH LEFT

The draw gave Tyees 17 points and put them out of reach of Mount View Hornets, Esquimalt Dockers and Claremont, locked in a three-way tie for second place with 14 points with only one match left for each club.

Hornets and Dockers played to a scoreless draw at Esquimalt and Oak Bay took a 6-3 decision from winless Belmont on its home field in the other Monday games.

That brought the most exciting race in years down to Friday's last games, which make a three-way tie for second place possible.

Hornets, the current cup holders, host Tyees, Claremont is at home to Mt. Douglas, and Esquimalt plays Oak Bay to complete the double round-robin schedule.

In the event of a second-place tie, the second berth in the Colonist Cup final will be decided by the difference between goals for and goals against.

Hornets have the big edge, having a plus of 30 goals, and would almost certainly get the chance to defend if they can outscore the Tyees. The first game between the clubs was a 4-4 draw.

It won't be easy, but neither Claremont nor Esquimalt is likely to have it easy either.

Oak Bay defeated Claremont, 3-2, in their first meeting and Brian Cornell's Mt. Douglas team has been tough since losing its first four starts.

After getting righted, the Mounties have lost only once, won four games and settled for draws in two games they seemed to have won. The tying goal in one game, it is claimed, was scored at least five seconds after the final whistle and Monday's draw came in the seven minutes

It was a tense, close-checking affair throughout at Esquimalt, where action was featured by an altercation about 10 minutes from time.

Esquimalt goalkeeper Mike Yeager and Wally Falconer of the Hornets were both ejected for disagreeing with what was at fault for their collision.

GOOD PROTECTION

Glen Lorimer took over for Yeager but good protection made it easy for him in his new position.

Belmont played Oak Bay even after Peter Mason scored a first-half hat-trick, his last goal coming on a spot kick, to give Bays a 3-0 lead.

Rick Sylvester got the first of his three goals to cut it to 1-3 but a Belmont back misplayed just before the half on a throw-in by David Mason and Belmont got credit for the goal which made it 4-1 at the intermission.

Gerry Spencer and Dan Lomas, with his 19th goal, scored for Bays in the second half between goals by Sylvester.

Centennials, a new entry coached by Ron Matthews, former Western Hockey League star, have five points from their six games and are in third place, one point behind the Cougars.

They completed a trip through the Interior on Sunday by losing, 6-5, in Vernon when the Essos scored three goals within two minutes during their third period.

TOUGH SCHEDULE

Tonight's game will be the fourth in five nights for the Mainland club.

In Sunday's other game, Kamloops Rockets completed a weekend sweep on the coast and moved into first place by defeating New Westminster Royals, 6-4.

Still winless after five games, Royals couldn't cope with rugged forechecking after taking a 1-0 first-period lead although they were tied at 4-4 after seven minutes of play in the third period.

TIE BROKEN

Ernie Wurmlinger broke the tie at 7:02 and Mary Ferg got the clinching goal by picking up an errant pass made by Grant Williams during a New Westminster power play.

Williams scored two of the New Westminster goals.

Imperials Win

Al's Imperials blanked Empress Paint, 7-0, while Saanich Wings edged Ingham Buckaroos, 4-3, Monday in Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League play at Memorial Arena.

New York Has Giant Love-In As Mets Outdraw Astronauts

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York, often described as a city of disunity and racial tension, held a giant love-in Monday for its victorious Mets baseball team that included a heroes' parade up Broadway bigger than that of the astronauts.

A blizzard of ticketape and confetti blanketed the Mets motorcade as it moved from the Battery up the canyons of lower Broadway to an official reception at City Hall.

Time and again fans burst through police lines to smother the winners of the world series with hugs, kisses and floral wreaths. Later at a rally in Bryant Park at 42nd Street and Sixth Avenue, 10,000 persons joined entertainer Pearl Bailey in singing Take Me Out to the Ball Game and What the World Needs Now is Love, Sweet Love.

"If it can be done with a ball team, it can be done every day," said Miss Bailey. "The Mets have given this city a great unity, a great love, a togetherness that I have never seen."

A bearded black man waggled a sign reading, The Mets No. 1 Soul Brothers, and a young girl held another sign aloft reading, The Mets have What The Country Lacks—Unity!

The crowds were predominantly young and included many Negroes. City greeter John S. Palmer estimated that they were bigger than those who greeted the lunar astronauts in August, especially in the financial district. More than 5,000 persons jammed City Hall Park to see the Amazons.

Mayor John V. Lindsay greeted manager Gil Hodges and his team on the steps of City Hall with Mrs. Joan Whitney Payson, majority owner of the team, beside him. Lindsay called them "a team that never gave up, that worked together — and because they believed, they could go all the way."

NUMBER ONE

"For eight years, New York has loved a ball team that wasn't always easy to love," he said. "But today, it's all changed. Because today they're number one."

Mets board chairman Donald Grant presented City Council President Francis X. Smith with the rubber from the pitching mound autographed by pitchers Jerry Koosman, Tom Seaver and Gary Gentry. Lindsay gave Hodges the city's Bronze Medal and street sign for his home street in Brooklyn reading Gil Hodges Place.

DAY COMPLETED

Official Mets Day was completed with a reception at the mayor's residence, Gracie Mansion, a motorcade to the old World's Fair grounds in Flushing Meadows Park for a rally with songs by all the Mets, poetry by third baseman Ed Charles and fireworks.

The final celebration was at Shea Stadium where the Mets took bows with the New York jets, world professional football champions, then watched them beat the Houston Oilers.

Symons was last year's outstanding player.

Nielsen was top Canadian in 1968.

Reed, runner-up to Symons last year, won the award in 1965.

McQuarries was top lineman in 1967.

FIRST TIME

For the first time, two linemen are in the running for the title of outstanding player—John Lagrone, defensive tackle with Edmonton, and Mirmick, linebacker with Winnipeg.

The results of the second ballot, which will cut the field to six semi-finalists, will be announced Tuesday, Nov. 4, when nominators select three players from each conference.

Seattle's Pilots Seek Move to Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Seattle Pilots' board chairman confirmed Monday he has been talking with Milwaukee baseball promoters about relocating the club's American League franchise.

But Dallas-Fort Worth interests are also "very much in the picture," William R. Daley said in a telephone interview with the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"I would be happy to come to Milwaukee, if we could get permission from the American league," he said.

The situation will be assessed by league president Joe Cronin today in Chicago.

Seattle Mayor Floyd Miller asked Cronin for a meeting. Miller said he is convinced Seattle can support a major league baseball team.

Attendance at Seattle this season was 680,000. This, plus the condition of remodeled Sicks Stadium as an interim facility, make the Pilots' position shaky.

And Slade Gorton, Washington State attorney-general, said he plans "immediate legal action" to block transfer of the Pilots franchise.

Next game: Tonight (8:30 p.m.) Vancouver vs. Victoria, Memorial Arena.

Defeat won't be disastrous but victory could be significant for Victoria Cougars tonight at Memorial Arena.

The defending B.C. Junior Hockey League champions tangle for the first time with Vancouver Centennials and, barring a tie, will either be sharing the lead or in third place when the action is over.

"What happens tomorrow could tell us a lot about the season," coach Doug Anderson said Monday.

Anderson's hopes for two points went up a bit with the likelihood that holdover left-winger Shayne Webster will be able to play after missing two games with bruised ribs.

Webster's return, Anderson feels, will make a more potent combination out of the line which has Lon Miles at centre and Scott Munro at right wing.

Another lineup change will have Robbie Little centre for Bruce Cowick and Ted Plow with Chris Riddell moving in between John Kwasney and Greg Robinson.

DEFENCE

Randy Bock and Gerry Bond and Murray Kennett and Laurie Moore will be the defence combinations. Geoff Ward will be in goal. The extra player will be forward Don Blyth.

Centennials, a new entry coached by Ron Matthews, former Western Hockey League star, have five points from their six games and are in third place, one point behind the Cougars.

They completed a trip through the Interior on Sunday by losing, 6-5, in Vernon when the Essos scored three goals within two minutes during their third period.

TOUGH SCHEDULE

Tonight's game will be the fourth in five nights for the Mainland club.

In Sunday's other game, Kamloops Rockets completed a weekend sweep on the coast and moved into first place by defeating New Westminster Royals, 6-4.

Still winless after five games, Royals couldn't cope with rugged forechecking after taking a 1-0 first-period lead although they were tied at 4-4 after seven minutes of play in the third period.

TIE BROKEN

Ernie Wurmlinger broke the tie at 7:02 and Mary Ferg got the clinching goal by picking up an errant pass made by Grant Williams during a New Westminster power play.

Williams scored two of the New Westminster goals.

Gabriel and Morton Vying for Honors With Johnny Unitas

Craig Morton and Roman Gabriel, both six feet, four inches tall and 215 pounds, are vying to take over from Johnny Unitas as the premier quarterback in the National Football League. But the Baltimore veteran isn't conceding anything.

All three were prominent in easy victories Sunday. The calm, deliberate Gabriel masterfully efficient as always, set a club record in guiding the unbeaten Los Angeles Rams to a fifth straight victory.

NORM'S RECORD
Gabriel, who also scored twice on one-yard runs as well as throwing touchdown passes to Les Josephson and Wendell Tucker, broke Norm Van Brocklin's record of 1011 completions in a 34-21 win over Green Bay Packers. Gabriel, adding 17 in his 28 throws, now has 1018 completions for the Rams.

Drayton Sets New Record In Marathon

DEROIT (UPI) — Canadian Olympic runner Jerome Drayton set a North American record and broke the existing Olympic record by 11 seconds on Sunday when he won the Motor City marathon in 2:12 hours.

The previous North American record for the 26-mile, 385-yard run was 2:14:26.2, set in 1963 by Buddy Edelen of Colorado.

Only four marathoners have ever registered better times. Derrick Clayton of Australia has the world record time of 2:08:33. Bill Adcock of Britain is next with 2:11:17.

Ron Wallingford of Sudbury, Ont., was second Sunday — 15 minutes in arrears.

Veteran Don Maynard caught touchdown passes for 57 and 54 yards Monday night to bring New York Jets a 26-17 victory over Houston Oilers and first place in the Eastern Division of the American Football League.

Victory was the fourth in a row for the defending champions, who lost their first two games, and it came in front of a record AFL crowd of 63,841 fans at Shea Stadium.

Maynard's touchdowns, both on passes from Joe Namath, were the 80th and 81st of his AFL career, tying the league record for touchdown passes set by Art Powell.

FIVE OTHERS
Maynard also accepted five other passes for a total of 212 yards gained, best this season in the AFL.

Jim Turner provided the other 14 points for the winners, kicking the conversion each time and booting 17, 48, 45 and 21-yard field goals. Turner, who set a record of 34 field goals last season, now has 15 for his first six games this season.

On Sunday, Darlye Lamonica of the unbeaten Oakland Raiders

The 34 points was the most the Packers have yielded in a single game since 1961. They had given up only 43 in their first four games this season.

Morton, who took over this year after five seasons of sporadic service when Don Meredith retired, threw five touchdown passes in the first half as Dallas Cowboys romped to a fifth straight victory by slaughtering Philadelphia Eagles, 49-14.

The leading passer in the league, Morton missed his first pass, then completed 10 in a row. Lance Rentzel caught three of his scoring throws and Bob Hayes, playing his first game of the schedule, and Pettis Norman, each scored once on Morton's accurate throwing.

Morton played despite a right shoulder so sore that he hadn't been able to throw more than 15 yards in practice.

Meanwhile, Unitas, who missed almost all of last season with a bad throwing elbow, set a league record by making 16 consecutive completions as the Colts tore up New Orleans Saints, 30-10.

THREE SCORES
Unitas completed 20 of 28 throws for 332 yards and three touchdowns to keep the twice-beaten Colts within two games of the Rams in the Coastal Division.

Washington Redskins, producing for Vince Lombardi, overcame an 0-14 deficit before 50,352 enthralled home-town fans and got by New York Giants, 20-14, to stay a game and a half behind the Cowboys in the Capitol Division.

Joe Klapp threw three touchdown passes and Minnesota Vikings took the lead in the Central Division by knocking off St. Louis Cardinals, 27-10.

Next game: Tonight — Pittsburgh at Oakland.

Gordie Howe, closer to 42 years old than 41 and playing his 24th National Hockey League season, may be doing it from memory but he is still scoring often.

He got his third goal in four games Sunday night, clinching a 4-2 victory in typical fashion for Detroit Red Wings with his 800th goal against NHL competition.

Howe, who scored 83 goals in the last two seasons, now has 735 goals from 1546 league games plus 65 from 150 playoff games.

STEALS PUCK

He was on the ice as a penalty killer when he scored Sunday. St. Louis Blues were trying to get a rush organized inside their zone when Howe stole the puck and quickly slid it by Jacques Plante.

Victory moved Wings into a second-place tie in the East Division with Montreal Canadiens, who had a lot of trouble with goalkeeper Bernie Parent and had to settle for a 1-1 tie with Philadelphia Flyers.

Moving to the top of the division Sunday were Boston Bruins, who got a second successive shutout from Gerry Cheevers in handing Pittsburgh Penguins their first defeat, 4-0.

Goalkeeper Al Smith, particularly good in a 15-for-16 first period, held Penguins in the game until the third period.

In New York, Toronto's Bruce Gamble stopped 45 of 46 shots in a brilliant display of goalkeeping but what he needed was perfection. Maple Leafs, who managed only 17 shots, couldn't get one of them past Ed Giacomin and lost, 0-1.

In Sunday's other game, Chicago's winless Black Hawks were beaten for the fifth time. Minnesota North Stars did it by 4-1 to move into a first-place tie with St. Louis in the West Division.

Knudson Collapses Then Wins

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Canadian George Knudson, gulping salt tablets and drinking glucose water after collapsing from heat exhaustion one-third through the final round, overcame a slump to win by two strokes the $22,400 Wills' Masters tournament Sunday.

The 32-year-old Knudson shot a final-round 72 to finish the tournament with a 13-under-par 279 and two strokes ahead of Australians Peter Thomson and Bob Stanton, who led for the first two rounds but fell away to finish with a 73.

The temperature was in the low 70s for the start of the last round but Knudson was wearing a heavy cardigan. He collapsed at the sixth and a doctor and nurse gave him oxygen.
After a short rest he drank glucose and salt tablets and Professional Golf Association director Bob Wilson held an umbrella over him as he played the next six holes.

Billy Casper shared ninth place with 289 after returning a 71. His final nine of four-under-par 32 included four birdies.
The best round of the day was a 66 by Randall Vines, a young Australian who picked up seven birdies.

Interest Ceiling Raised On Credit Union Loans

The provincial government has lifted the 1 per cent per month interest ceiling on loans by credit unions to ease the pressure caused by inflation.

Rod Glen, first vice-president of the B.C. Credit Union League, praised the government for removing the ceiling, but called the move "a permissive thing, to be used only when necessity indicates."

He said most credit unions would avoid increasing their interest rates right away. "I'm glad the government did it, but we're not going to abuse it," he said.

Mr. Glen added that the league was "not able to act until the position is clear under the Federal Small Loans Act, which governs certain loans up to $1,500."

The B.C. cabinet order, made public Monday, said the new interest rates would be permitted to match those under federal legislation for loans up to $1,500.

The order said interest on other loans would be up to 1 1/2 per cent per month on the unpaid balance of the principal amount of that loan for the month.

Premier Bennett, who urged the federal government last Friday to remove the 5 per cent ceiling on chartered bank loans to fight inflation, told reporters Monday that if Ottawa acted on his suggestion, the province would restore the 1 per cent per month ceiling on credit union loans.

Borderline Attraction Still Alive

Leafy refuge in midst of traffic in 1700 block Newton Street on Victoria-Saanich border will stay to gladden hearts of young tree-climbers, tree-watchers and nature-lovers, not to mention assorted autohobies, towhees and juncos. More practical-minded, who don't like trees in mid-street, may be disappointed, but you can't please everybody. — (William E. John)

Rates Going Up At Two Stores

Two more major department stores — Eaton's and The Bay — have announced plans to increase interest rates on credit charges early next year.

In some instances, the increase will be as high as 50 per cent.

Similar decisions were reached earlier by Woodward's and Simpsons-Sears.

Spokesmen for Eaton's and The Bay Monday blamed higher cost of borrowing money and administering accounts.

Not all customers with charge accounts will feel the effect of the change. This will be dictated by the size of the balance owing.

Reg. Hind, manager of Eaton's, explained:

For some years, the store has been charging 1 1/2 per cent interest per month on balances not exceeding $300, and 1 per cent per month on anything over $300. Now the 1 1/2 per cent will be charged on the first $500 and 1 per cent on anything over $500.

Mr. Hind said $1 would be the limit of increase per month on any account, regardless of the size of the account.

While the present interest rate at The Bay scales gradually from 1 1/2 per cent to 1 per cent, the effect will be the same as that at Eaton's, a spokesman for The Bay said.

The new rates will come into effect at Eaton's in February and at The Bay on March 25.

'Beyond Help at 13'

Opting-Out from School Comes Earlier

The child who doesn't seem to fit into the conventional education system could be beyond help by the time he reaches the age of 13.

And there are too many like him today—youngsters "opting out" of school at an alarmingly young age.

This is the conclusion drawn by Betty Bryant, Family and Children's Service supervisor in Victoria.

She told a child development course Monday night at the Institute of Adult Studies: "I am rapidly coming to the conclusion—and this is my own opinion—that at the age of 13, it is too late to help these children. Too late to make it possible for the parents to help."

In an interview afterward, she said, "If the parents haven't learned to help the child by the time the child is 13, they never will learn."

During her address she said "all hell breaks loose" when children 12, 13 and 14 become "absolutely turned off" in the school system.

Educators stress the need for a minimum of Grade 12 education today, but it seems impossible to get the "turned-off" group as far as Grade 10, Mrs. Bryant said.

The children often seem to come from families burdened with poverty, alcoholism, drug addiction or mental illness, she said. Parents under the type of pressure that leaves them little time to spend constructively with their youngsters.

Mrs. Bryant said she felt the children needed help when they were still at the pre-school level. She said there is a need for more day-care centres.

There is also reason for much concern about the emotionally disturbed children, Mrs. Bryant said.

She also said the teaching of normal subjects all day at school might not be the proper approach where such children were concerned.

"I don't see why we can't put them on a bus and take them out of town."

"Maybe if they can't do arithmetic, they can count the different kinds of trees, or study the different kinds of shells."

Mrs. Bryant's address was the third in a series of six weekly sessions sponsored jointly by the adult education division, Greater Victoria school board, Greater Victoria Teachers' Association and the Foster Parents' Association of the Family and Children's Service.

'Only Business Benefits'

Barrett Blasts Appeal, Fund Chief Cries Foul

NDP House leader David Barrett attacked United Appeal drives Monday as an "annual charade" which permitted governments and big business to escape their full responsibility for welfare services.

"What a sham, what a mockery, what a 16th-century attitude towards services," said Mr. Barrett, who told reporters he was speaking both as a politician and a professional social worker.

Victoria United Appeal chairman Peter Darling said Monday night that the MLA's comments would do "untold harm" to the campaign.

The NDP spokesman said the 70 agencies in the United Community Services appeal on the Lower Mainland contained "duplication of services that any half-witted idiot can observe without any further surveys."

He also attacked pre-Christmas charity fund drives using "pathetic stories to wrench tears of guilt from readers," but which immediately after the holiday season relegated the recipients of charity once more to their "forgotten welfare roles."

On the subject of united appeals, Mr. Barrett said, "The people who benefit most from this public charity are our corporate citizens, whose companies which loan executives to this annual charade, in the knowledge that by getting involved they will avoid greater corporate financial responsibility through taxation."

Mr. Barrett's attack came when he was asked to comment on an announcement earlier Monday by Welfare Minister Don Campbell of the formation of a Greater Vancouver Area Citizens' Congress on Welfare. The announcement said the group had the authority to study and analyse existing social betterment schemes and recommend "practical and necessary" changes in public and private welfare programs.

Mr. Barrett said he would not be surprised if the first recommendation of the new congress was for the appointment of a royal commission to advise the inter-department committee set up three to four years ago to advise the minister on this question.

"If the minister wants the job done, why doesn't he get going?" the NDP spokesman said. "If he would only take the trouble to find out, all sorts of research has been done on this question by professional social workers. The answers are already available. Everyone knows the direction we should be going, with the exception of the minister."

Mr. Darling said the attack on United Appeals was "uncalled-for" and "misleading."

Referring to Mr. Barrett's allegation that services were duplicated, Mr. Darling said great care was taken to avoid this, and any duplication was kept to a minimum in both Victoria and Vancouver.

Barrett

Darling

He noted that Mr. Barrett said "any half-witted idiot" could see these duplications, and retorted, "I'm delighted that Mr. Barrett was able to see them."

"Mr. Barrett is still suffering pangs from the losses of the NDP at the recent election," Mr. Darling said. "He seems very bitter about that."

"What he is attempting to do is causing untold harm" at a time when money is being gathered.

"This is what he by profession (social worker) would be presumed to know. I've known him since he was a little wet-nosed kid—I hope he one day grows up."

Mr. Barrett said the NDP had advocated for some time the establishment of centres offering a broad range of social services located on a geographic basis in place of the multiplicity of existing private and public agencies.

By acting the way he had, Mr. Barrett said, Mr. Campbell had proved "he is the biggest boondoggle-chaser since the carpetbaggers hit the southern United States."

The "fantastic" increase in the province's total social assistance bill for the fiscal year ending last March 31, Mr. Barrett added, with no increase in social assistance rates over this period, indicated a sharp growth in the number of welfare cases, although the government had kept the total secret.

'Youth-Besotted Society'

Discriminatory Taxes Infuriate Oldsters

By NANCY BROWN

Old people are not going to endure discriminatory taxation to underwrite and finance dropouts in a "youth-besotted society," Charlotte Whitton, who holds a doctorate of law, told members of the Canadian Club here Monday.

"Hundreds of thousands of people who have lived out a lifetime in Canada are getting angrier and angrier every day as their anxiety increases as to how the Canadian cookie seems to be crumbling," she said.

"They face discrimination in a work-to-age rule; in being scuffed off and they have their substance diverted by discriminatory taxation to underwrite and finance dropouts for whom they are being made into put-outs," said Dr. Whitton.

She said pensioners were subject to taxation while members of the Company of Young Canadians received a tax-free honorarium of $300 to $225 a month for up to 24 months, with a possible six-month extension.

She said a $50 monthly bank deposit was also made to CYC members, for them to draw at the end of their time.

"The oldsters are not going to endure increasing discrimination as not being with it or being squares," she said.

"Their part-time employment is going up and they are annoyed and angry as the substance of their taxation is being applied to student loans to the extent of two out of every five students on the Canadian university campuses in 1969."

"Is Canada not rather in one awful tailspin of a yaw, caught up in some strange DTs as to the very content of her own national structure and being?" she asked.

"We have been so dumb before the repetition of the fallacy that we accept as essential fact that one-half of the population of Canada is under 25 years of age."

"Canada's 21,000,000 population just does not break into any two simple and effective divisions."

The half of the population under 25, she said, was not an effective block of active citizenship upon which responsibilities can be firmly and safely laid.

Of these under 25, 6,500,000 are under 14, and another 400,000 are 15.

The teenagers and youth, she said, made up an effective youth sector of only 3,200,000 from 16 to 24 years of age.

Dr. Whitton said 43 per cent of Canadians were between 25 and 64, while the remaining 8 per cent — 1,600,000 — were over 65.

"These oldsters," she said, "have a lifetime of living and performance behind them as against a similar length of years yet to be lived and only a promise to this country."

"And where it most counts, in the belts from the ballot, age power is becoming voter power — and they do vote — one in every seven or eight federal electors in 1968 was an oldster."

The aged and aging have served Canada and are as entitled to priority in their claim upon this country's resources as "youth in their phantasmagoria with their work not yet begun," she said.

"These oldsters are not has-beens, out of joint with the last decades of the century they have served," said Dr. Whitton.

Oak Bay, Police Meet Only to Try Again

Oak Bay police and the municipality's police commission met for two hours Monday night and have scheduled another meeting for next Monday in an effort to resolve the police pay dispute.

If successful, the move would eliminate the need for compulsory arbitration. The case has been scheduled to go before B.C. Mediation Commission Nov. 4.

Sgt. Jack Groves, president of the 17-member Oak Bay Police Association, said there was nothing to report on the outcome of the first meeting.

Women Seek Co-ordination

The Catholic Women's League, the United Church Women and the Anglican Women's Auxiliary met recently to discuss ways of co-ordinating the work of the three groups. The meeting was the first in a series of occasional sessions including the three groups.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's mother is a chronic shoplifter. It is a known fact in our family that she stole the statuette on the coffee table from Sears and the lamp from Montgomery Ward. Last year she walked out of Polk Brothers with a vacuum cleaner.

My wife and her sister do not shoplift but they see nothing wrong in Mama's shoplifting. Last year my mother-in-law asked my wife and her sister what they wanted for Christmas. They both wanted automatic electric toasters so Mama went out and stole a couple.

I got mad over this and we had a big argument. My wife explained that her mother was raised during the depression when nobody had any money. Whatever people wanted they stole. She never got out of the habit. My wife insists that since it was part of her early training it is not immoral. Please comment.—Leslie The Debate.

Mama Is Amoral

Dear L. D.: Your mother-in-law is not immoral. She is amoral. This means she has no conscience, no concern for right or wrong. If she is caught, she will not be invited to debate ethics or talk about the depression. She will be booked like any other thief. Your wife, by accepting gifts which she knows are stolen, condones her mother's criminal behavior. You must not allow it.

Dear Ann Landers: For generations our family has collected Americana. I inherited from my great-grandmother an American flag with the regulation stripes

Any Better Version?

If any reader has a better version, please let me know.

Dear Ann Landers: My son is in his late 20s. When Boyd was 19 he was to be married but his fiancée was killed in an accident three days before the wedding. He never got over it.

Boyd has cut himself off from all his old friends. He has a good job and makes a nice living but he's like a different person. Yesterday Boyd told me he is taking a larger apartment because he needs more room. An 18-year-old boy is moving in with him.

A Lovelier You

Dress as You Please

By MARY SUE MILLER

A girl writes: I could not be more uptight about skirt lengths. I saw a mid dress that I rather like. But, if I buy it, I will have to get a covering coat. Should it be a mini or maxi?

Deep down I'm really a mini girl. But I don't want to get caught with a lot of new mini clothes when hemlines seem to be on the way down. What to do?

The answer: This is the year that will be remembered as the time when you could dress as you please. Put together with finesse, everything goes. Fabrics, colors and lengths seem to be products of a cake mixer.

What comes out depends on the hand that feeds the mixer. Getting with an educated mix is worth study. It has nothing to do with maxims like "you can't wear velvet with tweeds." Because you can, knowing how.

Now to tackle the length question. Maxi coats look great over pants and over skirts of every length, both day and evening. Midi coats, and they come on strong, groove with skirts of the same length and shorter; for sporty midi coats and neat pants the signal is Go.

But no fashion edict states that mini fans have to give up. Not yet! Designers play the waiting game. They want to know what you want to wear. What is it? Maybe, like the chemise, the mini will keep turning up. Just because you want.

I caught the tail end of one of my husband's lectures to the children the other night on "Who Took The Phone Message I Didn't Get." I have heard it before. It is one of his better efforts in which he explains what a pencil is, tells of the humiliation he suffers at the office and ends up with excerpts from President Truman's famous "Give 'Em Hell" speech.

It is likely the children are married and have a phone of their own. Sometimes when I am feeling over-satirical about it, I can imagine how history might have been altered had a youngster been on the line taking messages. "Anyone call today?" asks General Eisenhower. "Oh yes," answers his son,

Retirement Rule Not Automatic

OTTAWA (CP)—A government memorandum to senior officials made public Monday makes clear that "it is not intended that all employees over age 60 be automatically retired."

The memorandum, issued by the treasury board, which represents the government in collective bargaining, said that reports of the policy to be followed in current economy staff reductions "may have created an inaccurate impression" as they relate to employees aged 60 or older.

Existing superannuation legislation provides for retirement without appeal by such persons at either their own request or that of their employer. The earlier board memorandum on reductions simply pointed this out, as well as directing officials to review their need of casual employees. The memo says: "Departments should take into account, as they have in the past, other factors in addition to age."

"Consideration should be given to employees' pension status and personal circumstances as well as to departmental operational requirements."

Battle of Britain Premiere

U.S.-Canada Reception Set

Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson attended North American premiere showing of The Battle of Britain in the Vogue Theatre Monday. Wing. Cmdr. T. J. MacKinnon was the side-deck.

Wednesday the Nicholsons will give a reception at Government House for the members of the Canada-United States Chamber of Commerce.

It had to happen. Sooner or later. Wonder is that someone hasn't started something like this before now.

I'm talking about the new special health plan at the Harrison Hotel which they claim is going to be to British Columbia what the Golden Door is to California. If you haven't heard about the Golden Door maybe you should stop reading this about now.

But this is what they say about the deal in their own words.

"The new look for the '70s is going to be the natural look. It will show a woman's figure up for the shape it is really in."

"To be ready for the '70s — they're only a little over two months away — four satisfying, exciting glorious health weeks are being offered at The Harrison Hotel at Harrison Hot Springs.

"For ladies only."

"It will be the 'in' place to go for a week of finding the new 'you'."

"The dates are Nov. 2 to 7; Dec. 7 to 12; Jan. 18 to 23 and Feb. 22 to 27."

"The health weeks combine a holiday, an opportunity to get away from it all along with a special course in personal fulfillment and a complete health treatment. All are designed to fit today's women into the beautiful people pattern."

"With the return to the natural figure, bra-less, girdle-less, with underpinnings that are a mere body stocking to flow over smooth curves, the time has come for the bulges to go. The week will start off on a planned program for keeping the woman in shape, physically and mentally."

"Activity will centre in The Harrison's new health pavilion. Here, guests will have daily health treatments, swim in the hot springs pools, enjoy Roman and swirl baths and take part in daily exercise sessions."

"Guests will have a room in the new Tower, special diet controlled meals, beauty care instruction and courses designed for creative expression."

"The Health Week advisory staff includes Mrs. Beth Wood, former mayor of New Westminster, as co-ordinator and Mrs. Kay Mair as diet consultant. Guest lecturers will include Vancouver based interior decorator Earle A. Morrison and investment counselor Gary B. Sutherland of Pemberton Securities.

"One of the most stimulat-

ing courses on which participants will be able to build, and carry out through the rest of their lives, will be the daily lectures and demonstrations on Yoga by Karen Zebroff."

"Having practised the 'inner you' concept, guests will be offered courses in beauty care instruction to complete their full physical potential. There will be new fashion ideas and training in the tricks that the professionals use for those head-turning looks."

"There is more to beauty than the physical. Doing things such as painting, creating jewelry, flower arranging, interior decorating, will also form part of the week."

"The health week is designed for fun and fulfillment. Just five days away from it all. A kind of retreat with a purpose."

I noticed in the accompanying pamphlet that there are also courses in ceramics and gift wrapping."

There you have it — all for $245.

Also have a letter from managing director of the hotel, Max Nargel, saying: "We do hope you'll come and be a charter graduate of what we hope will become a Northwest tradition."

But I seriously doubt that five days would be long enough to undo — my bulges.

Dr. J. G. Dillane, Dominion Council president of the United Empire Loyalists in Canada, was honored recently at a sherry party given by the Victoria branch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McLeod, 2376 Oak Bay Avenue.

Dr. Dillane spoke briefly pointing out that the objectives of the association are to "preserve the history and traditions of that important epoch in Canadian history, by rescuing from oblivion the history of the Loyalist families before it is too late; and to perpetuate their spirit of loyalty to the empire."

The Victoria Branch has about 40 members who meet four or five times a year to hear good speakers or for social gatherings. They also present a small Canadian history prize in high schools.

Mrs. C. B. Fisher is president; Mrs. G. Aitkens, secretary and Mrs. V. Rossiter, publicity.

The Hadassah bazaar, one of the most popular events, is coming up Wednesday in the Fellowship Hall at 932 Balmoral, between Quadra and Vancouver streets.

It opens at 11 and usually there is a big crowd for lunch. This year on the menu will be sweet and sour cabbage meat balls or cabbage rolls with fluffy rice; corned beef sandwiches on rye bread with home made dill pickles; blintzes and cheesecake with sour cream and strawberries.

The bake table will be laden with a yeast dough, breads, coffee cakes, squares, cheese cakes and apple cakes, to name a few. This table is always a fast sell-out. Dill pickles, corned beef, canned goods and fruit will be among the foods offered at the delicatessen.

There will be good used clothing in the French room and handicrafts will hold the centre of the floor. Tea will be served in the afternoon.

Mrs. A. Klenman and Mrs. B. Caine are the conveners this year.

Fashions in Fun Furs Turning to Furniture

By MARIAN CHRISTY

NEW YORK — Jacques Kaplan is a strange breed of designer.

Offbeat furs are his forte and fame, and he conducts a multimillion-dollar business from an upper-crust Fifth Avenue salon with the brand of charisma that has magnetized Mrs. George Plimpton to help manage his affairs and Wyatt Cooper, Gloria Vanderbilt's husband, to design eight men's fur coats just for the fun of it.

It's that sizzling Jacques Kaplan personality around which his success revolves.

The 44-year-old designer is a graduate of Saint Cyr, the French equivalent of West Point. So coolness and rugged discipline are bywords. On the other hand, he is a dreamer and philosopher knowledgeable on contemporary subjects.

Jacques' son is a recent graduate of Harvard Divinity School, and parties in the upstate New York hideaway are a clever mix of religiously inclined youth and social register Establishment types, like the John Hay Whitehays.

The Kaplan house is typically Kaplan. Everything in it is fur. Couches are covered with Persian lamb, rugs with zebra. Paintings are Kaplan's own fur-collages recently on exhibit at Waddell Gallery.

And, instead of chairs, Kaplan has a lot of fox-covered mattresses strewn around so that guests can lie around and talk.

Socialite customers who have seen Kaplan's house have been begging for fur furniture to take home. Kenton Corp. — the giant conglomerate that owns Cartier's and Kenneth Jay Lane — recently bought the Kaplan business. Jacques has a pile of money with which to play. And has he played! In three weeks he'll present a show of fur-covered furniture to the public.

The designer's major claim to fame is that he pioneered the use of weird furs in high fashion and gave them lasting prestige. At first competitors laughed and some even publicly said they were glad he was foolish enough to put his head on the block.

The current collection, for example, features a long evening cape from which 2,000 ermine tails bounce. The patchwork quilt evening skirt is made from raccoon, skunk and Spanish wildcat. Midi costumes are fashioned from rabbit stencilled to look like zebra.

On his move toward unique furs: "I became bored to death with nice furs for nice old ladies. About the same time I noticed that the hippies were raiding thrift shops for old-fashioned furs in the $5 to $40 range. Hippies weren't trembling and shaking like my customers who couldn't decide the shade of mink and length of coat. Hippies were having fun and the rich were suffering."

Jacques pumped fun into fur — hence the term, fun furs.

Zodiac Notes Studied

New Killing in Bay Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police said Monday the taunting notes written by the Zodiac killer of five persons may lead to his capture.

Authorities disclosed they were checking the handwriting on the notes against the signatures on a list of permits for purchase of a rare make of pistol used in two of the slayings.

The gun was a 9-millimeter pistol, and police disclosed only 143 such weapons have been sold in San Francisco over the past three years.

Every application for such a weapon was being checked against the handwriting of the taunting notes signed The Zodiac, which have been sent to newspapers and police, boasting of the killings.

Walt Ihle, a technician in the police crime laboratory, said the gun has "a terrible impact quality." He said it is between 32 calibre and 38-calibre in size, but has a greater muzzle velocity than either.

Twenty-seven law enforcement officers from seven state and local agencies held a closed door meeting to go over the evidence in the five slayings.

"We've been exploring what we know, discussing it, asking questions," said Capt. Martin Lee of the San Francisco department. "I have learned many things that I didn't know and I think the others have too. I think we're all much stronger for it."

While the hunt for the killer went on, the San Francisco Bay area was shaken by the savage stabbing death of a two-year-old girl, apparently by a different slayer.

The girl's throat was cut and her body slashed and punctured by more than a dozen knife wounds. Detectives said the little blonde apparently was not sexually attacked.

Santa Clara County sheriff's deputies said there was no apparent link between her death and the five Zodiac killings here and in the North Bay region.

Florida Suits Charge Mafia Links

MIAMI (UPI) — Florida Attorney-General Earl Faircloth, hoping to stir up a "barrel of legal snakes" for the underworld, filed suits Monday to revoke the charters of 19 Miami Beach motels and two businesses he claimed were infiltrated by the Mafia.

The lawsuits, the first of their kind filed in the United States, also seek to enjoin the persons running these businesses from doing any other business in Florida.

"These 21 suits are merely the opening shot in a war against the Mafia in Florida," said the white-haired Faircloth, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

"Based on information we have received during the preparation of these cases, I can say there will be other cases filed in Dade and Broward (Fort Lauderdale) counties within the near future," he said. Faircloth said he expects to file similar actions against businesses in Tampa within a few months.

"I suspect we will create a barrel of legal snakes for operators of these businesses," Faircloth said. "I feel certain this will be challenged all the way to the United States Supreme Court."

"If the law is ultimately ruled unconstitutional, then we had better change the Constitution," he added.

The motels named in the suit were:

The Singapore Motel, the Aztec Motel, the Kimberly Motel, the Del Ray Motel, the Neptune Motel, the Windward Resort Motel, the Desert Inn Motel, Three Red Lion motor inns, the Hawaiian Inn, the Hawaiian Isle Resort Motel, the Sun Ray Motel, the Suez Motel, the Sahara Resort Motel, the Golden Nugget Motel, the Ocean Shore Motel, the Healthwood Resort Motel and the Chateau Resort Motel.

Also named in the suits were the Bonfire Restaurant, a well-known steak house, and the J & B Auto Wreckers Inc., which Faircloth said houses the Multiple Sports News Service.

Faircloth filed the suits under a 1969 Florida law that allows the attorney-general to seek revocation of the state corporate charters of businesses that are associated with organized crime.

Pelletier Rushes Provincial Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier told provincial education officials Monday he will present their suggestions concerning educational television to the Commons as quickly as possible.

"A priority to me is that the whole realm of educational broadcasting be re-examined. . . . There will be very little delay in bringing the matter to the attention of the House of Commons."

Pelletier met the executive of the council of ministers of education through most of Monday morning to solicit their views on educational TV.

HIS OFFICE

His office declined to specify the proposals made by the provincial authorities.

"It's just one in a series of meetings and the results will be made public in the Commons," a spokesman for Pelletier said.

W. W. Meldrum, New Brunswick education minister, led the delegation made up of: Jean-Marie Morin, Quebec minister without portfolio; William Davis, Ontario education minister; Robert Clark, Alberta education minister, and Donald Brothers, B.C. education minister.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Strand, president of Simon Fraser University, said Monday he has told eight suspended professors they face dismissal hearings in 14 days.

A DELEGATE

Letters to the eight from Dr. Strand asked them to appoint a delegate to the dismissal board. The university will appoint its own representative and a chairman will be selected by them, or in case of disagreement, by the chief justice of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Each of the eight may appoint a lawyer to appear before the three-man board, which is to investigate the reasons for their suspension and decide whether they should be dismissed.

ON FULL PAY

The eight still are on full pay and have use of their offices and library facilities on campus, although they cannot teach.

Separate hearings by the SFU board of governors will also begin at the end of the month at the request of the suspended faculty members.

Three investigators appointed by the Canadian Association of University Teachers now are on campus for an informal inquiry into problems in the PSA department.

TWO CANCELLED

TWO CANCELLED
Meanwhile, picketing of classes in English, history, modern languages, education and philosophy continued Monday and two classes in archaeology were cancelled after disruption by students supporting the suspended professors.

The eight facing hearings are:

Associate professors Dr. Kathleen Aberie, Dr. Nathan Popkin and Dr. John Leggett, and assistant professors Dr. David Potter, Prudence Wheeldon, Mordecai Briemberg, Louis Feldhammer and Saghir Ahmad.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.
(Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Revised and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon fat, sausages and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startlingly successful diet including suggested menus can be obtained by sending $2 to WEIGHT-AWAY, Dept. 1-43, 1138 Main St., Winnipeg 4, Manitoba.

BOBBY BACK GUARANTEE.

If after trying the diet you have not lost 7 pounds in the first seven days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days, and 1½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth. Diet plan also available in French.

Authentic Planes Outshine Actors

By BILL THOMAS

In the summer months of 1940, a group of young pilots flying from fields in the South of England tackled the might of Goering's Luftwaffe and shot the Germans out of the sky to win the Battle of Britain.

This most decisive victory has now been made into a film by director Guy Hamilton, and it seems it will play the Odeon Theatre for a long time.

It is very difficult to comment on the film in an objective manner because most Britons and Canadians will feel a personal involvement with the events of that crucial summer.

AUTHENTIC PLANES

The Battle of Britain is not an ordinary film that carries some message, but rather a dramatized documentary, with the powerful story telling itself.

To guarantee authenticity, the producers scoured the world for old planes. More than 100 Spitfires, Hurricanes, Messerschmitts and Heinkels were assembled, and many more mock-ups built for ground use.

The effect of the air battles is stunning. The planes were flown by members of the Spanish air force, as most of the dogfights were fought for the camera over Spain.

The film concentrates on the actual battle and the tactical problems of coping with the huge air armada coming across the Channel, and not much time is spent on the internal conflict that took place between Churchill and his air force advisers.

The Battle of Britain was a battle of youth. Many of the British pilots had as little as 15 hours' training when they took on the Germans.

MECHANICAL EVENT

If the film has any failing, it must be that the director assumed his audience would know a great deal about the events which led up to his David-and-Goliath event. The Battle of Britain seems like a mechanical event in many ways from the screen version.

Despite a cast composed of the best actors in Britain, including Trevor Howard, Sir Laurence Olivier, Sir Michael Redgrave and Michael Caine little use is made of their acting talents and they finish second-best behind the vintage planes.

The accent in the film Battle of Britain has been placed almost entirely in the air, but it would have been interesting to have been shown more of what went on behind the scenes.

Still, it was a remarkable victory and it was exciting to see how it happened close up.

Most of us remember it as a series of smoke and vapor trails in the sky, or nights of terror in the shelters.

LATE MESSAGE

Perhaps the film has a message after all. Technical adviser Wing Cmdr. Robert Stanford-Tuck, RAF, met Gen. Adolf Galland, his German counterpart, for a quiet drink and a session of nostalgia when they were working on the film. If it had been possible to resolve their problems this way 30 years ago, Germany and Britain would have saved hundreds of young men.

The Battle of Britain is a documentary of victory and well worth seeing, but it is also a film filled with sadness.

Unexpected Career

Wide Travel Leads To Chinese Painting

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

When Miss Theo Grever drove up to my house in a taxi a few weeks ago and introduced herself as an exponent of Chinese painting, I immediately asked her to come in.

I found her to be a staggering person. She told me her story. And when one meets her and hears it from her own lips one senses that it has been a question of sheer dogged determination to realize her ambition to become a devotee of Chinese painting in the traditional Chinese manner.

Of Scottish parentage, she was brought to Vancouver as a young girl. In later years she found practical outlet in the oil-drilling business in Alberta and started her business career in the salmon exporting business, then as registrar of a school of accountancy.

Later she worked her way through New Zealand and Australia, designing batiks. Before returning to Canada to become the first woman to drill oil wells, and since then through leasing of properties and other business ventures, she has travelled the world over.

But five years ago she decided to return to her first love, painting, and went to Hong Kong to study with the master of contemporary Chinese painting, Professor Chao.

Recently I have received a letter from her from a hotel in Hong Kong where she has her studio, overlooking the harbor.

She is one of the most interesting people I have ever met, charged with vitality. I am looking forward to her return, which should be quite soon now.

Symphony Concert

Pianist Displays Drama

By BILL THOMAS

Victoria Symphony patrons at the Royal Theatre were treated to a most interesting performance of the Liszt piano concerto in A Major on Sunday afternoon.

Polish-born pianist Witold Malcuzyński took what I have come to regard as a pretty, rather than profound, concerto and infused it with dramatic quality.

Malcuzyński played as I have not heard him play in a long time. His usual style on previous visits here could be described as one of aloof precision. On Sunday afternoon he apparently abandoned all caution and attacked the concerto in such a way as to give it color and profundity that had escaped me before.

Despite Malcuzyński's great talent and interpretive ability, it would be grossly unfair to give him all the credit for this satisfying performance.

VITAL QUALITY

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Laszlo Gatt provided the vital quality essential to complete this effective partnership. Principal cellist James Hunter provided a delightful tone and satisfying control in his solo passages.

The short piece, Esquise, by French-Canadian composer Francois Morel was interesting but rather pointless. It sounds as if it might be used by either the National or the Royal Winnipeg Ballet companies for one of those bits of cavorting around that they seem so fond of when making up tour programs.

Esquise leans rather heavily on the darker end of the tonal-color spectrum, producing a melancholy effect from the violas, cellos, flutes and bassoons. Mr. Gatt renders a valuable service in presenting these contemporary Canadian works.

I must confess a dislike of tone poems, and I didn't find the Debussy Nuages at Fettes particularly satisfying. This was in no way the fault of the orchestra, which played the music with sensitivity and eloquence.

The excerpts from Stravinsky's Firebird offered the orchestra an opportunity to show off, and it took full advantage of it. It played with vigor and enthusiasm and the results were most enjoyable.

The same was true for the opening offering of Beethoven's Egmont Overture.

In capsule, it was one of the most enjoyable afternoons in a long time.

At the risk of belaboring a point, I must repeat that I still find the sound coming from the upper portion of the piano keyboard unpleasant. It may be that I am not used to its "bright tone," but I can take consolation in the fact that I am not alone in feeling this way.

Mr. Malcuzyński will appear in recital at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the McPherson Playhouse, offering a program of works by Liszt and Chopin. This program will be recorded by the CBC and broadcast at a date to be announced.

BBC Steps In To Blast Pit

WALDRIDGE, England (CP)

The state-run National Coal Board planned to demolish the disused coal mine here, but the BBC stepped in and stopped the operation at the last minute—so it could blow up the pit instead. The explosion will be the high spot of BBC's most ambitious location drama broadcast, a five-part serial based on Emile Zola's novel Germinal, about socialist revolution in 19th-century France.

Producer Quits Most Popular Show

BURBANK, Calif. — Paul Keyes, producer and head writer on the most popular TV show, Laugh-In, is reported to have quit. He was quoted as saying he left because the show is "slanted and vulgar, dirty," but the Los Angeles Times said Keyes, an eager Nixon campaigner and supporter, was under pressure from the White House to put a halt to the show's sniping at the president.

LOS ANGELES — A court-approved settlement gave $27,000 each to the five children of actress Jayne Mansfield, plus $110,000 more to the widow of her attorney-companion Samuel Brody. Both died in a 1967 crash involving a car owned by nightclub owner Gus Shaveles, who will pay the money.

MOSCOW — John Diefenbaker, who returns home today from a week-long private visit to Russia, came back from a weekend visit to the Soviet Ukrainian capital of Kiev to urge an easing of Soviet travel curbs so more Ukrainians can visit relatives in Canada.

QUEBEC — Jean Lesage, retiring head of the Quebec Liberal party, said he will not accept any post with the federal government or sit in any future provincial cabinet after he steps down next January.

MONTREAL — Police recaptured Andre Bonami, one of nine men who escaped last Thursday from a Bordeaux jail van. Three remain at large.

HONOLULU — Lead guitarist Paul Kantner of the rock group Jefferson Airplane, was arrested on a charge of narcotics possession and freed on $100 bond.

LOS ANGELES — Singer Nat Cole's widow, Maria, married Gary Devere, a television producer.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said he would not withdraw the Supreme Court nomination of Clement Haynsworth even if the controversial judge requested it.

LONDON — Soviet spy Peter Kroger was reported released from a British prison as part of an exchange deal in which Russia released British lecturer Gerald Brooke last July.

LOS ANGELES — Superior Court Judge Jerry Packard ruled University of California regents could not fire UCLA assistant philosophy professor Angela Davis simply because she is a communist. A higher-court appeal is likely.

Evening with Lightfoot Runs Emotional Gamut

By BILL THOMAS

It may sound a bit melancholy at times but it's pure gold to Gordon Lightfoot. The Canadian singer filled the McPherson Playhouse for his concert Monday night and it's a sellout tonight as well.

He sings of frustrated love, the horrors of war and people who have trouble finding themselves, but Mr. Lightfoot does it all superbly well.

The singer's recent trips to Nashville seem to have intensified his country sound to the point where he sounds downright Grand Old Opry. This is great with me but it is interesting that the sophisticated who would have shunned this sound five years ago now yell for more. They get it large gobs.

The musicianship is professional in the ultimate and if the chord progressions seem to have a faint similarity after a while I suppose that can be excused.

What I do take exception to is the lyrics to a few of the songs. They seem quite pointless and lacking in significance.

Mr. Lightfoot undertakes a formidable task when he does an entire evening's work as a soloist. It is startling that he can hold an audience for so long and so well.

The show got a few extra cheers from delegates to the Colombo Plan meetings who were guests for the evening. More delegates will be on hand tonight for the second show.

Mr. Lightfoot is an extremely talented composer and musician who, despite some small reservations, is continuing to develop and expand his style. He gets better each hearing and I look forward to his next visit.

DULUTH — Phillip Close, 20, of Houston, waived extradition and will be taken to Winnipeg to face a non-capital murder charge in the death of Glen Heeps, 17, of Vancouver. Heeps was beaten to death, apparently with an elephant hook, on a circus train.

SAN FRANCISCO — The county board of supervisors voted 8-3 to rescind approval for Texas tycoon Lamar Hunt to turn abandoned Alcatraz prison into a "space museum" and will seek additional ideas.

Supreme Court Told:

Friend Intoxicated, Accused Took Wheel

A Victoria man charged with criminal negligence causing death said Monday in Supreme Court that the only reason he was driving the car on the evening in question was because his friend was intoxicated.

"I had never driven a car with automatic transmission before," he said.

Ralph Dale Gardner, 21, of 1325 Miles, was charged with criminal negligence in the operation of a motor car causing the death of Brian Modeste of 1077 Modeste.

VICTIM PASSENGER

Modeste was a passenger in the car when it collided with another car in the 1000 block Esquimalt Road at 1:14 a.m. August 13.

Gardner told Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton and a 12-man jury that a friend named Mike came to his house the night before the accident.

He and Mike went to his friend's house later in the evening where they had three drinks, Gardner told court. He said Mike was already very intoxicated. When they left, he (Gardner) got behind the wheel, he said.

FIRST TIME

"Mike sat beside me in the passenger seat and told me how to operate the car. It started with a jerk because I had never handled a car with automatic transmission before."

While driving west on Esquimalt Road, Gardner said, he was stopped by Modeste, who wanted a lift.

Modeste got into the back seat, and Gardner "drove on down the road."

"OUT OF NOWHERE"

He told court that a motorcyclist "seemed to come out of nowhere," forcing him to swerve in an effort to avoid hitting him.

"Soon after that, we collided

Champagne at 600 miles an hour. In-flight movies. Computerized reservations. Et cetera, et cetera.

All in all, the airlines put on a pretty impressive show. And a very efficient one.

Since Avis believes that renting a car is the second half of your plane trip, we see no reason why you shouldn't expect just as good a show from us.

So we train all of our girls the way airlines train their stewardesses. (They even go to a special training school.)

We staff our locations with top notch ground crews. (They keep our shiny new Plymouths shiny. Inside and out.)

We have a reservation service with an around-the-world network. (You make one phone call. We do the rest.)

But maybe most important, we never stop looking for new ways to improve our act.

Stop by and catch it next time you land. It's a continuous performance.

Take right off again with Avis.

Crown Sovereignty UpheldIndians Lose Suit On Title to Land

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Nishga Indians of northern British Columbia Monday lost their B.C. Supreme Court quest for a ruling that they, and not the white man, are rightful owners of 1,000 square miles of land. Their aboriginal title, Mr. Justice J. G. Gould held, was lost legally in 1866 when the colony of Vancouver Island united with the colony of British Columbia and British Columbia later joined the Dominion of Canada. He said a royal proclamation by King George III in 1763 on recognition of Indian lands did not cover the Nishga property because their tract was not then known to the crown.

The judge said crown sovereignty over the Nishga territory came by exploration of "Terra Incognita" and the fact that there was never any acknowledgement of any aboriginal rights.

The suit was launched against the attorney-general of British Columbia by MLA Frank Calder, head of the Nishga tribal council, and by 31 other Nishga Indians.

They represented four bands which comprise the ancient Nishga nation: The Gitlakdamix Indian band, the Canyon City Indian band, the Greenville Indian band and the Kincolith Indian band. The territory lies on the B.C. Mainland north of Prince Rupert, touching the southern limit of the Alaskan Panhandle.

Duplex Zoning Approved

After hearing protests from about 10 Esquimalt residents, Esquimalt council Monday night passed a bylaw zoning Shearwater Street between Porter and Aldebury for six duplexes.

At a public hearing before the regular council meeting, single-family dwellers living across the street from the proposed construction site expressed fears that property values would go down if the duplexes were allowed.

Some thought that multiple-family dwellings were not kept up like their own single-family units.

Syringes Stolen From Doctors

A break-in at the Medical-Dental Centre at 3040 Shelbourne early Saturday netted a thief a number of plastic syringes.

The door of a small refrigerator containing perishable medication was also found open, but nothing else was reported missing.

Parking Space Bylaw

Oak Bay council withheld final approval Monday night from a zoning bylaw that would have forced apartment developers to supply 1½ parking spaces for each apartment unit, following a public hearing in which developers objected to the change.

"Such an amendment could easily affect the economics of this type of development to the point where apartment construction in Oak Bay would diminish," warned R. P. McAdams of Pacific Park Apartments Ltd.

Ald. Frances Elford suggested council consider establishing condominium housing on the municipally-owned property bounded by Poul Bay Road, Cadboro Bay Road, Granite Street and Elgin Road. Such housing would initially be used to accommodate persons displaced from the area by redevelopment.

UBC Alumni Gathering

The University of British Columbia Alumni Association will hold its annual reunion Friday and Saturday on the Point Grey campus.

A new attraction of the annual homecoming event will be Memory Lane, a photographic exhibit telling the story of UBC from 1919 to 1969. The exhibit will be on display in the Student Union Building art gallery.

Saccharin Probe Started For 'Public Protection'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fresh from banning the commercial use of cyclamates, the government Monday ordered an investigation into the safety of saccharin, another widely used artificial sweetener.

Dr. Herbert Ley, commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, announced the investigation. He said it would begin immediately because of the recent controversy over the subsequent banning of cyclamates.

Saccharin, about 500 times sweeter than sugar when diluted, is a favorite artificial sweetener of diabetics and also is popular among weight-watchers. Its use has been limited by the bitter after-taste it leaves in the mouth of some users. Joshua Zetman, assistant commissioner of the FDA, said, "There are not the kinds of findings that have been reported in cyclamates (but) we think we ought to look into it (saccharin) very thoroughly just to make sure the public is protected."

He said saccharin has not been investigated as thoroughly as cyclamates.

New Substitutes Sought in U.S.

From UPI

U.S. manufacturers are busy unveiling plans for new saccharin base and other sugar substitutes to replace cyclamates in foods and beverages. Some other nations announced plans to ban the use of cyclamates.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Robert Finch announced the ban on cyclamates in Washington Saturday. Since then Denmark and Sweden have placed similar bans on the sugar substitutes.

The restrictions in the Scandinavian countries cited the new action and came about through joint meetings of health authorities and manufacturers. The Finnish food commission in Helsinki called a meeting to discuss similar action today, and Great Britain has asked for more new data on cyclamates.

Finch's Saturday statement noted cyclamates may serve as a catalyst for cancer growth in test animals. He stressed no immediate danger existed but ordered all food and drink containing the chemical off store shelves by Jan. 1, 1970.

The Danish manufacturers have agreed to exclude cyclamates from their foods and chief medical officer Mrs. Esther Amundsen said she has started an investigation to determine the validity of the analysis.

Nixon Proposes Softening Of Drug Possession Counts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration proposed Monday to reduce to a misdemeanor the crime of simple possession of narcotics and dangerous drugs regardless of the drug involved.

The offense now is a felony with consequent higher penalties.

Reversing a previous stand, the administration suggested that a more flexible penalty structure is needed in order to "make the punishment fit the person involved" and the crime.

More realistic penalties should lead to better law enforcement, it said.

Testifying before the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, John E. Ingersoll, director of the justice department's bureau of narcotics and dangerous drugs, proposed that federal laws draw a distinction between narcotics users and traffickers.

He proposed that in all cases possession with intent to sell remain a felony and "possession for one's own use, regardless of the drug involved," be made a misdemeanor.

PENALTIES SPECIFIED

Under the present law, a first offense for simple possession of either hard narcotics or marijuana calls for maximum penalties of a $20,000 fine and two to 10 years' imprisonment.

The administration's proposals would lower the maximum fine to $5,000 and provide for a sentence of up to one year's imprisonment.

For second offences, the maximum fine would go to $10,000 and the offender could be given a sentence of up to two years, compared with a five to 20-year term under the present law.

Ingersoll also outlined other changes, including a provision to require "a special parole term" for persons convicted on charges of trafficking.

Recognizing widespread disagreement on the dangers of marijuana, Ingersoll said his department believes there is need for more knowledge on its effects and endorses a proposal by Senator Thomas J. Dodd, (Dem. Conn.) for a study into marijuana usage.

Europe Cheaper For Groups On Air Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada, following other commercial carriers, will drastically reduce certain group fares on transatlantic flights effective Dec. 1, it was announced Monday.

Under terms of a new tariff package filed with the Canadian transport commission, rates will drop for groups of 50 or more persons travelling from anywhere in Canada to the 10 European cities served by the airline.

$165 RETURN

A sample new rate will be $165 return for any person travelling in a group of 150 or more between Montreal and London during the winter season. In the peak summer season, it will cost $204. This compares with $274, the lowest excursion fare at present.

In fact, passengers leaving from Montreal in groups of 150 or more will be able to fly to London, Paris, Frankfurt, Copenhagen or Brussels for less than they can fly to Calgary.

Air Canada President J. R. Baldwin said the rate package is designed for persons who want group rates but do not belong to a club. Travel agents will organize the groups to travel on a scheduled flight—but once the group reaches its destination, it disbands.

RETURN ON SAME FLIGHT

After a stay of 14 days to one year, members of the group meet and return home on the same flight. This eliminates the need for club membership and any requirement to arrange ground transportation, accommodation or meals through a group.

Alitalia and Canadian Pacific recently announced they would reduce Montreal-Rome fares for the winter period only. As this was the first break in a transatlantic tariff system previously endorsed by all members of the International Air Transport Association, it was expected IATA would meet and decide upon new rate structures, presumably lower than before.

JUMBO JETS

However, Baldwin said there is no sign IATA members will be able to agree on satisfactory tariffs, so Air Canada has decided to act unilaterally. Air Canada will put three 365-seat Boeing 747 jumbo jets into service in 1971. This is also a motivating factor in the decision to slash prices, Baldwin said.

It would be necessary to sell 90 per cent of the seats on every flight to make the new plan pay. But Baldwin said it is expected most pleasure traffic will switch to group travel to take advantage of lower rates.

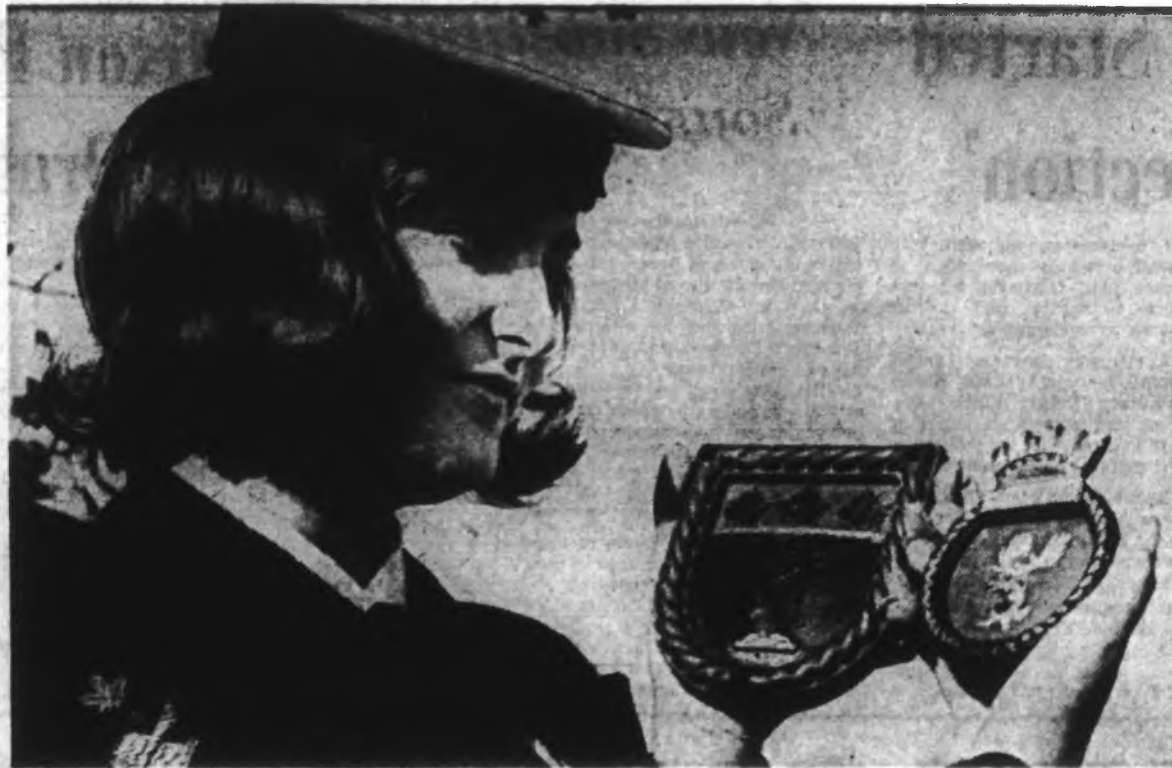

BOAC SEEKS CHANGES

John Gorman, Canadian manager for British Overseas Airways, said BOAC has filed two fare applications with the Canadian, British and United States governments. One is geared to individual winter travel with a minimum stay of 23 days for $267 from Montreal or $310 from Toronto to any point in Britain.

A series of fares for so-called affinity groups, clubs with members of more than 50 persons will set a minimum price of $135 from Montreal and $178 from Toronto.

INDIVIDUAL FARE

"We have proposed to our colleague members of IATA that there should be a Contract Individual Fare, available outside the peak season, at about $220 or $225 from Montreal or Toronto to London," Gorman said.

Garbagemen Settle For Less

LONDON (CP) — The big silver-colored garbage trucks were back on most London streets Monday, scooping up the rotting heaps of refuse that in three strike-bound weeks have made parts of the British capital smell like a medieval slum.

Militant dustmen, who demanded an increase of £5 on their £15 basic wage, and vowed they wouldn't go back for less, generally settled for half that sum in all but five of London's 32 boroughs. Many were earning overtime clearing the accumulated garbage.

Rebels were still holding out in Hackney, the east-end borough where the unofficial strike started nearly a month ago, to sweep like wildfire through the rest of Greater London and engulf other ill-paid municipal workers such as sewer men and lavatory attendants.

First HMCS Fraser

Museum Gets Ship's Badge

A bronze ship's badge from the first HMCS Fraser will soon go to the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa, courtesy of Fraser survivor Harry Leggett.

The 2½-pound crest is considered rare — possibly the only one of its kind — by L. F. Murray, curator of the museum.

It is a memento of a tragic paragraph in Canadian naval history, the collision sinking of HMCS Fraser in the Bay of Biscay on June 25, 1940.

Mr. Leggett, of 848 Lyall Street in Esquimalt, survived the sinking and then the ramming and sinking of another destroyer, the Margaree, four months later.

The day the Colonist published Mr. Leggett's story last month, he was called by an Esquimalt resident who gave him the badge from the Fraser.

The man, who asked to remain anonymous, said the badge had been "liberated" from the Fraser some time before its sinking.

The Colonist forwarded a description of the badge to the Canadian War Museum.

Mr. Murray replied: "It is in all probability the original pre-1939 design, the shape of the shield following the Royal Navy custom for destroyers..."

"Should Mr. Leggett see fit, the Canadian War Museum would be very interested to acquire this specimen."

Mr. Leggett said last week: "It doesn't really belong to any one person. It wouldn't be right to keep it for myself."

14 Charges

Escaped Five In Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Five men who escaped from a prison last Thursday and were recaptured within hours were arraigned in criminal court Monday on 14 charges arising from the escape.

The five, Richard Blas, 24, Denis Thoun, 31, Michel Kelly, 20, Michel Bergeron, 18, and Michel Marion, 28, were remanded without bail until an Oct. 27 preliminary hearing.

The charges are conspiracy, escaping from a jail van, attempted murder of a guard, attempted murder of a city policeman, car theft and theft of a revolver from a jail guard.

STILL AT LARGE

Four other escapees, Andre Bonami, 31, Rene Ferland, 25, Gilles Gingras, 23, and Roger Marceau, 36, remained at large. An anonymous phone tip that the four were hiding in a north-end apartment building resulted in a police search of the building Monday and the discovery of a marijuana cache.

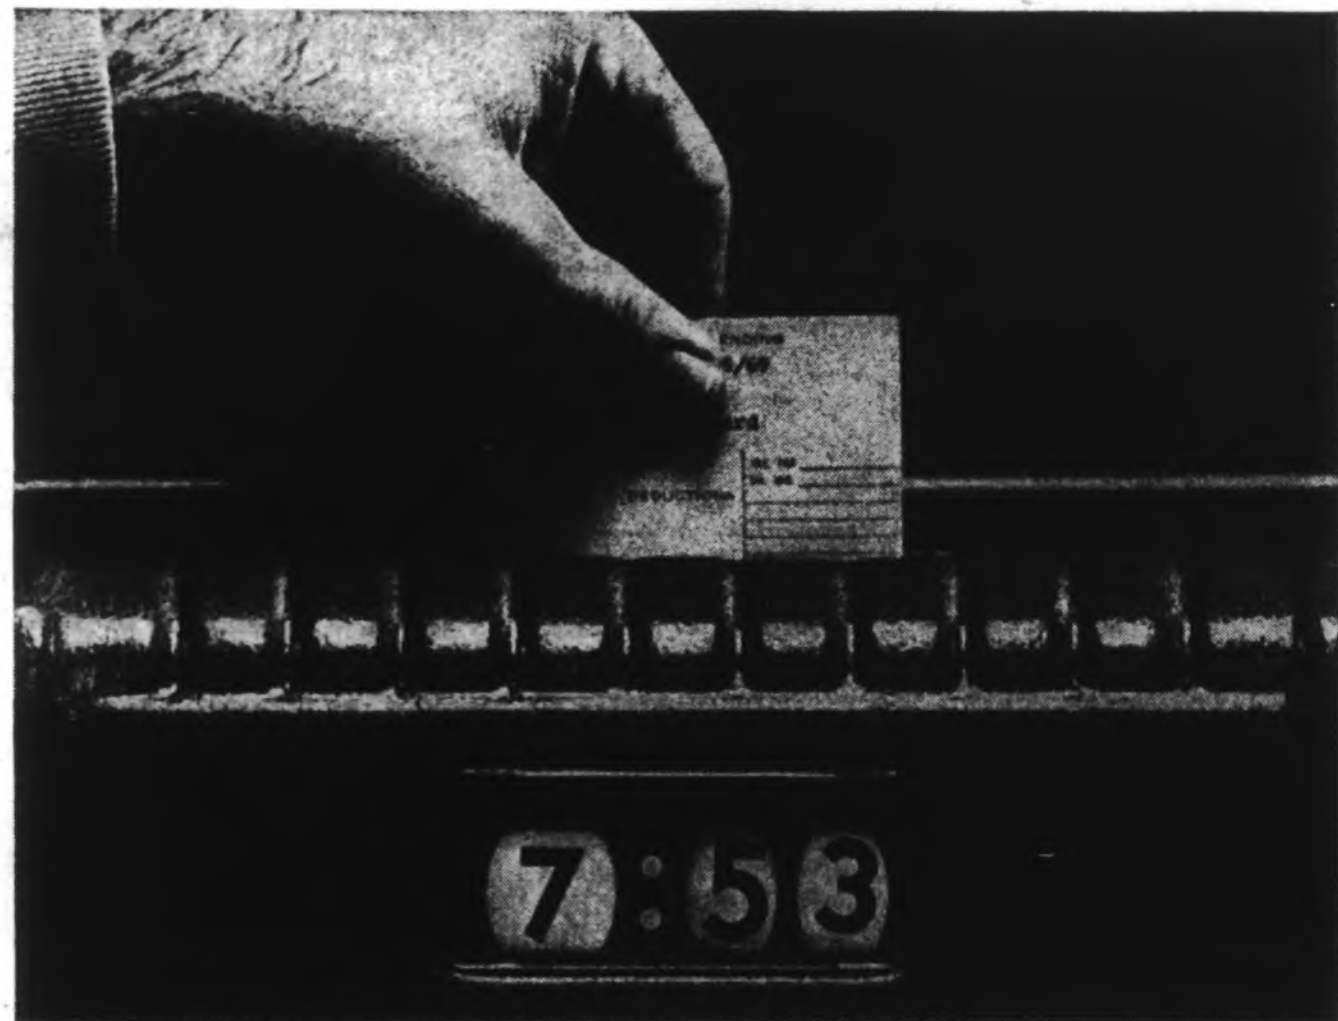

A tenant of the building and two companions were arrested in connection with the drug seizure.

Firm Seeks B.C. Coal

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Morrison-Knudson Co. Inc. announced Monday formation of a subsidiary to enter coal mining in British Columbia.

President B. L. Perkins said Emkay Canada Natural Resources Ltd., a wholly-owned Morrison-Knudson subsidiary, has purchased 50 per cent interest in extensive coal properties in the Elk River Valley area. The purchase was made from Scurry-Rainbow Oil Ltd. of Calgary.

Collective bargaining is a lot like a finely oiled piece of machinery. It can run along smoothly for years, without any notice, but just let it break down once and everybody hears about it.

For example take those disputes last year which requested Federal assistance. Of the 165 labour-management disputes that called for Federal Department of Labour conciliation and mediation, 157 were settled before they resulted in strike action and without loss of production or pay. A little basic arithmetic shows that Federal initiative was successful in 19 out of every 20 disputes the Department entered. Incidentally, those 157 cases, settled without a strike, involved 155,128 workers. And that's a lot of people kept off the streets.

In light of this, and since $35 other Federal union contracts were settled without assistance we think it's fair to say that collective bargaining really does work. In fact collective bargaining is the best way known for labour and management to solve their differences in a free society.

No one ever really wins a strike or lockout. Labour loses wages. Management loses profits. Sometimes our whole economy suffers. A strike or lockout is nothing more than a costly failure in communication.

So, next time you read of a work stoppage within Federal Labour jurisdiction, remember, for that one, 125 contracts were settled without breakdown. Not a bad batting average when you add it all up.

But we believe it should be even better; through early mediation and continuous labour-management communication. It can be done. It is being done.

That's part of what we're all about.

J. D. Love, Deputy Minister

Canada Department of Labour

Kopechne Hearing Begins

Clear Case of Drowning Says Medical Examiner

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)

A medical examiner Monday backed up a contention that blood was present in the nose of Mary Jo Kopechne when her body was recovered from Senator Edward Kennedy's car on an island off the Massachusetts coast in July, but said his presence is common in drowning victims.

Dr. Donald Mills, associate medical examiner of Dukes County, Mass., who originally ruled death was due to drowning, said he saw "at least one little cobweb of blood which clearly came from the edge of the nostril."

"It was obviously a clear case of drowning," Mills testified as a Pennsylvania court hearing opened here on a petition by District Attorney Edmund Dinis of New Bedford, Mass., to have Miss Kopechne's body exhumed. Dinis maintains he needs an autopsy for an inquest he has scheduled into the 28-year-old woman's death in Massachusetts.

Dinis had based his petition largely on a claim that he had evidence showing that blood was present in Miss Kopechne's nose and mouth and on her clothing when the body was recovered.

Mills did not perform an autopsy before making his ruling.

IN SUPPORT

Dominick Arena, police chief of Edgartown, Mass., testified earlier in the hearing that he saw no blood or signs of injuries on the body.

In support of his verdict of death by drowning, Mills said: "Inside the chest one could hear a swishing as water came out when she was turned on her side, which is characteristic of drowning. There was foam and more water slopped out of the side of her mouth."

Mills said his examination took 10 minutes.

"She had no evidence of injuries on her body, such as bruises, cuts, broken bones," he said.

TIME FIXED

Mills said he arrived at the scene of the accident on Chappaquiddick Island off the Massachusetts coast about 9:30 a.m. July 19, or about half an hour after Miss Kopechne's body was recovered by a skindiver.

Mills said he fixed the time of her death at about six hours or more before his examination.

Asked about the lack of an autopsy, Mills said that when he turned the body over to an undertaker, he directed that it not be embalmed until he gave further instructions.

"I wanted to talk to the district attorney to determine whether an autopsy should be done," Mills said.

SMALL AMOUNT

The medical examiner said he called Dinis' office and was told to obtain a blood sample for alcohol content. He said the test showed there was .009 per cent alcohol, less than 5 per cent carbon dioxide and a negative showing for barbiturates.

Asked under cross-examination what significance he placed on the test, Mills replied:

"That this girl had had a small amount to drink. The carbon monoxide showed that she may have smoked a cigarette or inhaled some car fumes."

FOR HIMSELF

Joseph Flanagan, lawyer for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopechne of Berkeley Heights, N.J., the girl's parents who objected to an autopsy, questioned Mills on what inquiries he had made about an autopsy.

Flanagan produced what he said was a memorandum Mills had prepared for himself about a week after the accident.

Mills then said he remembered that Dinis had called him on July 22 and asked him about the blood sample.

"Did you at that time discuss the question of an autopsy?" Flanagan asked.

Mills replied:

"I think the only time that we ever discussed an autopsy was one conversation I had with Mr. Dinis in which he said, 'Mills, you're quite sure of your diagnosis of death by drowning?'"

"My answer was, 'I certainly am.'"

"Then Dinis said, 'I don't think an autopsy is necessary. Do you?'" And I answered, 'No, I don't.'"

Mills said that conversation took place on Thursday, July 24, or thereabouts.

In response to a question by Fernandes, Mills said he "requested that an autopsy be considered because of the circumstances of the case."

Another witness, Christopher Look Jr., a Dukes County, Massachusetts deputy sheriff, testified that he had seen Kennedy's automobile about an hour after the time Kennedy had said the vehicle had gone off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island off the Massachusetts coast and overturned in a pond.

Look said he was on the scene when the car was removed from the pond.

"The instant I saw the registration, I went to a police officer and told him that's the same car I had seen previously the night before at approximately 12:45 a.m., on Chappaquiddick Road," Look said.

Unlicensed Driver Gets Three Months

A 19-year-old youth who "gambled his freedom" by driving without a valid licence lost the game Monday and was sentenced to three months in jail.

James A. van Welter of Dawson Creek pleaded guilty in Victoria Provincial Court to a charge of driving while his licence was suspended.

Court was told van Welter had two previous convictions for the same offence.

"You seem to be a man who likes to gamble his freedom," Judge William Oetler said.

"I hope you realize that if you gamble against such odds, you must be prepared to lose."

Van Welter told court he was driving his car from Dawson Creek to Victoria, where he intended to store it until he got his licence back.

He was stopped by police Sunday night on Dallas Road.

"This is your third conviction for this offence this year," said Judge Oetler.

"Why do you deliberately flirt with a prison term?"

Van Welter didn't answer.

"Why do you live in this fashion?" Judge Oetler asked the young man who had pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy.

"Because it makes me happy," the man replied.

Gary Pethybridge, 20, of Winnipeg, told court that he was now living in Vancouver.

Smiling through his beard, he told Judge Oetler that he had tried the "life of the establishment" but had found that it didn't make him happy.

'REAL HAPPINESS'

"Now I'm closer to real happiness than I've ever been before," Pethybridge said.

Judge Oetler reminded him that the feeling of happiness wouldn't last forever.

"You're a happy-looking chap. I admit, and you certainly are intelligent. You must know that you can't live this life forever," he said.

Paintings Stolen

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Paintings worth $800,000 were stolen from the home of Vincenzo Polli, vice-president of the Bank of America and Italy, police reported. Polli and his wife are currently travelling in the United States.

Police said the stolen paintings include works by such great Renaissance masters as El Greco, Giotto and Canaletto.

'Force Not Visiting'

Briton's Arrest Ruled Illegal

VANCOUVER (CP) — A B.C. Supreme Court judge Monday ruled illegal the arrest of a man picked up as a British army deserter and ordered him released from military custody.

Anthony George Hewitt, 24, who came to Canada in May for training with the Royal Green Jackets, was arrested earlier this month by Canadian military police at Chilliwack. Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre ruled illegal the arrest under the Visiting Forces Act, on grounds the British army unit had left Canada and therefore could not exercise authority against him here.

Hewitt, now engaged to a Vancouver girl, did not leave with the Green Jackets when they returned to England in June after training at Wainwright, Alta. He went to the U.S., then came back to Canada.

Norman Mullins, representing the attorney-general of Canada, contended Hewitt was detained legally after a request for his arrest, and the arrest of other deserters, from the unit's commanding officer. He said Hewitt is still a member of the British army and that constitutes being a member of a visiting force.

The judge ruled the force is no longer visiting so the act does not apply.

Sugar Cost Rises —Wholesale

VANCOUVER (CP) — The wholesale price of sugar Monday increased 30 cents a hundredweight, but major food retailers here said no increase in retail price was immediately planned.

A spokesman for B.C. Sugar Refining Co. said the increase to 38.45 a hundredweight might be only temporary.

Forgery Ring Cracked

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police said Monday they arrested Nicholas Pilipenko, 19, of nearby Clarkson last Friday in connection with a forgery ring that has passed $1,700,000 in forged cheques from Vancouver to Halifax since last January.

Police said Pilipenko has been charged with conspiracy to commit forgery, possession of instruments of forgery and possession of revenue papers after a raid by provincial and Toronto police on a west-end printing shop.

Police said they found plates which could be used to print Ontario and Manitoba birth certificates, social insurance cards and other government documents.

They said they found about 500 perfect facsimiles of birth and baptismal certificates and Ontario health services insurance cards which could be used as identification to cash forged cheques.

Blacks Form Coalition

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates from 28 Negro organizations Sunday formed the National Black Coalition and called for a royal commission of inquiry into racism in Canada.

The delegates elected Dr. Howard McCurdy, a biology professor at the University of Windsor, Ont., as president.

Fifteen other Negro organizations represented at the conference refused to join. The meeting was closed to white reporters. Among the organizations joining the coalition were associations from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and British Columbia, as well as Ontario.

Massacre Suspect Ruled Mentally Fit

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — A triadictory remarks made under the influence of pentothal, of homicidal fantasies directed against the RCMP by the accused and of his troubled family background.

"I brought the axe up. I tried my damndest to stop. I couldn't stop."

Dr. Coburn said McCallum told him in the interview in February, conducted without drugs, that when in jail at Prince Albert in 1966 on a minor

The trial, before the all-white all-male jury, in Saskatchewan Court of Queen's Bench, continues.

The judge had ordered that the question of fitness for trial be answered by the jury before the case continued. The surprise development came after testimony by a psychiatrist that the accused showed signs of schizophrenia.

Dr. Frank Coburn of Saskatoon, the first witness called by the defence, told the court he interviewed McCallum in February and suspected the youth might be suffering from the mental illness.

He said he interviewed the accused March 18 for two hours while McCallum was under the influence of pentothal, a drug "sometimes referred to inaccurately I must add—as truth serum."

"It isn't a truth serum," Dr. Coburn said. "Pentothal inhibits the creation of 'new falsifications' but a person under its influence can still adhere to false ideas that he formed previously."

McCallum of Buffalo Narrows has pleaded not guilty to the assassination of Thomas Pederson, 32, of Buffalo Narrows and of J. B. Herman, 48, of La Loche, Sask., a guest in the Pederson home at the time of the slayings.

RCMP found the bodies of Pederson, Herman and four Pederson children ranging in age from eight to two years Jan. 30 in the Pedersons' blood-spattered five-room home in Buffalo Narrows, a community of about 700 275 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Bernadette Pederson, 32, mother of the slain children, died in hospital a few hours later. A son, Fred Donald, survived.

3 YOU CAN TRAVEL WITH A CHARGEX CARD
Use it to get you to other countries, and use it when you get there. Wherever you see the familiar blue, white and gold symbol you know that your Chargex card is welcome. Even when the identifying name is different. In the United States, the name is BankAmericard. In Great Britain, Ireland, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad, Tobago, Malta, South Africa and Gibraltar it's Barclaycard. In Japan, the name is Sumitomo Card. And in Mexico, your Chargex card is welcome where you see the name Bancomer Card. They all identify credit cards backed by some of the world's greatest banks, just like your Chargex card.

4 YOU MAY NEED CASH IN AN EMERGENCY
Whether the emergency arises at home or while you are a visitor in another country, your Chargex card will help. Just present your Chargex card at any bank displaying the familiar blue, white and gold symbol. They'll see you get the cash you need.

8 YOU CAN DO YOUR BANKING ANYWHERE
Your Chargex card is backed by four progressive

Canadian banks, but you don't need to have an account with any of them. You can enjoy the convenience of a Chargex card no matter where you bank.

9 YOU WRITE ONE CHEQUE FOR EVERYTHING
You are sent one monthly statement for everything you buy with your Chargex card, and write just one cheque to pay for all your purchases. That can save you a lot of valuable time, and save you money on the cheques you write too.

10 A CHARGEX CARD HELPS YOU BUDGET
There is a sensible limit to the amount you can spend with your Chargex card. Quite a help when it comes to keeping the family budget in shape.

11 CONVENIENCE OF EXTENDED PAYMENTS
When you find your expenses are unusually high in one particular month, say for a new living room rug or new outfits for the children, you can stretch your payments over several months.

You may enjoy using your Chargex credit card for just some of these reasons. Or you may like all eleven reasons, and add a few of your own. If you don't have a Chargex card yet, pick up an application from any bank or merchant displaying the blue, white and gold Chargex symbol. Remember, no matter where you bank, you can enjoy the convenience of a Chargex credit card.

The Chargex credit plan is backed by The Royal Bank of Canada, The Toronto Dominion Bank, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Banque Canadienne Nationale.

But Davis Doesn't Ease Concern

Island Fisherman Catches Reply

By DON COLLINS

Victoria fisherman, Knud Larsen has received a detailed letter from Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, but it hasn't done anything to ease his concern about the rights of the individual.

"He hasn't really answered my questions to my satisfaction," Mr. Larsen said.

Mr. Larsen, fearing that government licensing restrictions posed a serious threat to the future of smalltime B.C. salmon fishermen, wrote a letter last month in which he asked Mr. Davis seven questions.

Some of the questions went beyond the licensing issue, touching on hatcheries, pollution and other subjects.

Mr. Larsen said in an interview he felt strongly about the matter because he considered it to involve much more than fishing alone.

This could threaten individual rights," he said. "If they can tell a fisherman he must do a certain amount of business each year to maintain a certain type of licence, what's to stop them from doing the same thing with people in other professions?"

He said he did not want to appear as a spokesman for the fishermen.

"I am just another fisherman. I have no special authority. But I am concerned about what is happening."

Mr. Larsen wrote his letter on Sept. 16 and by early October wondered if Mr. Davis intended to reply. When Mr. Davis' reply did come, the letter bore the date Sept. 30, although the envelope carried an Oct. 7 House of Commons stamp.

Ottawa sources have said the delay was undoubtedly due to the nature of Mr. Larsen's questions, something that required correspondence with fisheries department officials.

In his reply, Mr. Davis says a coho hatchery is planned for the Gulf of Georgia by 1971, that sports fishermen have not been responsible for the closure of some areas to commercial fishing, and that any fisherman losing a licence could use his boat for other types of commercial fishing.

"I have no intention of reducing the size of the salmon fleet to the extent you suggest," he says in his letter.

(Mr. Larsen had said he feared restrictions would reduce the number of boats carrying A class licences by one-half to two-thirds.)

"The main objective of the licence control program is to develop an economically viable fishing fleet," Mr. Davis says. "Certainly there are no plans to replace the present types of gear with traps."

He says also that his department was playing a major role in fighting pollution.

Mr. Larsen has written another letter to Mr. Davis saying how unfair he thinks it is for a government to say a fisherman or anyone else must do a certain amount of business to maintain a licence.

He asks how far the independent commercial fishermen can be pushed—whether they might take action or "just lie down and die together with democracy for independent individuals?"

Late Bloomers

One of my very good friends makes a point of sitting down to her desk every night before she goes to bed and writing up her garden diary in great detail, noting which plants have come into bloom and how they have reacted to various cultural treatments while these things are still fresh in her mind.

She can tell you which crocus, over the years, is most likely to come into bloom first; which rose stands up best in a wet summer, how her polyanthus respond to various fertilizers and which insect sprays will mar or spot the petals of her gladioli. I have often thought that this wealth of recorded experience is responsible to a great extent for her uncommonly fine garden.

occasional winter flower of calendula or snapdragon, but the kinds which can be counted on to make a worthwhile display very late in the year.

In addition to the traditionally autumn-blooming plants like the hardy chrysanthemums and the fall asters, there is a surprising number of plants which seem to be most reluctant to pack it up and call it a day.

Probably the brightest are three heathers—Calluna vulgaris H. E. Beale, pink with long spikes and a carpeting habit of growth; Calluna vulgaris hibernica, single pink and with a similar growth habit, and C. Y. Searle, an exceptionally fine white heather.

You don't often find a dianthus that works overtime — in fact, some of the older pinks are notoriously short in their season of bloom — but we have a small patch of one called Mrs. Clark which makes a brilliant splash of vivid deep cherry red well on into November.

Good luck rather than good management was responsible for our planting the charming Mrs. Clark alongside the clear blue of Gentian sino-ornata, also blooming its head off. This gentian must have taken a fancy to our soil and aspect, for we haven't had even a smell of trouble with it although it is a notoriously miffy plant in most gardens.

We boast to our friends and relatives in the less favored parts of Canada about our roses blooming in December. If we are completely honest about it, though, what we actually get is just the odd bloom here and there — seldom any kind of a real splash of color. In our garden, the best "last rose of summer" is a 25-year-old hybrid tea called Hector Deane — for my money a better rose by far than a lot of the more recent introductions.

The color of Hector Deane is interesting — a coral red flushed and striped with orange with long, pointed buds and a pleasing fragrance. The blooms do not "ball" even in the most atrocious weather and the plant performs year after year with unfailing good nature.

I don't keep any formal garden diary myself, for I don't have very systematic work habits and — let's face it — I am just too plain lazy. But for some years now I have been watching and mentally noting which flowers keep on blooming after most of the garden has packed up.

I don't mean just the odd or

ART BUCHWALD

Exodus with Honor

WASHINGTON — The Vietnam solution, as most people look at it now, is for the Americans to get out "with honor." How this can be accomplished is President Nixon's major problem and one that he is devoting his days and nights to.

Professor Heinrich Applebaum, dean of the political science department at the University of Missouri, has been studying various withdrawal plans that could be implemented as soon as the president decides to move.

"The secret of getting out of Vietnam can be found in how we got in," Professor Applebaum told me. "We just cannot leave South Vietnam after all these years without some explanation. We had a cover story when we went in and we must have a cover story when we go out."

"What kind of a cover story, professor?"

"We must plan a Gulf of Tonkin resolution in reverse."

"How's that?"

"If you recall, the Gulf of Tonkin resolution passed by the Senate gave President Johnson carte blanche to escalate American participation in the war. It was after the Gulf of Tonkin that the president decided to bomb the north and send in hundreds of thousands of G.I.s. What happened at the Gulf of Tonkin was that two American destroyers were attacked by North Vietnamese PT boats at night. This got the president furious and he decided that if the North Vietnamese were going to attack him in the Gulf of Tonkin, he damn well was going to attack them anywhere he pleased."

"There is still some question," Applebaum said, "whether the two destroyers actually saw any PT boats, but that's not the point."

"The president got Senate approval to do anything he wanted to, and he did. Now President Nixon is faced with the job of undoing most of what President Johnson did."

"What do you suggest, professor?"

"We should rig it so that four or five PT boats attack two American destroyers in San Francisco Bay. Then President Nixon could go on the air and announce that our American ships were fired upon at night and he was asking the senate for a 'Bay of San Francisco resolution.'"

"What would be in the resolution?"

"The resolution would state that since two American destroyers had been openly and defiantly attacked, the president was calling all the troops in Vietnam to California, where they would be stationed until the Californians could defend themselves. He would say that he was reluctant to bring back so many troops, but that the people who fired upon the two destroyers must be made to pay for their aggression."

"Do you think the Senate would pass a 'Bay of San Francisco resolution'?"

"They would if we produced the proof that the destroyers had been attacked. After all, the United States has a commitment to California. It was first made by Eisenhower, then confirmed by John Kennedy and then Lyndon Johnson. President Nixon could not go down in history as the first president to lose a state."

"So after the resolution was passed by the Senate, President Nixon could start pulling our troops in Vietnam out?"

"Normally the president would have no choice. No matter what you think of Governor Reagan's regime, you couldn't let California go down the drain."

"How many troops do you think President Nixon could withdraw from Vietnam and send to California under the 'Bay of San Francisco resolution'?"

"There should be a limit. I don't think more than 500,000."

"But there are only 500,000 American troops in South Vietnam."

The professor looked at me and smiled. "Quite," he said.

SHEILA GRAHAM

Dracula—by Dracula!

LONDON (NANA)—"I am going to Barcelona," said Christopher ("Dracula") Lee at Pinewood, "to play a part that has never been done before, by me or anyone else." He was enjoying my curiosity. "The story is by Bram Stoker," he continued. "The title, the title," I begged. The author's name was vaguely familiar but I couldn't quite place it. Did he write schoolboy stories? "The title," said Lee, "is Count Dracula." "But..." "I said as the author wrote it," said Chris. "This has never been done before." You could have knocked me down with a vampire.

Lee, the most sinister and the best of the actors who have played the terrifying sucker of human blood has just completed a light comedy role as Brother Mycroft Holmes in the Billy Wilder production, The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes.

Anthony Hopkins, playing a new type of secret service agent in When Eight Bells Toll assures me any resemblance to James Connery's 007 is impossible. "Bond-style sex is out," he says emphatically. "Sex maniacs don't make good spies. I've always thought that if a spy spent as much time in bed with the broods as Bond does, he wouldn't have the strength even to pull a hair trigger."

Anthony gets only one girl in the film, but she makes up in quality for the lack of quantity—luscious Nathalie Delon, ex-wife of Alain, Robert Morley is in the film and is involved in some rough action which I simply cannot envision.

Jules Dassin was on his way to see the rushes for his Promise at Dawn picture, starring his wife, Melina Mercouri. The Victorine studio at Nice, in the south of France, was unlit and Jules walked off a ledge and broke bones in both his feet, which sounds terribly painful. The Remains Gary-authored story was suspended. Shooting will resume November 3, with the director on crutches. In the old days, Jules and Melina would have taken off for Greece for his recuperation, but not with today's Greek regime.

It is unusual for the Queen to attend a film premiere unless it is a command performance. But she will be in the royal box late in November for the London charity opening of Goodbye, Mr. Chips. Star Peter O'Toole and Mrs. Chips, Patricia Clark, will be in the royal line-up, with Arthur Jacobs, the Hollywood producer. The advance word is good.

Indicts Builders

One of the strange new sights that sprung up to greet us this summer, along a road near our house in the country, was a row of "permanent" trailers set on concrete blocks.

These families, apparently despairing of ever being able to afford a conventional house, had simply bought large "mobile homes" and immobilized them on small tracts of land. Upon inquiry, I found this was an increasingly popular device for the less affluent.

This condition bespeaks not so much the indigence of these families—for, obviously, they are not among the very poorest—as the appalling backwardness of our whole building and construction industry in this prosperous and "modern" land.

Through a combination of factors, or a conspiracy of stick-in-the-mudness, the building industry has remained with both its feet firmly wired in the last century, and is still putting up houses the way our grandfathers used to—only not nearly as well.

Because of obsolete building codes, the obscurity of trade unions, and the sleazy practices of so many construction firms, housing is perhaps the least progressive and most needlessly expensive element in our whole economy.

I will not even elaborate upon our deplorable lack of public housing, but private housing likewise lags far behind for the lower economic segment of the people.

Building methods are often antique and obsolete. There is much resistance to new materials and techniques which would appreciably decrease costs; and in some places there seems to be a silent collaboration among contractors and unions to maintain the status quo ante, and the public be damned.

When we think of the technological revolution in nearly every other aspect of modern living, it almost passes belief that the art and craft of home building has managed to remain static for the first seven decades of the 20th century. In this crucial area, "free enterprise" has been neither free nor enterprising.

OAK BAY MARINE SALES AND SERVICE

PERFECT, WE'RE NOT.

Boats are machines. Sometimes they don't work like they ought to. Boat dealers are not machines, but sometimes they don't work right either. Since you only do what must be done with something less than perfection, it pays to look for the closest thing to it. A Bertram is close to it. We are dealers for Bertrams. They expect a lot from us.

U.K. Press Praises Philip

LONDON (CP) — Prince Philip won praise in the British press Monday for his handling of the delicate monarchy issue in Canada but there was some criticism of his statement that the monarchy doesn't get much out of its activities across the Atlantic.

If he didn't have to go to Canada and other countries, he doubtlessly could find more congenial ways of spending his time, says The Guardian.

"But would he get as well recompensed for his sporting and other activities?"

Along with other family benefits, Prince Philip gets £40,000 ($104,000) a year from the British Parliament. This, says The Guardian, "lifts him well above the ranks of lower-paid workers."

"In the circumstances," it adds, "we might be spared the charade of blunt trade union talking."

The Guardian and other national newspapers paid close attention to Philip's remarks at an Ottawa news conference Saturday when he maintained that the monarchy exists in Canada largely because the community wants it and it is up to the Canadian people to decide whether it wants to end the royal role.

"I think the important thing about it," said Philip, "is that if, at any time, any stage, people feel that it has no future part to play, then for goodness sake let's end the thing on amicable terms without having a row about it."

The Times suggests that Prime Minister Trudeau would like a decision about the future of the symbolic head of state of Canada postponed "perhaps for a long time — until the needs of French-Canadians have been met."

"What the Duke has pointed out is that the British monarchy realizes that this choice is a Canadian choice. In visiting Canada the Royal Family serve the people and the Canadian Crown itself; they do not uphold outdated dynastic claims."

The Daily Telegraph agrees with Philip that the monarchy doesn't exist for its own benefit but for the country. That was axiomatic. It was equally axiomatic that if a community is determined to change to a republic, it will do so. But Canadians do not admire everything they see across the border in the United States, The Telegraph adds.

Whether a change is required is a matter for statesmanship. It was not something a referendum or a snap election could solve. But some of Philip's other remarks about the Royal Family not coming to Canada for its health, "lack his usual adroitness," The Telegraph says.

Tory Urges Action On CBC Separatism

HALIFAX (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday if Prime Minister Trudeau finds evidence of separatism in the CBC French network, he "should follow it up."

Stanfield told a news conference that during parliamentary sessions last spring the Conservatives had asked Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier and CBC President George Davidson about separatism in the CBC French network.

The two men had said then there was no reason to act, "but suddenly, in an offhand manner, the prime minister says there's something to the charge."

'UP TO HIM'

"It's up to him now; if there is evidence of separatism in the CBC French network, he should follow it up," Stanfield said.

Trudeau told a Liberal fund-raising dinner in Montreal Sunday the government will assume its responsibilities if CBC management is unable to see that the French portion of the publicly-owned network carries more objective opinion and less separatism.

At his news conference, called during a brief visit before Parliament opens Wednesday, Stanfield also said some of the priorities facing the forthcoming session included the urgent need for tax reform and for a new look at welfare programs "to make them more effective."

Asked his opinion on freezing wages and prices as an anti-inflation measure, Stanfield said he had urged the government to mobilize representatives of the three levels of government, industry, business and labor, to work out price and wage guidelines. He thought the commission on incomes and prices was working along those lines.

He said there is no question but that the government's current fiscal policy is hard on many people and on many sections of the country, for example, the Atlantic region.

BENEFITS OFFSET

A rigorous anti-inflation policy in Atlantic Canada would offset the benefits the region could expect to receive from the regional expansion department.

The Conservative leader also said he thought the country as a whole has an interest in Nova Scotia's heavy water program and the federal and provincial governments should work together to develop the Deuterium of Canada Ltd. plant at Glace Bay, N.S.

Ottawa to Paris

Note Latest Move In Diplomatic Fuss

PARIS (Reuters) — Canada has handed France an official note in the latest move of their diplomatic clash over a French minister's decision to visit Quebec without calling at Ottawa, diplomatic sources said Monday.

The note was delivered to the French foreign ministry on Saturday, but the sources said the Canadian government does not expect a reply until next month.

CALL REPEATED

The note was believed to reiterate Prime Minister Trudeau's recent call for discussions with Paris on the conditions under which French ministers should visit Canada.

The sources said Trudeau who made the call at a news conference last week, was taking a strong personal interest in the development of the latest Franco-Canadian controversy.

The controversy started when Jean de Lipkowski, French secretary of state to the minister of foreign affairs, went to Quebec on Oct. 9 for a week-long visit, without going to Ottawa.

SECOND VISITOR

Last week, Dr. Joseph Comiti, France's secretary of state for youth and sports, also visited Quebec without calling at Ottawa.

Franco-Canadian relations often have been strained since Gen. de Gaulle began developing closer ties with Quebec.

This policy, which included the general's famous cry of "Vive le Quebec Libre" in Montreal in 1967, led to the signature in January of "letters of intent" for co-operation between France and Canada in such fields as education, communications and investment.

Coverage By CBC NDP Aim

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party complained Monday the CBC won't give the forthcoming NDP convention three or four hours of live network television coverage Oct. 30, when policy decisions will be made.

NDP President James Renwick of Toronto told a news conference he doesn't think the party is asking too much in making the request. He hoped the CBC would reconsider plans to cover the convention on straight news value and by public affairs programs.

The convention in Winnipeg will be held Oct. 28-31.

Reports Link U.S. Brigadier With Army Club 'Operators'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon summoned a U.S. army general home from Germany Monday amid reports linking him with a wealthy slot machine mogul and an allegedly crooked sergeant who supervised enlisted men's clubs in Vietnam.

A terse defense department announcement said Brig. Gen. Earl Cole was being reassigned to Washington "in connection with the current Senate hearings on alleged irregularities in the operation of noncommissioned officers clubs."

A spokesman for the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee said Cole had not been subpoenaed to testify. But he said the general was notified he might be criticized in testimony this week and was welcome to testify in response.

A subcommittee source said an army officer would testify Thursday about Cole's relationship with William Crum, head of a Hong Kong firm called Sari Electronics, and M. Sgt. William Higdon.

Cole was deputy chief of staff for personnel and administration at Long Binh, Vietnam, in 1967 and early 1968. In that position, he served as senior adviser to a consortium of enlisted men's clubs run by Higdon. Crum lived in Saigon and had a virtual monopoly on slot machine sales to enlisted men's clubs in Vietnam, subcommittee investigators said.

Higdon has been named repeatedly by witnesses as a close associate of Sgt. Maj. William Woodridge and a leader in an alleged "kickback racket" accused of pocketing hundreds of thousands of dollars in club raffles, kickbacks, embezzlements and gambling "skims."

In the early 1960's, the army banned Crum from doing further business with army clubs in Korea, contending he was guilty of irregularities. But several years later, subcommittee spokesmen said, he was selling more than $1,000,000 worth of Japanese-made slot machines to U.S. enlisted men's clubs in Vietnam.

June Irene Skewes, a voluptuous blonde booking agent who testified Oct. 10 about kickbacks to club custodians, told the subcommittee that Cole visited Crum's Saigon villa several times. She said Crum considered the general a close friend.

A Pentagon spokesman said Cole arrived in Washington Monday from Stuttgart, Germany, where he was deputy assistant chief of staff for logistics at the army's European headquarters.

'Benefit To Our Peoples'

● Bureaucrats rapped for news attitude, Page 2.

By IAN STREET

Premier Bennett has dedicated an open space in the new provincial museum complex to British Columbia's continuing interest in closer ties with nations on the Pacific Rim.

The premier, in his address officially opening the 20th Colombo Plan consultative committee meeting Monday, said a courtyard between the new archives building and museum curatorial block will be known as Colombo Place.

He told the delegates seated on the floor of the legislative chamber, "With this in mind I pledge to you as a conference British Columbia's commitment to your objectives in promoting economic development in South and Southeast Asia."

ALL PEOPLES

Mr. Bennett said his government has supported the Colombo Plan policy of reinforcing communications with countries on the Pacific to promote "a sustained and consistently growing connection, of benefit to all our peoples."

B.C. will do everything in its power to assist in the increase in trade between Canada and the countries of the Pacific region, the premier said. "We gain from our association with the countries of the Pacific," he added. "We have much to learn from you about adapting to new conditions abroad."

YOUNG SOCIETY

"We recognize that, in spiritual and cultural terms, Canada as a young society benefits greatly from contacts with older, and in many ways, richer cultures."

The delegates applauded as the premier sat down and there were replies from Mrs. Pura Samillan Castrence of the

Big Boost Urged For Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson said Monday Canada's foreign aid program should be increased substantially from last year's total of $175,000,000 to $247,000,000 by 1975.

Pearson, who recently headed a World Bank commission on international development, urged rich nations to liberalize their "discriminatory" trade agreements with the "third world" of 70 underdeveloped nations.

LAST YEAR

The gross national product of the 70 countries increased an average of 4.8 per cent last year while Canada's GNP increased 7 per cent.

"This means that the rich nations, such as Canada, are going ahead much faster than the poorer nations and that the gap is widening rather than closing."

Pearson said in a speech to a women's service club there is a "dangerous" feeling among some people, especially in the U.S., to reduce foreign aid.

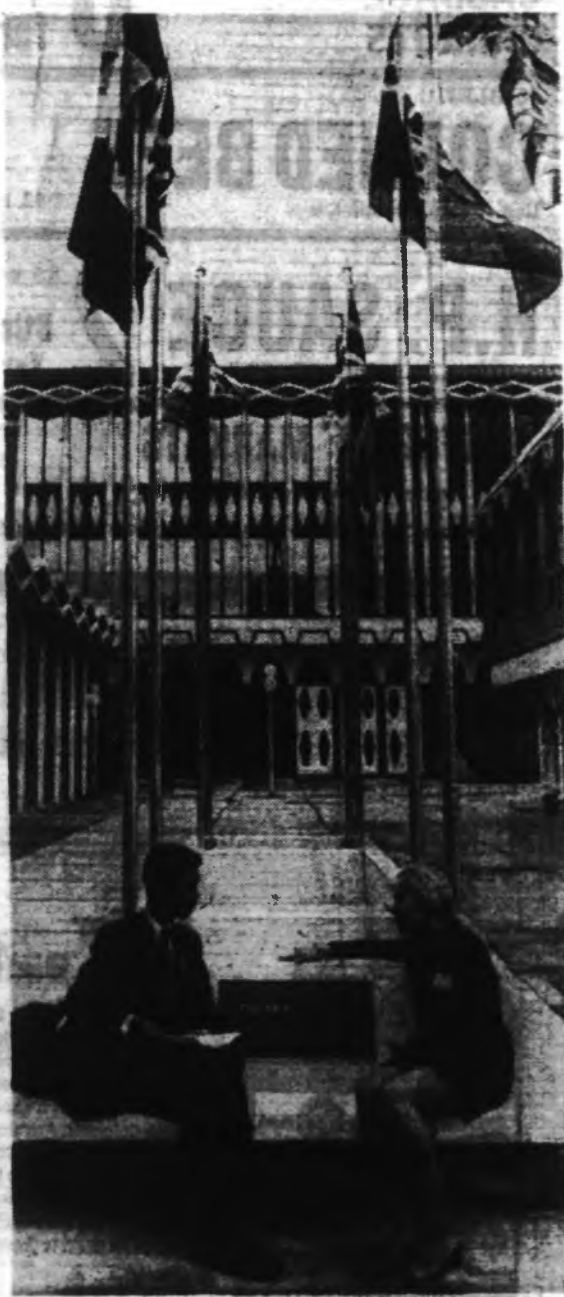

But he stressed that foreign aid is not the only solution to the problem of underdeveloped nations.

Private enterprise must be allowed to invest freely in those

Trudeau Explains CBC Attack

His Aim: Thinking Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday his searing attack on separatists in Quebec, delivered Sunday in Montreal, was meant to stimulate greater dialogue and action by various organizations involved in the development of the province.

Interviewed on the CBC French network, Trudeau denied that he was interfering without provocation in provincial affairs by hinting at collusion between Quebec cabinet ministers and separatists. "I was replying to precise accusations against the federal government," he said, not elaborating on the accusations.

The prime minister reiterated that Ottawa will not hesitate to take action against the CBC French network unless it carries more objective opinion and less separatism.

At a $50-a-plate Liberal fund-raising dinner Sunday night, Trudeau spoke of the "sickness of the spirit" in the network and said "we will put the lid on the place" unless changes were made.

Canada Not Bugging Out

'Must Find Our Own Way'

NEW YORK (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday that Canada, "bombarded by domestic and international forces we cannot control," must find her own place in the world "and stand there as best we can."

In a speech to an American audience he added: "We do not stand alone, we stand next to the United States, our closest friend and ally, but in our own place, in our own way."

He also said that Canada feels "profound uneasiness" about the present and future effectiveness of the United Nations. But he also said that Canada has faith in the UN's capacity to renew itself.

COMPLEMENTARY POLICIES

Sharp was speaking to the Council of Foreign Affairs, a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the interest of Americans in matters outside their own borders. Speakers at the council's closed meetings often answer questions from the audience.

Sharp said that he would not be surprised if, after the U.S. and Canada have completed reviews, their foreign policies complement one another as they have in the past, particularly in pursuit of world peace and development.

He also said that Canada is not "bugging out" of NATO and that her hope of recognizing Communist China is a sign of the "enlargement" of her outlook.

DIALOGUE WITH EAST

He said just as important as her steps in these two areas are new initiatives, approaches and contacts in French-speaking Africa, Japan and other Asian countries and Latin America and "our developing dialogue with Eastern European powers and the steady increase in our aid to developing countries."

Christmas Broadcast Dropped by Queen

LONDON (CP) — Breaking with tradition, the Queen has decided to drop her annual Christmas Day broadcast to Britain and the Commonwealth this year.

Buckingham Palace announced Monday that the Queen's message will be in written form for publication in newspapers and for broadcasting but there will be no formal television or radio appearance.

However, the Queen and the Royal Family will attend Christmas morning service in ancient St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle and this service will be televised for the first time.

Later in the day the BBC will rebroadcast the TV film Royal Family in color. This film runs about 90 minutes and has been shown in the Commonwealth and many other parts of the world.

Labor Body Wins Nobel Prize

OSLO (Reuters) — The International Labor Organization, set up 50 years ago to improve conditions for workers around the world, has been awarded the 1969 Nobel Peace Prize.

The Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Parliament, announced its decision Monday after considering 45 candidates. It described the ILO as an organization working to improve stable social relations and thus helping to safeguard world peace.

"In recent years the ILO... has also made considerable efforts in the field of technical aid to developing nations," the committee said. Mrs. Aase Lioness, chairman of the Nobel Committee, said the committee "wished to stress the close relations between work, social progress and peace."

Prize money this year amounts to about $78,400. The money, an insignia, a diploma and a gold medal will be presented to an ILO representative at a ceremony at Oslo University on Dec. 10, the day Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, died in 1896. The Nobel awards were set up at his bequest.

The ILO, established in 1919 under the Versailles Treaty ending the First World War, became an independent organ under the League of Nations, survived the league and became a special organ of the United Nations.

When it was founded, the ILO had 45 members. Fifty years and 280 conventions later, the Geneva-based organization has grown to 121 member countries with 2,700 officials of 100 nationalities and 30 field offices around the world.

Among its many recommendations have been resolutions demanding limited hours of work, equal pay, sick benefits, abolition of forced labor and trade union rights.

In its technical assistance programs, the ILO in 1968 alone sent more than 1,200 expert missions to developing countries.

Made up of government, worker and employer representatives, the ILO includes representatives from Communist nations as well as Communist union representatives from Western nations.

Ottawa Curbs Foreign Owners

Until now, the chartered banks have been the only commercial enterprises in Canada which have been restricted to a specified maximum amount of foreign ownership.

The order went into effect Oct. 17 when Finance Minister E. J. Benson froze the amount of non-resident ownership permitted these companies to not more than 25 per cent of the total capital stock and not more than 10 per cent to any one non-resident.

NOT PASSED

The minister said the government considers it important to preserve a significant Canadian-controlled element in enterprises that have at least 25 per cent of their total assets in the form of investment sales contracts, loans to individuals and loans to corporations.

He said the new limitations were being introduced immediately, even though the enabling bill, the Investment Companies Act, had not been passed by the Commons. It has, however, been passed by the Senate.

The purpose of the legislation is to establish a system of government supervision of federally-incorporated companies that act as investment intermediaries through borrowing funds from the public and using a substantial portion for investment purposes.

POSSIBLE SALES

Companies which already have more than the maximum percentage of non-resident ownership will be permitted to function, but they will not be allowed to increase their present non-residential ownership.

The finance minister said the government's decision was being announced at his time to "avert possible sale of control of companies during consideration of the bill."

A NUMBER

A number of the financial companies operating in Canada are provincially incorporated and thus outside the range of the new federal act, but among those liable to be affected are Industrial Acceptance, Traders Group, General Motors Acceptance Corp., The T. Eaton Acceptance Corp., United Dominion Corp., Traders Homeplan Ltd., and Central Covenant Holdings Ltd., all of which operate under dominion certification.

RECENT SALE

The recent sale of Royal Securities to Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith does not come under the provisions of the new bill.

Finance Minister Benson said the question of sale of Canadian investment dealer and stock-broking firms to non-residents would be dealt with separately after a report by the Investment Dealers Association and the Toronto Stock Exchange had been submitted to him.

NEW USE FOR RINK

What was built some 20 years ago as a roller-skating rink and has since functioned as a food packer's plant and a storage warehouse, now is becoming the largest building supply warehouse and lumber yard in the district.

The old rink at 2556 Douglas Street is the initial home of Imperial Building Materials Ltd., of which Keith Sedgman is president and Norman Murphy sales and service manager.

"We are gradually taking over the whole building," said Mr. Sedgman, "but it will be another two months or so before the present occupiers, Dowell's Cartage and Storage Ltd., finally move out to their new building in Esquimalt."

BY GROUP

Mr. Sedgman and Mr. Murphy were formerly with Moore Whittington Lumber Co. are experienced in building supply affairs and in their new venture they are backed by a group of active local contractors and other Victoria businessmen.

"This does not mean we are a co-op serving member companies. Imperial is independently staffed and operated and does business with the general public as well as for its associate firms," said Mr. Sedgman.

The building and yard are located near the Ingraham

Hotel between Douglas and Rose Streets.

ONE ASSOCIATE

One of its associates is Datatech and in conjunction with that firm's services, it is pioneering computerization of all its operations in the building supply business.

Most of the warehouse and yard now are vacated by the cartage firm, but it will not be until Dowell's move out that Imperial will be in a position to complete its office and frontage assembly.

NEONEX "WITH IT"

Preserving its image of "being with it," Neonex International has entered an agreement to get into the booming sports-utility business of the automobile on sleds.

The Vancouver conglomerate is preparing to acquire by share exchange the Quebec firm of Skiroule Ltd., which is the third largest Canadian manufacturer of the snowmobile-type vehicle.

Bombardier, which makes the popular Skidoo, recently became a public company, and is the largest in the snowmobile business.

BUILDERS KEEP BUSY

Housing starts in the Victoria area were at a high level in September, according to Central Mortgage and Housing. An increase of 94.5 per cent over the corresponding month of 1968 is reported by the crown agency.

Of the 282 starts, 113 were in the city of Victoria and 94 in Oak Bay, most of them multi-dwelling units.

ASBESTOS TO COST MORE

Canadian Johns Manville, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Johns Manville, New York, has increased its price for all grades of asbestos fibre by 3 per cent as from Jan. 1.

Increased costs of labor and materials is said to be the reason for the increase.

Accident Numbers Will Decide Outlay

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workmen's Compensation Board of British Columbia said Monday it is considering penalizing those employers who continuously show poor industrial accident records.

Board Chairman Cyril White told the 13th annual provincial safety conference "the number of work injuries reported to the board is now running at a near-record high." He gave no figures.

COST TO RISE

Mr. White said the board is considering changes that could lead to higher assessments levied on such employers. Employers with good records can get assessment reductions.

"Admittedly, the economy of the province is buoyant, production is high, but this can not account entirely for the number of accidents and deaths being reported.

"Where are we failing? Either the safety message is not getting across or is not understood or is not being acted upon."

"It may be that the board

will have to utilize more fully the powers it has with respect to enforcement of safety measures if the lessening of injuries can not be brought about by education."

The chairman announced that, effective Jan. 1, assessments on employers will be based on actual payroll, instead of on payroll estimates as at present.

He said the current system poses difficulty to employers and tends to be unfair to seasonal operators, who could be asked for advance payment while no work was being done.

B.C. Will Enforce Trucking Safety

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney General Leslie Peterson said Monday the provincial government will crack down on the trucking industry to ensure greater highway safety.

Speaking to a conference of the British Columbia Safety Council here, Mr. Peterson said much needs to be done to increase the safety of commercial vehicles.

"I am unhappy when I hear from time to time of the inadequate equipment or possibly the way equipment is not properly maintained on commercial vehicles," he said.

Police roadside inspections have found "glaring examples" of unsafe or inadequate equipment.

"I think it is fair at this time to give warning to the trucking industry that we intend to take steps to make sure that there is a higher level of maintenance of safety equipment on commercial vehicles in the interest of highway safety."

"It seems ridiculous that air-equipped commercial vehicles, for example, should in many instances be without a positive method of applying a parking brake."

Mr. Peterson also asked the council to study bicycle equipment, such as elongated seats and high handle bars, to determine whether it is causing accidents among cyclists.

Gabriel and Morton Vying for Honors With Johnny Unitas

Craig Morton and Roman Gabriel, both six feet, four inches tall and 215 pounds, are vying to take over from Johnny Unitas as the premier quarterback in the National Football League. But the Baltimore veteran isn't conceding anything.

All three were prominent in early victories Sunday. The calm, deliberate Gabriel, masterfully efficient as always, set a club record in guiding the unbeaten Los Angeles Rams to a fifth straight victory.

NORM'S RECORD

Gabriel, who also scored twice on one-yard runs as well as throwing touchdown passes to Les Josephson and Wendell Tucker, broke Norm Van Brocklin's record of 1011 completions in a 34-21 win over Green Bay Packers. Gabriel, adding 17 in his 28 throws, now has 1019 completions for the Rams.

The 34 points was the most the Packers have yielded in a single game since 1961. They had given up only 43 in their first four games this season.

Morton, who took over this year after five seasons of sporadic service when Don Meredith retired, threw five touchdown passes in the first half as Dallas Cowboys ramped to a fifth straight victory by slaughtering Philadelphia Eagles, 49-14.

The leading passer in the league, Morton missed his first pass, then completed 10 in a row. Lance Rentzel caught three of his scoring throws and Bob Hayes, playing his first game of the schedule, and Pettis Norman, each scored once on Morton's accurate throwing.

Morton played despite a right shoulder so sore that he hadn't been able to throw more than 15 yards in practice.

Meanwhile, Unitas, who missed almost all of last season with a bad throwing elbow, set a league record by making 16 consecutive completions as the Colts tore up New Orleans Saints, 30-10.

THREE SCORES

Unitas completed 20 of 28 throws for 309 yards and three touchdowns to keep the twice-beaten Colts within two games of the Rams in the Coastal Division.

Washington Redskins, producing for Vince Lombardi, overcame an 0-14 deficit before 50,352 enthralled home-town fans and got by New York Giants, 20-14, to stay a game and a half behind the Cowboys in the Capitol Division.

Joe Kapp threw three touchdown passes and Minnesota Vikings took the lead in the Central Division by knocking off St. Louis Cardinals, 27-10.

Drayton Sets New Record In Marathon

DEROIT (UPI) — Canadian Olympic runner Jerome Drayton set a North American record and broke the existing Olympic record by 11 seconds on Sunday when he won the Motor City Marathon in 2:12 hours.

The previous North American record for the 26-mile, 385-yard run was 2:14:26.2, set in 1963 by Buddy Edelen of Colorado.

Only four marathoners have ever registered better times. Derrick Clayton of Australia has the world record time of 2:08:33. Bill Adcock of Britain is next with 2:11:17 and Seichiro Sasakawa and Komoro Shigematsu of Japan both have run the distance in 2:11:17.

Ron Wallingford of Sudbury, Ont., was second Sunday—15 minutes in arrears.

last season, now has 15 for his first six games this season. On Sunday, Darrell Lamonia of the unbeaten Oakland Raiders veteran Don Maynard caught touchdown passes for 57 and 54 yards Monday night to bring New York Jets a 26-17 victory over Houston Oilers and first place in the Eastern Division of the American Football League.

Victory was the fourth in a row for the defending champions, who lost their first two games, and it came in front of a record AFL crowd of 63,841 fans at Shea Stadium.

Maynard's touchdowns, both on passes from Joe Namath, were the 80th and 81st of his AFL career, tying the league record for touchdown passes set by Art Powell.

FIVE OTHERS
Maynard also accepted five other passes for a total of 212 yards gained, best this season in the AFL.

Jim Turner provided the other 14 points for the winners, kicking the conversion each time and booting 17, 48, 45 and 21-yard field goals. Turner, who set a record of 34 field goals grabbed the headlines by throwing six touchdown passes in the first half in a 50-21 pasting of Buffalo Bills.

Lamonia hit Fred Biletnikoff and Pete Banaszak twice and Billy Cannon and Warren Wells once each and just missed a record-tying seventh scoring pass on the last play of the first half when the receiver stepped out of bounds a few yards short of the end zone after a long toss.

Bills tightened up in the third quarter and Lamonia was replaced by George Blanda, who holds the league record of seven scoring passes, in the final 15 minutes.

"I would never take a chance of an injury to my starting quarterback with a 40-point lead just for the sake of a record," said coach John Madden.

Led by John Tregear's three goals, Gorge Molsons stayed atop the Victoria and District Soccer League's First Division Sunday by defeating Cosmopolitan Royals, 5-1.

Victoria West, which has a game in hand, stayed within two points and increased its second-place margin over Oak Bay to two points by blanking Hounslow, 2-0.

Oak Bay was held to a 2-2 draw by Tally-Ho in Sunday's other first-division match.

Dan Henry and Darryl Hooker scored the other goals for Gorge while Owen Richman replied for Royals.

Ken Sutton matched the two-goal effort of George Pacon to get the point for Tally-Ho. Len Robinson and Jim Schulz scored for Wests.

Argos drew even in the second quarter when lineman Ed Harrington ripped the ball away from Fleming and ran 34 yards for a touchdown converted by Johansen.

That made it 31-8 starting the last quarter, and the Argos responded to the crowd shout of "We want 50" with three fourth-quarter touchdowns.

Frank Cosentino got the first on a 25-yard run, Ron Arends the second with an 18-yard run after an interception and Dick Thornton the third on a six-yard run after an interception by Pete Martin.

Riders took advantage of Calgary mistakes to make the Stampede a second-place club with a 24-18 victory in Regina. It came a few hours after Toronto Argonauts scored an impressive but expensive 51-8 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

OUT FOR SEASON
Lost for the balance of the season on a play near the end of the second quarter was halfback Dave Raimy.

Raimy suffered serious ligament damage to his left knee when Angelo Mosca and John Strofolino unloaded on him when he was running a sweep.

It followed by a little more than a week a similar injury which put Vic Washington, star halfback of the Ottawa Rough Riders, out of action for the balance of the season.

Ahead by 14-7 at the time of Raimy's injury, the Argos scored late in the quarter and then turned in a ferocious second half to make mince-meat of the tough Hamilton defence.

After Tom Johansen started it with a field goal, Ed Learn ran 24 yards with an interception for a converted touchdown after Tommy-Joe Coffey got Hamilton's last point with a wide field-goal attempt.

Port Alberni Man Dies

Blood Donors Join Fight

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 21-year-old Port Alberni man, John Hay, died in hospital at Vancouver Saturday despite blood transfusions, totalling 134 pints he received, for a bleeding ulcer.

Mr. Hay was admitted to St. Paul's hospital Oct. 3 following treatment in West Coast hospital, Port Alberni, and a mercy flight to Vancouver.

Mr. Hay, a six-foot three, 237-pound student, who was working in a mining camp to earn money for university, underwent a three-hour operation after his arrival at Vancouver Oct. 3.

A second operation lasting six hours required 91 pints of blood.

Mr. Hay developed double pneumonia following surgery and was using an artificial kidney to maintain his own kidney function.

The Red Cross maintained a supply of the A positive blood which he required.

Mr. Hay rallied after the first three-hour operation but the doctor in charge said he felt it was hopeless after the second, which lasted six hours, and required 51 pints of blood in 24 hours.

"Nobody knew him, said the doctor. "We did not know anything about him from the moment he arrived until his death."

"But everyone in the Red Cross from Dr. Terry Stout to the donors and the messengers who raced blood to the hospital blood bank and the full staff at St. Paul's were involved."

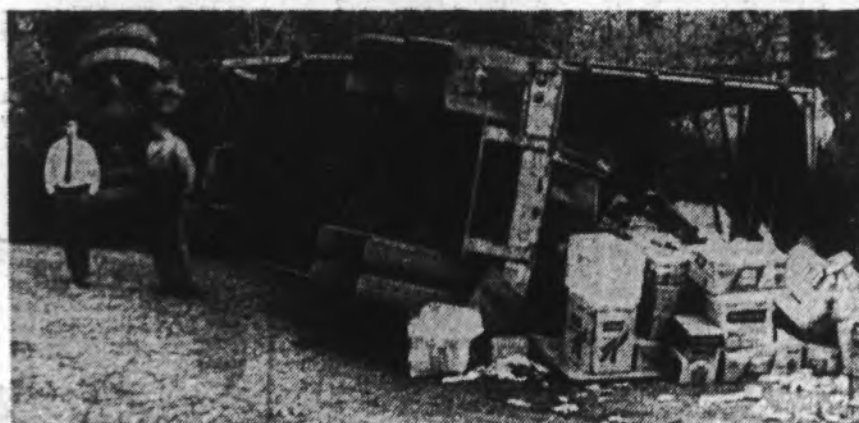

"I served in the front line and saw young men injured and seemingly beyond hope of recovery."

"I've seen near miracles, and this young man had enormous strength and vitality, and we felt there might be hope, there might be a way to save him. There might be a miracle."

"But we did it with heavy hearts—all of us—not really believing in this last week we could save him. The balance of the human mechanism seemed to outbalance all the blood, all the machines, all human hands could do for him."

The doctor said that throughout the last week, there was never a moment's let-up in service. There was always a minimum of three specialized nurses at Hay's bedside, and never fewer than five people working in his room.

Truck Goes Off Road

Bernard Wilson, 27, of Nanaimo escaped injury when a large, loaded tractor-trailer truck which he was driving left the highway at the old Koksilah Road, tumbling down an enbankment, and striking a power pole. B.C. Hydro crews worked all morning to restore the power and the freight was transferred to another truck.—(Klaus Muentner)

Bylaw Change Coming

PORT ALBERNI — West Coast General Hospital Society moved this week to reduce the number of appointments to the hospital board and increase the number of elected trustees.

Sixty-one of 86 delegates from city organizations rejected proposed new bylaws in order to block the annual appointment of a board member by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and by the women's auxiliary to the hospital.

FUTURE METHOD

The change will mean that in future only the city, province and regional board will appoint trustees. The balance of the 12 seats will be filled by election of society members.

The move against the appointments was led by Port Alberni and District Labor Council. Secretary Maurice Corbett said local and provincial governments had a financial interest in the hospital and were entitled to representation.

Dan Connell, labor council president, said: "I don't think anyone is minimizing the work of the auxiliary or the contribution of the MacMillan Bloedel appointee."

"YLAW REVISION

"I don't see why the situation should ever arise where there isn't a hospital auxiliary member on the board of trustees. But we mustn't deceive ourselves, it is the principal that counts."

The board has been instructed to revise the bylaws and return them to members in February. If approved, then they will be forwarded to British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service for ratification.

The society is made up of delegates from local organizations.

Halloween Capers

Nanaimo's Youth Plans Mini-Rock

NANAIMO—Within hours Monday, two Nanaimo groups of young people took the initiative offered by Mayor Frank Ney and made arrangements for entertainment on Halloween.

Malaspina College student council and the Committee for the Advancement of Youth agreed to back the $1,200 needed to provide the entertainment. Among the five bands which will be present will be The Plea for Mercy from Vancouver, Montreal folk singer Sean will also be on the program.

MINI-ROCK

Billed as the Halloween Stone Session, the event is intended to be a mini-rock festival.

Miss Music Galore will be chosen during the season and will be the first pretty girl who is spotted by the judges.

Earlier Monday afternoon, college social convener Kevin Storrie met with Mayor Ney and city engineer Art Leynard.

Mr. Leynard reported that city crews would be ready to build a 12-foot square, 25-foot high tower of fire behind the civic arena where the rock festival will be held.

Afterward a dance is scheduled for St. Peter's Hall which will be from 11 p.m. to an unspecified time — (8 a.m. the following morning at latest).

"We won't put it together until it's almost ready to light... it would be a shame if some joker ruined it before the young people had a chance to enjoy it," Mr. Leynard said.

The Esquimalt-Nanaimo Railway donated old railway ties, both B.C. Telephone and B.C. Hydro donated old poles that will go into the construction.

OLD TIMES

"It will be up to the young people to get us some old times to put inside," Mr. Leynard said.

Mayor Ney said he was pleasantly reassured of his confidence in youth, by their actions.

"They have really rallied behind this. It seems to be going in just the right direction — organization and control by the youth, with adults available to guide, give advice and help," he said.

At the first meeting, Monday afternoon, in the mayor's chambers, Mr. Storrie said he had experience with dances put on in an arena, where the temperature closest to the ice was about 40 degrees.

"The kids couldn't take it for more than about an hour, even though they did have coverings over the ice — it was just too cold," he told Mayor Ney, and suggested the arena be used for only a short part of the evening, with a major dance to be held elsewhere.

At a second meeting, in the home of CAY advisor Father Leo Robert, he, CAY spokesman Jim Morgan, Mayor Ney and Mr. Storrie seriously discussed using St. Peter's hall for a dance to be open to young people at 10:30 p.m. after the Friday night bingo.

Despite the enthusiasm of the young people, willing to support the event, a budget was the main stumbling block. The city has already committed itself to a $300 budget to provide for the bonfire and contingencies. But totals for entertainment range from a minimum of $250 and up.

First Home Burned In Blaze

PORT ALBERNI—A family of Korean immigrants saw their first Canadian home go up in flames in Port Alberni Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chan Koo Lee and their daughter, 15, and son, 16, all escaped without harm from their rural home on Shannon Farm where Mr. Lee is a farmhand. Some of their personal belongings were saved with the aid of neighbors.

The home was partially covered by insurance. A six-room frame building, it was built 35 years ago. It was believed a spark from an outdoor fire or the chimney ignited the roof.

Elderly Given A Place

CAMPBELL RIVER — Facilities at the Campbell River community hall have been opened to senior citizens in a program designed by recreation director Maurice Farn to give the older residents "a place to go."

Mr. Farn says: "One of the most neglected groups of people in recreation are the senior citizens. Whilst tremendous efforts are made to program for our young people, little is done to provide recreation for our older citizens, who obviously have more time on their hands and, inevitably, less money, than anyone else in the community."

The Kin Room at the hall has been set aside for the elderly every Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The kitchen will be available for coffee and the gymnasium will be open from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. for carpet bowling, croquet, etc.

Mr. Farn says if sufficient people took advantage of the facilities, a cribbage tournament or whist drive would be organized. Future plans also include penny bingo, ceramics and other crafts and mystery tours. Some Sunday evenings are being set aside for bridge sessions in the Kin Room from 7 to 11 p.m.

Mr. Farn suggests that people "just too young for this select group" could assist in organizing various functions or providing transportation.

AMONG WINNERS in B.C. cross-country championships at weekend were Gary Corniford, Dean Gordon, Brad Martyniuk and, kneeling Brenda Batchelor.

Bantam boys, Dean Gordon of Richmond, Tony Gidora of Newton, and John Martens of Burnaby; Bantam girls, Brenda Batchelor of Richmond, Janet Wylie of Nanaimo, and Cathy Lannon of Richmond; midge boys, Gary Corniford of Vancouver, Ken Gibson of Burnaby, and Don Jameson of Burnaby; midge girls, Doreen Martens of Burnaby, Yvonne Moore of Vancouver, and Carol Vanderpoole of Vancouver.

Trophies were awarded to:

The official opening was attended by North Cowichan Mayor Donald Morton, Duncan Ald. Rols Harder and Op-Ree chairman Pat Moore.

The meet was organized by the head coach of Cowichan Valley Athletic Club, Tom Hamilton, been assisted by parents.

Parents of the club's athletes ran a concession stand and trophies were awarded by Mayor Morton.

Teachers Rap Trustees Over Decisions between the school board and the 350-member teachers' association at Port Alberni has resulted in the teachers calling upon the board to improve its dealings or resign.

The get-tough attitude was expressed in a telegram quoting local teachers but sent out by the B.C. Teachers' Federation in Vancouver.

Friction had started earlier over teachers' dissatisfaction with the appointment of a non-certified teacher as chief-manager of a new community services complex at Alberni District Secondary school.

Alberni Valley Teachers' Association maintained that its contract called for prior consultation with the teachers' union on the appointment.

This was not done and the contract was violated, members charged. They said the appointed person's salary was higher than that paid to many qualified teachers.

DISPUTE WIDENS

Since then the dispute has widened to take in general salaries, handling of grievances, bargaining procedures and teacher-board consultations.

Teachers' president Rob Dom said: "The board seems quite content to follow a process of unilateral action without benefit of consultation or support of the teachers' association."

Pollution Appeal Date Set

The B.C. cabinet will hear an appeal Oct. 28 against a Pollution Control Board ruling that Malawie Estate Ltd. must give primary treatment to effluent discharged into Tricoum Channel.

The original permit, issued Aug. 25, 1968, would have permitted the use of septic tanks. However, when Salt Spring Island residents objected strongly, a further hearing was held and on April 9 another order was issued upgrading the treatment of 21,200 gallons of effluent daily to include primary treatment.

The final appeal, to a special cabinet committee, starting at 10 a.m. Oct. 28, will decide if the board's tightening of its regulations for the discharge of sewage in recreational areas will be upheld.

Student Paper Takes a Bite

NANAIMO — The first issue of the student newspaper at Malaspina College, Nanaimo, took a swipe at its home city.

The paper, the Navigator, called Nanaimo "a cultural and knowledge backwater since birth."

Cycling Girls Visit Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Kelvin Storrie, social convener for Malaspina Student Council, and another male council member had a big date Saturday evening. They were the only two men entertaining 92 Quebec girls at the newly-opened regional college.

The girls are on their way to Osaka for next year's world fair.

They set out from Montreal on cycles June 17. They plan to sell their cycles in Vancouver and find jobs to earn the money for sea passages to Japan.

While they were in Nanaimo they were taken to city hall, where Mayor Frank Ney gave out bathtub hats, the federal fisheries project at Big Qualicum, English River and Qualicum Falls parks, ending with a trip to Cathedral Grove. They were also given free hamburgers by Mike Yoshida, manager for MacDonald's Nanaimo.

In the evening Mr. Storrie arranged a folk-singing session at the college.

Nurse Wins Prizes

DUNCAN — Twenty-year-old Beverley Sleet walked off with most major awards when Cowichan 4-H beef club held its annual Achievement Night recently at the Commercial Hotel, Duncan.

A practical nurse at Cowichan District Hospital, Miss Sleet has been with the club since it was formed in the fall of 1963.

The list of her awards includes: Ardshill trophy for senior showmanship; Tom Groves trophy for champion steer at the Cowichan Exhibition; Credit Union trophy for highest achievement; Cowichan Leader trophy for judging; a $50 cheque from the B.C. Angus Association for the champion steer at the Cloverdale Fair, plus another trophy for champion steer at the same fair.

Miss Sleet also was champion showman at the Cloverdale fair. Other Achievement Night winners were: Jan Glenn, Dogwood Acres trophy, junior showmanship; Sharon Glenn, Oakridge trophy for intermediate showmanship; Ruth Whitaker, $5, donated by Someone Women's Institute.

Cowichan School Board

Action Sought on Road Dangers

DUNCAN — Last week a third-year primary student from the new Koksilah elementary school was involved in an accident with a car in the crosswalk on the Trans-Canada highway near the school and Cowichan School Board Monday night decided to take prompt action.

Cowichan school district schools superintendent Eric Lewis stated: "She is, fortunately, not badly hurt but she might easily have been killed. There are three areas on this highway that are considered very dangerous to students walking to school — at Somers-

Malaspina Regional college will be advised that the Cowichan School Board will hold back requested payment, totalling $29,083, until the Campbell River School Board has paid its 1968 and 1969 planning expenses for the college.

LETTER TABLED

The motion to table the letter from the college administration, by Trustee Dick Christmas, was unanimously supported by the board.

In the letter to the board, college secretary-treasurer O. E. Neaves noted: "In view of the fact that the department of education appears to have made a decision with respect to school district 72 (Campbell River).

"The college council would now like to resolve the problem relating to the $29,083 deficiency on our 1969 budget."

NO PAYMENT

The board, sometime ago decided not to pay the extra money levied against the district after the Campbell River district decided to opt out of the regional college scheme.

Mr. Neaves pointed out in his letter, "we are particularly anxious to settle this question due to the college enrolment being higher than anticipated, thereby increasing our operating costs."

U.S.-Canada Reception Set

Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson attended North American premiere showing of The Battle of Britain in the Vogue Theatre Monday. Wing Cmdr. T. J. MacKinnon was the side-de-camp.

Wednesday the Nicholsons will give a reception at Government House for the members of the Canada-United States Chambers of Commerce.

It had to happen. Sooner or later. Wonder is that someone hasn't started something like this before now.

I'm talking about the new special health plan at the Harrison Hotel which they claim is going to be the British Columbia what the Golden Door is to California. If you haven't heard about the Golden Door maybe you should stop reading this about now.

But this is what they say about the deal in their own words.

"The new look for the '70s is going to be the natural look. It will show a woman's figure up for the shape it is really in."

"To be ready for the '70s — they're only a little over two months away — four satisfying, exciting glorious health weeks are being offered at The Harrison Hotel at Harrison Hot Springs.

"For ladies only."

"It will be the 'in' place to go for a week of finding the new 'you'."

"The dates are Nov. 2 to 7; Dec. 7 to 12; Jan. 18 to 23 and Feb. 22 to 27."

"The health weeks combine a holiday, an opportunity to get away from it all along with a special course in personal fulfillment and a complete health treatment. All are designed to fit today's women into the beautiful people pattern."

"With the return to the natural figure, bra-less, girdle-less, with underpinnings that are a mere body stocking to flow over smooth curves, the time has come for the bulges to go. The week will start off on a planned program for keeping the woman in shape, physically and mentally."

"Activity will centre in The Harrison's new health pavilion. Here, guests will have daily health treatments, swim in the hot springs pools, enjoy Roman and swirl baths and take part in daily exercise sessions."

"Guests will have a room in the new Tower, special diet controlled meals, beauty care instruction and courses designed for creative expression."

"The Health Week advisory staff includes Mrs. Beth Wood, former mayor of New Westminster, as co-ordinator and Mrs. Kay Mair as diet consultant. Guest lecturers will include Vancouver based interior decorator Earle A. Morrison and investment counselor Gary B. Sutherland of Pemberton Securities."

"One of the most stimulat-

ing courses on which participants will be able to build, and carry out through the rest of their lives, will be the daily lectures and demonstrations on Yoga by Karen Zebrow."

"Having practised the 'inner you' concept, guests will be offered courses in beauty care instruction to complete their full physical potential. There will be new fashion ideas and training in the tricks that the professionals use for those head-turning looks."

"There is more to beauty than the physical. Doing things such as painting, creat-

Onassis Anniversary Both Quiet, Lively

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aristotle and Jacqueline Onassis marked their first wedding anniversary — the paper anniversary — Monday, but paper was most likely used only for gift wrapping.

The Greek shipping tycoon and the former first lady spent the day quietly in their New York apartment after a week-end at their New Jersey country home. The private character of the anniversary was in contrast to the worldwide attention given their marriage on the Greek island of Skorpios only a few days after the surprise announcement of their engagement.

Residents of Nidri on Lefnos Island across the bay from Skorpios observed the anniversary with a celebration in the village's combination restaurant and bar. The Onassis often drop into the restaurant for a drink and a chat with owner Nikos Kominatos when they are in residence on Skorpios.

Fashions in Fun Furs Turning to Furniture

By MARIAN CHRISTY

NEW YORK — Jacques Kaplan is a strange breed of designer.

Offbeat furs are his forte and fame, and he conducts a multimillion-dollar business from an upper-crust Fifth Avenue salon with the brand of charisma that has magnetized Mrs. George Plimpton to help manage his affairs and Wyatt Cooper, Gloria Vanderbilt's husband, to design eight men's fur coats just for the fun of it.

It's that sizzling Jacques Kaplan personality around which his success revolves.

The 44-year-old designer is a graduate of Saint Cyr, the French equivalent of West Point. So coolness and rugged discipline are bywords. On the other hand, he is a dreamer and philosopher knowledgeable on contemporary sub-

Jacques' son is a recent graduate of Harvard Divinity School, and parties in the upstate New York family hideaway are a clever mix of religiously inclined youth and social register Establishment types, like the John Hay Whiteites.

The Kaplan house is typically Kaplan. Everything in it is fur. Couches are covered with Persian lamb, rugs with zebra. Paintings are Kaplan's own fur-collages recently on exhibit at Waddell Gallery.

And, instead of chairs, Kaplan has a lot of fox-covered mattresses strewn around so that guests can lie around and talk.

Socialite customers who have seen Kaplan's house have been begging for fur furniture to take home. Kenton Corp. — the giant conglomerate that owns Cartier's and Kenneth Jay Lane — recently bought the Kaplan business. Jacques has a pile of money with which to play. And he has played: In three weeks he'll present a show of fur-covered furniture to the public.

The designer's major claim to fame is that he pioneered the use of weird furs in high fashion and gave them lasting prestige. At first competitors laughed and some even publicly said they were glad he was foolish enough to put his head on the block.

The current collection, for example, features a long evening cape from which 2,000 ermine tails bounce. The patchwork quilt evening skirt is made from raccoon, skunk and Spanish wildcat. Mink costumes are fashioned from rabbit stencilled to look like zebra.

On his move toward unique furs: "I became bored to death with nice furs for nice old ladies. About the same time I noticed that the hippies were raiding thrift shops for old-fashioned furs in the $5 to $40 range. Hippies weren't trembling and shaking like my customers who couldn't decide the shade of mink and length of coat. Hippies were having fun and the rich were suffering."

Jacques pumped fun into fur—hence the term, fun furs.

Pollution EducationUnited Action Move Urged

CAMPBELL RIVER — Unification of all anti-pollution groups throughout the province to educate the public about all types of pollution, was proposed by author and conservationist Rodrick Haig-Brown at a recent meeting of Campbell River Pollution Control Society.

"There are 15 people in this room, and 10,000 outside who don't give a damn," he said.

That was partly due, he felt, to a lack of accurate information about the subject.

"And, it has to be political," said Mr. Haig-Brown, referring to a unified body of pollution control societies, "in order to bring pressure to bear on government at all levels — federal, provincial, and municipal, plus whatever local people can do themselves."

Mr. Haig-Brown said many groups were already getting together to try to develop something on a provincial level, eventually, on a federal level. He suggested that the local society consult with these other organizations on what is now being termed "Environmental quality."

"The pollution of the Gulf of Georgia is perfectly possible," he said, "and is already going on to some extent. We know a great deal about it because the current sets northward from the Fraser River, which brings all that southern pollution up. It circles around Cape Mudge, and we are adding to that stream of pollution in the Gulf ourselves."

He outlined a similar situation in the Baltic Sea where the fish had been found to have 10 times as much DDT in them as fish in the North Sea.

David Brown, biology teacher, was chairman of the meeting which was held in the form of a seminar in the activity room of the senior secondary school.

Mr. Brown discussed the harmful effects of detergents on marine life. He said that the natural ageing process in lakes and rivers was accelerated by man with the addition of nitrates and phosphates, released from biodegradable detergents during biological decomposition.

"The phosphates cause algae in the water to grow very rapidly and to such a great extent that they choke out a lake and its population," he said.

THICK SMOG

Don Melvor showed slides of smog around Discovery Passage which, he claimed, was caused by air pollution from Elk Falls Co. mill at Duncan Bay.

"If I caused this sort of pollution in my back yard, the neighbors would run me out of town."

Mr. Melvor said that the smog was so thick at times at Painter-Barclay subdivision, near the mill, that lights are necessary at 11 a.m.

Big Evening Ahead For Halloween

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River recreation director Maurice Fara has planned an evening's entertainment in the community hall on Halloween.

The program will begin with a roller skating masquerade from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. From 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., there will be a children's fancy dress party with party favors, treats, games, films, and a band. Two bands will perform at a teenagers' party from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Mr. Fara has asked district service clubs to assist financially with the evening's entertainment.

Bylaws Changed

COURTENAY — The annual general meeting of Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce will be held in September in future. The change was made in a second reading of the group's bylaws recently.

The committee structures has also been changed. The president will appoint standing committees when he feels they are needed.

It was pointed out, at the first reading of the amendments, that a director may assume more than one chairmanship during a year, depending on the work involved in his committee and the time required to conclude the committee business.

The annual meeting was held Oct. 15 and took the form of a dinner meeting.

'Benefit To Our Peoples'

By IAN STREET

Premier Bennett has dedicated an open space in the new provincial museum complex to British Columbia's continuing interest in closer ties with nations on the Pacific Rim.

The premier, in his address officially opening the 20th Colombo Plan consultative committee meeting Monday, said a courtyard between the new archives building and museum curatorial block will be known as Colombo Place.

He told the delegates seated on the floor of the legislative chamber, "With this in mind I pledge to you as a conference British Columbia's commitment to your objectives in promoting economic development in South and Southeast Asia."

Mr. Bennett said his government heartily supported the Canadian government policy of reinforcing communications with countries on the Pacific to promote "a sustained and consistently growing connexion, of benefit to all our peoples."

YOUNG SOCIETY

B.C. will do everything in its power to assist in the increase in trade between Canada and the countries of the Pacific region, the premier said. "We gain from our association with the countries of the Pacific," he added. "We have much to learn from you about adapting to new conditions abroad."

"We recognize that, in spiritual and cultural terms, Canada as a young society benefits greatly from contacts with older, and in many ways, richer cultures."

The delegates applauded as the premier set down and there were replies from Mrs. Pura Santillan Castrense of the

Big Boost Urged For Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson said Monday Canada's foreign aid program should be increased substantially from last year's total of $175,000,000 to $387,000,000 by 1975.

Pearson, who recently headed a World Bank commission on international development, urged rich nations to liberalize their "discriminatory" trade agreements with the "third world" of 70 underdeveloped nations.

LAST YEAR

The gross national product of the 70 countries increased an average of 4.8 per cent last year while Canada's GNP increased 7 per cent.

"This means that the rich nations, such as Canada, are going ahead much faster than the poorer nations and that the gap is widening rather than closing."

Pearson said in a speech to a women's service club there is a "dangerous" feeling among some people, especially in the U.S., to reduce foreign aid.

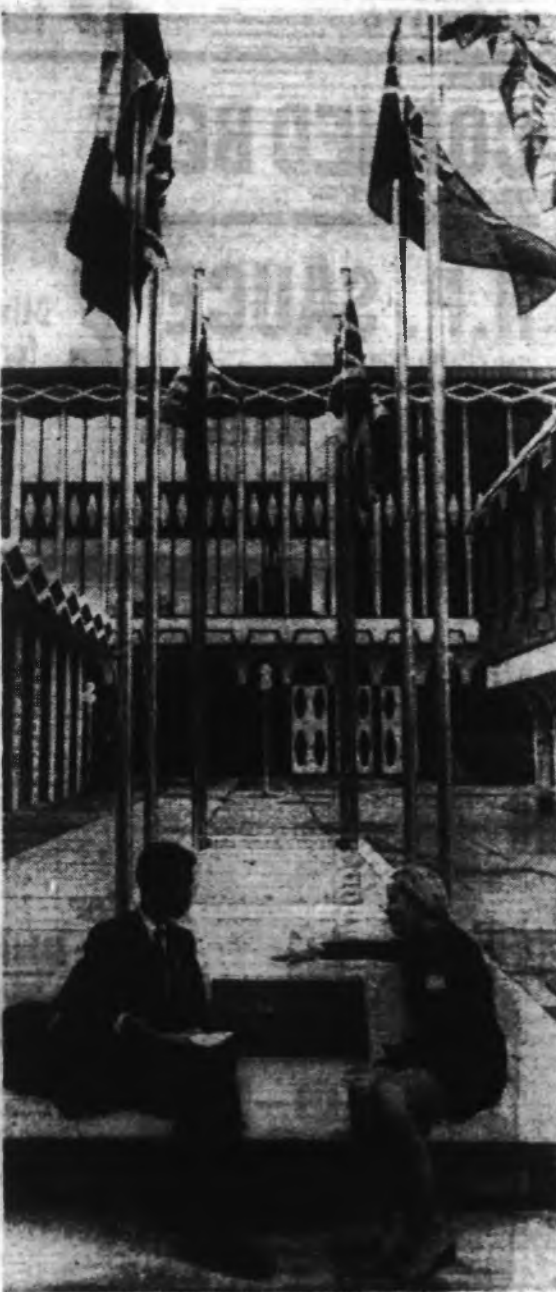

But he stressed that foreign aid is not the only solution to the problem of underdeveloped nations.

Private enterprise must be allowed to invest freely in those

Trudeau Explains CBC Attack

His Aim: Thinking Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday his searing attack on separatists in Quebec, delivered Sunday in Montreal, was meant to stimulate greater dialogue and action by various organizations involved in the development of the province.

Interviewed on the CBC French network, Trudeau denied that he was interfering without provocation in provincial affairs by hinting at collusion between Quebec cabinet ministers and separatists.

"I was replying to precise accusations against the federal government," he said, not elaborating on the accusations.

The prime minister reiterated that Ottawa will not hesitate to take action against the CBC French network unless it carries more objective opinion and less separatism.

At a $50-a-plate Liberal fund-raising dinner Sunday night, Trudeau spoke of the "sickness of the spirit" in the network and said "we will put the lid on the place" unless changes were made.

Not Bugging Out

'WE MUST FIND OWN WAY'

NEW YORK (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday that Canada, "bombarded by domestic and international forces we cannot control," must find her own place in the world "and stand there as best we can."

In a speech to an American audience he added: "We do not stand alone, we stand next to the United States, our closest friend and ally, but in our own place, in our own way."

He also said that Canada feels "profound uneasiness" about the present and future effectiveness of the United Nations. But he also said that Canada has faith in the UN's capacity to renew itself.

COMPLEMENTARY POLICIES

Sharp was speaking to the Council of Foreign Affairs, a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the interests of Americans in matters outside their own borders. Speakers at the council's closed meetings often answer questions from the audience.

Sharp said that he would not be surprised if, after the U.S. and Canada have completed reviews, their foreign policies complement one another as they have in the past, particularly in pursuit of world peace and development.

He also said that Canada is not "bugging out" of NATO and that her hope of recognizing Communist China is a sign of the "enlargement" of her outlook.

DIALOGUE WITH EAST

He said just as important as her steps in these two areas are new initiatives, approaches and contacts in French-speaking Africa, Japan and other Asian countries and Latin America and "our developing dialogue with Eastern European powers and the steady increase in our aid to developing countries."

Labor Body Wins Nobel Prize

OSLO (Reuters) — The International Labor Organization, set up 50 years ago to improve conditions for workers around the world, has been awarded the 1969 Nobel Peace Prize.

The Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Parliament, announced its decision Monday after considering 45 candidates. It described the ILO as an organization working to improve stable social relations and thus helping to safeguard world peace.

"In recent years the ILO... has also made considerable efforts in the field of technical aid to developing nations," the committee said. Mrs. Aase Lionness, chairman of the Nobel Committee, said the committee "wished to stress the close relations between work, social progress and peace."

Prize money this year amounts to about $78,400. The money, an insignia, a diploma and a gold medal will be presented to an ILO representative at a ceremony at Oslo University on Dec. 10, the day Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, died in 1896. The Nobel awards were set up at his bequest.

The ILO, established in 1919 under the Versailles Treaty ending the First World War, became an independent organ under the League of Nations, survived the league and became a special organ of the United Nations.

When it was founded, the ILO had 45 members. Fifty years and 260 conventions later, the Geneva-based organization has grown to 121 member countries with 2,700 officials of 100 nationalities and 30 field offices around the world.

Among its many recommendations have been: resolutions demanding limited hours of work, equal pay, sick benefits, abolition of forced labor and trade union rights.

In its technical assistance programs, the ILO in 1968 alone sent more than 1,200 expert missions to developing countries.

Made up of government, worker and employer representatives, the ILO includes representatives from Communist nations as well as Communist union representatives from Western nations.

Interest Ceiling Raised On Credit Union Loans

The provincial government has lifted the 1 per cent per month interest ceiling on loans by credit unions to ease the pressure caused by inflation.

Rod Glen, first vice-president of the B.C. Credit Union League, praised the government for removing the ceiling, but called the move "a permissive thing, to be used only when necessity indicates."

He said most credit unions would avoid increasing their interest rates right away. "I'm glad the government did it, but we're not going to abuse it," he said.

Mr. Glen added that the league was "not able to act until the position is clear under the Federal Small Loans Act, which governs certain loans up to $1,500."

The B.C. cabinet order, made public Monday, said the new interest rates would be permitted to match those under federal legislation for loans up to $1,500.

The order said interest on other loans would be up to 1 1/2 per cent per month on the unpaid balance of the principal amount of that loan for the month.

Premier Bennett, who urged the federal government last Friday to reduce the 8 per cent ceiling on chartered bank loans to fight inflation, told reporters Monday that if Ottawa acted on his suggestion, the province would restore the 1 per cent per month ceiling on credit union loans.

Borderline Attraction Still Alive

Leafy refuge in midst of traffic in 1700 block Newton Street on Victoria-Saanich border will stay to gladden hearts of young tree-climbers, tree-watchers and nature-lovers, not to mention assorted antiques, lawless and law-abiding. More practical-minded, who don't like trees in mid-street, may be disappointed, but you can't please everybody. — (William E. John)

Rates Going Up At Two Stores

Two more major department stores — Eaton's and The Bay — have announced plans to increase interest rates on credit charges early next year.

In some instances the increase will be as high as 50 per cent.

Similar decisions were reached earlier by Woodward's and Simpsons-Sears.

Spokesmen for Eaton's and The Bay Monday blamed higher cost of borrowing money and administering accounts.

Not all customers with charge accounts will feel the effect of the change. This will be dictated by the size of the balance owing.

Reg Hind, manager of Eaton's, explained:

For some years, the store has been charging 1 1/2 per cent interest per month on balances not exceeding $500, and 1 per cent per month on anything over $500. Now the 1 1/2 per cent will be charged on the first $500 and 1 per cent on anything over $500.

Mr. Hind said $1 would be the limit of increase per month on any account, regardless of the size of the account.

While the present interest rate at The Bay scales gradually from 1 1/2 per cent to 1 per cent, the effect will be the same as that at Eaton's, a spokesman for The Bay said.

The new rates will come into effect at Eaton's in February and at The Bay on March 25.

'Beyond Help at 13'

Opting-Out from School Comes Earlier

The child who doesn't seem to fit into the conventional education system could be beyond help by the time he reaches the age of 13.

And there are too many like him today — youngsters "opting out" of school at an alarmingly young age.

This is the conclusion drawn by Betty Bryant, Family and Children's Service supervisor in Victoria.

She told a child development course Monday night at the Institute of Adult Studies: "I am rapidly coming to the conclusion — and this is my own opinion — that at the age of 13, it is too late to help these children, too late to make it possible for the parents to help."

In an interview afterward, she said, "If the parents haven't learned to help the child by the time the child is 13, they never will learn."

During her address she said "all hell breaks loose" when children 12, 13 and 14 become "absolutely turned off" in the school system.

Educators stress the need for a minimum of Grade 12 education today, but it seems impossible to get the "turned-off" group as far as Grade 10, Mrs. Bryant said.

The children often seem to come from families burdened with poverty, alcoholism, drug addiction or mental illness, she said. Parents under the type of pressure that leaves them little time to spend constructively with their youngsters.

Mrs. Bryant said she felt the children needed help when they were still at the pre-school level. She said there is a need for more day-care centres.

'Only Business Benefits'

Barrett Blasts Appeal, Fund Chief Cries Foul

NDP House leader David Barrett attacked United Appeal drives Monday as an "annual charade" which permitted governments and big business to escape their full responsibility for welfare services.

"What a sham, what a mockery, what a 16th-century attitude towards services," said Mr. Barrett, who told reporters he was speaking both as a politician and a professional social worker.

Victoria United Appeal chairman Peter Darling said Monday night that the MLA's comments would do "untold harm" to the campaign.

The NDP spokesman said the 70 agencies in the United Community Services appeal on the Lower Mainland contained "duplication of services that any half-witted idiot can observe without any further surveys."

He also attacked pre-Christmas charity fund drives using "pathetic stories to wring tears of guilt from readers," but which immediately after the holiday season relegated the recipients of charity once more to their "forgotten welfare roles."

On the subject of united appeals, Mr. Barrett said, "The people who benefit most from this public charity are our corporate citizens, whose companies which loan executives to this annual charade, in the knowledge that by getting involved they will avoid greater corporate financial responsibility through taxation."

Mr. Barrett's attack came when he was asked to comment on an announcement earlier Monday by Welfare Minister Dan Campbell of the formation of a Greater Vancouver Area Citizens' Congress on Welfare. The announcement said the group had the authority to study and analyze existing social betterment schemes and recommend "practical and necessary" changes in public and private welfare programs.

Mr. Barrett said he would not be surprised if the first recommendation of the new congress was for the appointment of a royal commission to advise the inter-department committee set up three to four years ago to advise the minister on this question.

"If the minister wants the job done, why doesn't he get going?" the NDP spokesman said. "If he would only take the trouble to find out, all sorts of research has been done on this question by professional social workers. The answers are already available. Everyone knows the direction we should be going, with the exception of the minister."

Mr. Darling said the attack on United Appeals was "uncalled-for" and "misleading." Referring to Mr. Barrett's allegation that services were duplicated, Mr. Darling said great care was taken to avoid presumed to know. I've known him since he was a little wet-nosed kid—I hope he one day grows up."

Mr. Barrett said the NDP had advocated for some time the establishment of centres offering a broad range of social services located on a geographic basis in place of the multiplicity of existing private and public agencies.

By acting the way he had, Mr. Barrett said, Mr. Campbell had proved "he is the biggest boondoggle-chaser since the carpetbaggers hit the southern United States."

The "fantastic" increase in the province's total social assistance bill for the fiscal year ending last March 31, Mr. Barrett added, with no increase in social assistance rates over this period, indicated a sharp growth in the number of welfare cases, although the government had kept the total secret.

'Youth-Besotted Society'

By NANCY BROWN

Old people are not going to endure discriminatory taxation to underwrite and finance dropouts in a "youth-besotted society," Charlotte Whitton, who holds a doctorate of law, told members of the Canadian Club here Monday.

"Hundreds of thousands of people who have lived out a lifetime to Canada are getting angrier and angrier every day as their anxiety increases as to how the Canadian cookie seems to be crumbling," she said.

"They face discrimination in a work-to-age rule; in being scuffed off and they have their substance diverted by discriminatory taxation to underwrite and finance dropouts for whom they are being made into put-outs," said Dr. Whitton.

She said pensioners were subject to taxation while members of the Company of Young Canadians received a tax-free honorarium of $200 to $225 a month for up to 24 months, with a possible six-month extension.

She said a $50 monthly bank deposit was also made to CYC members, for them to draw at the end of their time.

"The oldsters are not going to endure increasing discrimination as not being with it or being squares," she said.

"Their part-time employment is going up and they are annoyed and angry as the substance of their taxation is being applied to student loans to the extent of two out of every five students on the Canadian university campuses in 1968.

"Is Canada not rather in one awful tailspin of a yaw, caught up in some strange DTs as to the very content of her own national structure and being?" she asked.

"We have been so dumb before the repetition of the fallacy that we accept as essential fact that one-half of the population of Canada is under 25 years of age."

"Canada's 21,000,000 population just does not break into any two simple and effective divisions."

The half of the population under 25, she said, was not an effective block of active citizenship upon which responsibilities can be firmly and safely laid.

Of these under 25, 6,500,000 are under 14, and another 400,000 are 15.

The teenagers and youth, she said, made up an effective youth sector of only 3,200,000 from 16 to 24 years of age.

Dr. Whitton said 43 per cent of Canadians were between 25 and 64, while the remaining 8 per cent — 1,600,000 — were over 65.

Charlotte Whitton in Victoria

"These oldsters," she said, "have a lifetime of living and performance behind them as against a similar length of years yet to be lived and only a promise to this country."

"And where it most counts, in the belts from the ballot, age power is becoming voter power — and they do vote — one in every seven or eight federal electors in 1968 was an oldster."

The aged and aging have served Canada and are as entitled to priority in their claim upon this country's resources as "youth in their phantasmagoria with their work not yet begun," she said.

"These oldsters are not has-beens, out of joint with the last decades of the century they have served," said Dr. Whitton.

It may not be as convenient as self-service.

But we don't feel that convenience should ever come before your health. And neither should profits.

The way we look at it, we know more about drugs than you do. We've been trained for it. And that's our only business.

We have 23 staff pharmacists. And any one of them will be happy to talk to you. Even about something you might think is simple. Like a headache.

Because sometimes a headache can mean something serious. We have no self-service because a counter can't tell you what's best for what ails you.

And because our knowhow is a lot safer than guesswork.
